FRENCH AGAIN SMASH LINE ON SOMME; CUT MAIN ROAD LEADING TO PERONNE; BULGARS FALL BACK IN MACEDONIA

FRENCH MAKE WIDE SWEEP

Strong Thrust on 4-Mile Front Has Combles Almost Surrounded.

CAPTURE 1,500 PRISONERS

QUIET IN BRITISH SECTORS

Artillery Continues to Bombard German Lines, but Infantry Is Inactive.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The French infantry started a vigorous offensive today along a front of six kilometers (about four miles) north of the Somme, from the Combles region to the river, and in half an hour took an entire first line of German trenches, says the official communication issued by the French War Office tonight.

Another portion of the French forces carried a system of trenches along the road from Béthune to Péronne, which runs north and south directly east of Combles. Prisoners to the number of 1,500 had been taken when the report was filed.

The French captured all of Marrières Wood, and the whole system of trenches from the southern outskirts of Rancourt to the district south of Bouchavesnes, on the Béthune-Bapaume-Péronne highroad. This move cuts off Combles from the south and leaves it in a dangerous salient.

There was little activity on the British front north of the Somme today, but the artillery kept up its pounding of various points behind the German lines. South of the Somme the French repulsed a weak German counterattack.

Berlin announces that Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria has been appointed to full command of the German armies on the Somme. Three German Princes now command armies on the western front. Duke Albrecht, heir to the Kingdom of Württemburg, is in charge of the northern section, while the German Crown Prince is at the head of the troops in the Verdun sector.

The French report, issued this evening, follows:

The battle continued today north of the Somme. Our infantry delivered a vigorous offensive on a six-kilometer front between the district south of Combles and the river. The attack started at 12:30 in the afternoon and developed rapidly, thanks to the spirit of our troops, who in less than half an hour captured the whole of the first line German trenches.

Subsequently, pushing eastward with the same vigor, we took successively Hill 145, Marrières Wood, and the whole system of trenches as far as the Béthune-Péronne Road, which we now touch from the southern outskirts of Rancourt to the district south of Bouchavesnes. Further south we pushed our lines on to Slope 76, west of Feuillaucourt.

Up to the present the total number of prisoners reaches 1,500. These include numerous officers.

South of the Somme the artillery fighting was violent in various sectors without infantry action. There was an intermittent cannonade on the remainder of the front.

The French afternoon report follows:

South of the Somme an enemy attack against one of our trenches to the east of Belloy-en-Santerre was repulsed easily by means of grenades. A minor operation enabled us to occupy a German trench south of Bieny (Berny?) Cemetery. Everywhere else there was the usual cannonading during the night.

Germans Admit Ginchy's Capture.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—Official announcement was made today of the capture from the Germans of the town of Ginchy, on the Somme front.

The capture of Ginchy was announced by the British War Office on Sunday.

The text of the German official report recounting military operations in France says:

Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria: On both sides of the Somme enemy attempts to make attacks generally were frustrated by our curtain of fire. In the Foureaux and Leuze woods the English fruitlessly attempted to gain ground by a hand-grenade fight.

The village of Ginchy fell into the hands of the enemy early yesterday (Sunday) morning. An artillery battle continues with violence.

The general situation is unchanged. There was intermittent hostile shelling on the front south of the Ancre. Our artillery destroyed some enemy gunpits

Austrian Commander on Rumanian Front Resigns; Emperor Accepts His Plea of Ill-Health

VIENNA, Wednesday, Sept. 13, (via Amsterdam to London.)—General Pflanzer-Baltin has resigned from his command on account of ill-health. Emperor Francis Joseph has accepted his resignation.

According to recent reports, General Pflanzer-Baltin was intrusted with the defense of Transylvania along the Rumanian frontier.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 13.—According to The Morning Post's Budapest correspondent, there is intense indignation in Hungary over the failure of the Government to make provisions against a Rumanian advance immediately after the declaration of war.

"The Rumanians reached important points on the frontiers and within the frontiers before the people realized what was happening," says the correspondent. "There were no Austro-Hungarian soldiers to be seen at most of these points, and the defense all along the frontier was undertaken by gendarmes, railway men, and peasants. It is stated that the defense of Transylvania, was originally allotted to General Pflanzer-Baltin, but another command had been given to him, and since then nothing has been done—the authorities simply trusted to luck, in the hope that Rumania would not, after all, abandon her neutrality."

When A. A. Brusiloff began the great Russian offensive from Pinsk to the Rumanian frontier on June 4, General von Pflanzer-Baltin was in command of the extreme southern army, which then wrapped the Rumanian frontier for thirty-five miles into Bessarabia. This line Pflanzer rapidly contracted until it rested on the frontier just south of Czernowitz, which was taken by the 1st of July, and before the middle of the month his army had been completely separated from that of General von Bothner and Cossacks were driving it through the passes of the Carpathians. With what portion of his men Pflanzer was able to retreat or when he was placed in command of the defensive Austrian army in Transylvania was not disclosed.

BULGAR TRENCHES RUSHED BY ALLIES

French Capture Two Miles of Them in Battle Lasting 36 Hours.

OTHERS TAKEN BY BRITISH

Kavala Forts Reported to Have Been Evacuated Under Guns of the Entente Fleet.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—After a battle lasting thirty-six hours, during which they suffered losses described as "enormous," the Bulgarians on the Macedonian front are in retreat, pursued by the allied forces, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens.

The official statements today confirm this report in a measure, the Paris bulletin announcing that the French troops have captured all the positions of their opponents on a front of two miles to a depth of about 800 yards, while the British forces which crossed the Struma, rushed Bulgar trenches on the east bank.

The Petit Parisien of Paris says it learns from a semi-official source that the Bulgarians have turned over to the Greeks all the forts at the Greek seaport of Kavala, which they occupied last month, the forts having ceased to possess military value after the arrival of warships of the Entente Allies, whose guns now dominate Kavala.

English political writers say that the purpose of the visit of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria to Emperor William is believed to be to lay down conditions under which Bulgaria will continue to fight.

On the Struma front British troops engaged in violent fighting, during which the village of Nevolyen was taken by assault.

Our batteries effectively bombarded Bulgarian organizations in the sector of Makukovo, west of the Vardar. A vigorous offensive of allied troops north of Majadag gave excellent results. All Bulgarian trenches were captured on a front of two miles and a depth of about 800 yards. We took some prisoners.

West of Lake Ostrovo Serbian artillery displayed great activity in the region of Banica. Southwest of the lake partial engagements enabled us to obtain some advantage. A Bulgarian attack, which was repulsed by our fire, caused heavy losses to the enemy.

The British War Office announcement says:

The detachments mentioned yesterday as crossing the Struma at Nechore seized trenches on the eastern bank.

A French detachment, co-operating with the British, captured the village of Yenimah and took thirty prisoners.

In these operations the enemy suffered heavily from rifle and artillery fire during his retirement, and also in his counterattacks. Many ambulances were seen on the Demir-Hissar road.

On the Doiran front our artillery carried out systematic bombardments of the enemy trenches north of Makukovo.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (via London.)—The War Office today made public the subjoined bulletin:

Macedonian front: Lively artillery battles took place in the Vardar district. There was also fighting on the Struma, the result being successful for the Bulgarian troops.

RUSSIANS STORM KAPUL MOUNTAIN

TAKE 913 MORE PRISONERS

PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.—New successes for the Russians in the Carpathians are announced by the War Office today. Several heights in the Bialy-Cheremosh region, near the Bukowina border, were taken and held, and Kapul Mountain, to the south, also was captured, together with nearly 1,000 prisoners. The official statement says:

In the region of the river Bialy-Cheremosh our troops carried several heights. Enemy attempts to regain them were unsuccessful.

In the wooded Carpathians, in the region of Kapul Mountain, our troops occupied a ridge north of Kapul Mountain, and, pursuing the enemy, also took possession of this mountain, making prisoner in this operation 13 officers and 900 men and capturing seven machine guns, three trench mortars, and one searchlight.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (via London.)—Concerning the operations in the eastern theatre the official statement today says:

Prince Leopold of Bavaria: North of Stara-Czerwiscze a Russian attack with strong forces broke down with heavy losses before our entanglements.

Arahduke Charles: In the Carpathians enemy attacks in the region of the Letdowa railway, on Cimbroslawak and on Kapul were repulsed. In a counterattack on Cimbroslawak 170 prisoners were taken.

VIENNA, Sept. 12, (via London.)—The official statement from General Headquarters issued today reads:

Fighting in the Carpathians continues. All enemy attacks against our positions north of Godeln, in the Distriza Valley and in the upper Cheremosh Valley were unsuccessful.

In East Galcia there was nothing of importance. On the lower Stokhod we repulsed with heavy enemy losses attempts to break through our lines with dense masses of troops. On the remainder of this front there was moderate artillery fire.

HOT FIGHTING IN CAUCASUS.

Russians Storm a Mountain—Turks Retake Ognott Positions.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.—The following bulletin was issued by the War Office today:

Caucasus front: Our detachments captured the pyramidical mountain south of the village of Pirdjani and occupied the heights on the left bank of the River Masladaraksi. Snow fell in the mountains and there was frost.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Russian repulses in the Ognott sector of Turkish Armenia are announced by the Turkish War Office in its statement of Sept. 10. Further advances for the Turks on the Persian frontier also are reported in the statement, which says:

Turkish forces pushed back the enemy and occupied the heights south of Deobende, on the Persian frontier.

Caucasus front. In the Ognott sector on Sept. 8 the enemy attacked repeatedly, but was completely repulsed. The enemy had occupied a portion of Height 2,113, but was pushed back by a counterattack. The Turks recaptured all their former positions.

On the night of Sept. 8-9 and the following day the enemy attacked in the Ognott sector with two divisions. After gaining a temporary footing in our positions he was ejected by a counterattack. Our positions are completely in our hands.

Confesses the Murder of Mrs. Nichols, Waltonen, Former Employe, Held in Michigan

Special to The New York Times.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 12.—Arthur Waltonen, alias John Lind, who is wanted for the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols of 4 East Seventy-ninth Street, New York, in September last, was arrested here today for the crime. The arrest was made by New York detectives, assisted by Chief Hult of this city. Wltonen immediately confessed to the crime and will be taken to New York at once.

Waltonen, or Lind, had been employed as a barber here in the shop of Walter Point for the last eight months. Several weeks ago a man from Waukegan, Ill., was shaved by Waltonen, and noticed the scar on his right index finger. This was one of the marks of identification referred to in the circular of the New York police which was sent to all parts of the country.

The stranger sought local advice and there was some delay while the matter of the reward which had been offered was arranged through an advertisement in a Chicago newspaper.

The arrest finally was made today.

Waltonen was one of the three men whom Onne Talas, a servant in Mrs. Nichols's home at 4 East Seventy-ninth Street, confessed he admitted to the house on the night of Sept. 8, 1915. The three men were to rob Mrs. Nichols and divide the proceeds with Talas.

Waltonen and his two companions, Edward Lehto and an unnamed Italian, bound Talas after he had admitted them and then proceeded upstairs, where they strangled Mrs. Nichols and robbed her of her jewelry. Talas confessed, naming the three men. Waltonen is the first to be caught.

Talas was convicted of first degree murder, with a recommendation for clemency, inasmuch as he had not participated in the strangling. He was sentenced to die in the electric chair, but Governor Whitman, taking into account his previous good record and his ignorance of the probable consequences to Mrs. Nichols which his participation in the crime entailed, commuted the sentence last Friday to imprisonment for life. He probably will be an important witness against Waltonen.

After following many trails in the search for Waltonen, the police received several days ago a letter signed "Consul," asking them to advertise in a Chicago paper the amount of the reward offered for the capture of Waltonen. They did so, and in answer there came a letter saying that a man answering the description of Waltonen was working in a barber shop in Ironwood, Mich. Detectives Enright and Fogarty left here on Sept. 8 to arrest him and bring him to New York.

Mrs. Nichols was the widow of James Nichols, once a partner in the firm of Austin Nichols & Co. Waltonen before the crime had been a servant in her household.

DORSEY NOMINATED FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Prosecutor of Frank Wins in Georgia Primaries on Law Enforcement Issue.

MANNING AHEAD OF BLEASE

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 12.—Hugh M. Dorsey, who when Solicitor General of the Atlanta Criminal Court prosecuted Leo M. Frank for murder, was nominated for Governor of Georgia in the State-wide primary held today by an overwhelming vote. The returns up to 10 o'clock indicated that Dorsey had carried 100 or more of the 152 counties, and that he would enter the convention, which meets in Macon Sept. 26, with far more than the 191 votes needed to nominate.

Dorsey was opposed by Governor Nat E. Harris, who is serving his first term of two years; Dr. L. G. Hardman of Commerce, Ga., and Joseph E. Pottle of Milledgeville. According to Georgia precedent Governor Harris was entitled to a second term, but precedent went down before the Dorsey drive as did the sentimental facts that Governor Harris is probably the last Confederate veteran who ever will be able to serve as Governor of Georgia. The defeat of Harris means the passing of the Confederate veteran in Georgia politics.

Dorsey is a new figure in Georgia politics. He never held public office until five years ago, when he was appointed by Governor Brown to the Atlanta Solicitorship to fill a vacancy caused by death. When Frank was charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, Dorsey prosecuted the case with great vigor and obtained a conviction. Great feeling was aroused over the case, and John M. Slaton, who was then Governor, commuted Frank's death sentence to imprisonment for life. Dorsey made a strong protest, insisting that the death sentence should have been carried out.

Thomas E. Watson, once Populist candidate for President, who conducts an anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic publication at Thomson, Ga., kept the Frank case and the anti-Catholic issue to the front while urging the nomination of Dorsey. Dorsey and his managers, however, insisted that he was not running on the Frank case, but on a platform of law enforcement.

Dorsey had practically no newspaper support. The Atlanta Constitution opened its news columns to him, but did not support him editorially. He was bitterly fought by The Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American, which supported Governor Harris. The Georgian and Sunday American are owned by W. R. Hearst, and many think that their opposition helped Dorsey more than their support aided Harris. It was reported that Hearst had boasted in New York that he would name a Governor in Georgia, and this was resented.

On being asked for a statement, Dorsey said, in part:

"While I am deeply grateful to the voters of Georgia for this expression of confidence and approval, I do not regard the result of the primary as a personal victory; to me it means popular approval of all of the principles upon which my campaign was based, and, most of all, it means that the people of Georgia are determined to manage their own affairs and to see that their laws are fearlessly and impartially enforced by their public servants."

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 12.—With between 5,000 and 7,000 votes to be heard from Governor Richard I. Manning has won the renomination for a second term as Governor over Cole L. Blease, twice Governor, in a second Democratic primary held today. The Governor has a lead of 5,000 votes, and it is not believed that he can be overtaken. The vote stands: Manning, 68,433; Blease, 63,763. The outstanding vote will probably be fairly evenly divided.

Wyatt Aiken, Representative from the Third Congressional District, has apparently been defeated for renomination by Fred H. Dominick of Newberry. James Candler of Tirzah has been elected Railroad Commissioner over Albert S. Fant of Belton.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 12.—In the Louisiana primary the only contests were in the Sixth and Seventh Congressional Districts. Early returns showed Representative Lazaro leading his two opponents, T. A. Edwards and A. M. Barber, in the Seventh, but he probably will have to go into a second primary. Former Governor Jared Y. Sanders won in the Sixth District over Amos R. Ponder.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Sept. 12.—The return of Carroll S. Page to the United States Senate was indicated tonight when returns from about 40 per cent. of the voting precincts of the State gave the Vermont Senator a vote considerably larger than the combined totals of his two opponents, Governor Charles W. Gates of Franklin and former Governor Allen M. Fletcher of Cavendish. The figures were: Page, 7,767; Fletcher, 2,813; Gates, 2,253.

HUGHES GETS VIM FROM MAINE RESULT

"Will Go Forward with Renewed Confidence," He Says—Won't Change Tactics.

FOR "FAIRNESS AND TRUTH"

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Charles E. Hughes tonight made his answer to political leaders and newspapers which have criticised the management of his campaign and the tenor of his utterances. Referring first to the Republican victory in Maine, which he said showed that the Republican Party was reunited in fact as well as in theory, he served notice on his critics that there would be no change in methods. Mr. Hughes replied also to the charge that his utterances were destructive, asserting that wherever he tore down he put alongside such statement the constructive policy which he proposed to follow if elected.

The nominee spoke with deliberation. It was evident that he was refreshed mentally and physically by the Maine victory. There was an assurance in his manner and voice which has not been equaled before on the tour. There was a large crowd in the theatre where the meeting was held, and Mr. Hughes was received with great cordiality.

"I come to you as the spokesman of a reunited party," Mr. Hughes said. "We have said that it was reunited; we have believed it was reunited; we have devoutly hoped it was reunited. Now, Maine proves that it is reunited.

"Whoever was skeptical about that before must hide his cynicism now. We shall abandon no efforts; we shall not change our plans or our aims, but we shall go forward, with renewed confidence, because the old State in the northeast corner has spoken in no uncertain voice.

"I am glad to speak for the reunited Republican Party because it is a great liberal party. It started as a liberal party; its best traditions are those of a liberal party. And today it faces the future with a truly national outlook and a progressive spirit."

Wants "Fairness and Truth."

Mr. Hughes stopped in the middle of a sentence aimed at the alleged shortcomings of the National Administration to address those who have criticised his attacks on Mr. Wilson and his advisers because they did not measure up in bitterness to the utterances of Colonel Roosevelt. There would be, he said, no change of attitude on his part.

"Our friends on the other side—for so I delight to call them," he started. Then he turned aside from his argument to say:

"It is a time for assessments, for appraisal, and candid statement. No one can object in this country to full and fair discussion. That is the very spirit of our institutions. But we are all friends, however divided politically. I do not desire, in speaking of those who do not agree with me, to manifest the slightest disrespect.

"If the argument is sound, it will carry without suggestion of personal enmity. We do not need that in our campaigns. What we need is fairness and the truth, and then let the electorate decide. That is American."

Mr. Hughes was careful also while here to keep politics out of the visit he paid to the training camp under charge of General Leonard Wood. He made no address there, although many of the rookies had expected to hear some message from him.

For two hours he was at the camp but he went there simply as a private citizen and devoted all of his time to an inspection of the manoeuvres from behind a fence that separated General Wood's tent from the parade grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes had dinner with General Wood. There was an evident desire on the part of Mr. Hughes to keep himself in the background.

John F. O'Brien and other political leaders here have assured Mr. Hughes that he will get a plurality of not less than 2,000 in Clinton County, and that Essex, Franklin, and St. Lawrence counties which are known as the other "border counties" will be safely in the Republican column. Mr. O'Brien said that Mr. Hughes was very popular among the upstate voters and that he would go to Manhattan with enough votes to give him a sweeping victory.

These rosy reports, coupled with the fact that there were many open evidences of cordiality on the part of the people, helped, on top of the Maine victory, to put Mr. Hughes in fine trim. He did not attempt vigor of utterance so much in his address tonight but he tackled each subject with a deliberation which showed his confidence.

Indorses the Training Camp.

Mr. Hughes spoke first on his views of the training camp and preparedness. He said:

"I heartily approve of the provision that has been made with respect to these training camp. I admire the patriotic spirit which leads men voluntarily to come forward and submit to discipline in the interest of the defense of their country. This is the land of the free and the home of the brave, and if

MAYOR BACKS PEACE MOVE

Signs Finding That Both Sides Have Broken Agreement.

TRANSIT SERVICE IMPROVED

WESTCHESTER STILL WALKS

Two Killed and Fourteen Injured by Strikebreakers' Car—Police Kept Busy.

Theodore P. Shonts and Frank Hedley, President and General Manager, respectively, of the New York Railways Company, flatly refused last night to accede to a demand made by the Public Service Commission and the Mayor earlier in the day to arbitrate the present traction strike.

Union leaders agreed to attend a conference this morning called under the auspices of the Public Service Commission for a preliminary discussion looking to a settlement, but they did not disclose what their attitude toward arbitration would be.

The traction heads will also attend, but in their statement issued last night they made it emphatic that there could be no arbitration. They charged that this suggestion had emanated from union sources, and that in justice to their loyal employes no arbitration could be considered.

The companies take the stand that they cannot submit to any person or body of men the question whether they have the right to make the "master and servant" contracts with their employes. That they should submit this question to arbitration was one of the findings returned by the Public Service Commission earlier in the day.

Messrs. Shonts and Hedley said, therefore, that they would not wait until this morning to announce their refusal to arbitrate.

In this, it is understood, they have the unanimous backing of the Directors, who met yesterday and voted that it be the policy of the companies to have no dealings with the union and to insist on the right to make individual contracts.

The Statement in Full.

Their statement in full follows:

To all Employes: When we invited you to form your own committees to confer regarding wages and working conditions you were assured that we would faithfully stand by any agreements which were made as the result of conferences with those committees.

We still intend to keep faith with you. You made through your committees a satisfactory contract for the next two years. So that there could be no doubt that the action of the committees represented the will of the individual employes no agreement was to be regarded as binding until each employe showed his approval by signing the working agreement.

Over ten thousand men have signed such agreements, and they will be carried out in good faith by us. You have rights under those agreements which you are entitled to have protected, and those rights will be protected.

We do not intend to submit to any person or body of men the question whether those agreements should have been made between you and us. We know by your loyal services in the past several days under the most trying conditions that you regard your agreement as sacred and inviolate. They mean the same to us.

Charges have been made that some of the men were induced to sign those agreements by fraud, threats, coercion, and intimidation. The best evidence that such charges are false is the fact that over ten thousand of you are today carrying them out by rendering service to us and to the public.

Will Not Deal With Union.

We have been asked to submit to arbitration the charges just mentioned. Our answer is that the charges and the request come from the same source. The source is the officers, agents, and members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. You have shown what you think of that association by refusing to have anything to do with it. We have decided that we will also have nothing to do with it. It has deliberately broken its agreement in this city and brought about a strike. You have been threatened with personal violence, insult, and abuse, and your women folk have been likewise threatened.

We will not yield to a request from such a source to let outsiders come between us and our employes.

We have been asked by the Mayor and Public Service Commission to resume our conferences with the Amalgamated Association. We were told at the close of their meeting this afternoon that we would not be expected to say anything until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and out of courtesy we said nothing to them at the time. But we did not agree to say nothing to our loyal men and we do not intend to wait until tomorrow to say to you that we will not resume conferences with the representatives or members of the Amalgamated Association.

The members of that association left the employment of this company and started this strike. We notified them that if they did that they would remain out of it's employment and that we could have nothing further to do with them. We meant what we said then and we stand by that statement now.

Expect Laws To Be Enforced.

Your right to work in this community for wages and under conditions satisfactory to you is guaranteed by the Constitution and laws of this country, and we expect that those who have taken an oath to support the Constitution and to enforce the laws will do their duty by you as we expect to do our duty by you and by

Shonts's Refusal to Arbitrate the Strike Issues; He Says the Request Comes from Union Sources

The refusal of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York Railways Company to accede to the Public Service Commission's demand that they arbitrate their right to make "master and servant" contracts with their employes is expressed, in a statement to their employes, in these words:

We do not intend to submit to any person or body of men the question whether these agreements should have been made between you and us. * * * Charges have been made that some of the men were induced to sign those agreements by fraud, threats, coercion, and intimidation. The best evidence that the charges are false is the fact that over 10,000 of you are today carrying them out by rendering service to us and the public.

We have been asked to submit to arbitration the charges just mentioned. Our answer is that the charges and the request come from the same source. The source is the officers, agents, and members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes.

We will not yield to a request from such a source to let outsiders come between us and our employes.

Fitzgerald Pledges Attendance at Hearing Today

Organizer William B. Fitzgerald of the carmen's union, in promising to attend the Public Service Commission's hearing today, would only say:

We were informed that there would be another session of the Mayor and commission Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, and we were requested to be there. Had we been present at the time the opinion was read we perhaps might have made some statement with reference thereto. In view of the fact, however, that we were not present and that there is going to be a session of the Mayor and commission Wednesday, at which we are to be present, I believe that, out of courtesy to the Mayor and commission, it is no more than right I reserve whatever I may have to say until that time.

RAW CREW'S CAR KILLS 2, HURTS 14

AIR BRAKE OUT OF SERVICE

Car Beyond Control on Steep Bronx Hill Crashes Into Jitney Truck.

Two persons were killed and fourteen injured shortly after daybreak yesterday at West Farms Square, the Bronx, in the first fatal accident of the present car strike. As a Bronx car, which had left the barns at 175th Street and Boston Road, turned the curve and started down the incline toward West Farms Square, the junction of Boston Road, Tremont Avenue, and Walker Avenue, Motorman Louis Isaacs of 210 East 100th Street lost control of it, and at the foot of the hill it crashed into a jitney automobile filled with persons going to work.

Evidence as to the qualifications of the strikebreaking motormen now running surface cars in New York, was brought out by Coroner William J. Flynn of the Bronx in his investigation of the accident.

Motorman Isaacs was held on a charge of homicide, and Richard Sheridan, the conductor, who lives at Mills Hotel No. 2, was detained as a material witness.

At the investigation a dozen motormen were questioned by Coroner Flynn and Assistant District Attorney William Quigley, and most of them admitted that their experience as motormen was limited. Two or three had had the full course of training given by one or another of the local car lines, but several had never tried to run a car before the strike of last month. Others got their experience in previous strikes, notably the one at Wilkesbarre, Penn., last Winter, and in Boston in 1912. Isaacs, who drove the car that did the damage yesterday, was making his first run of his present engagement with the Union Railway, though he was employed for a short time during the strike last month.

The accident happened shortly after 6 o'clock, when Isaacs and Sheridan took out the second car which left the barns at 175th Street and Boston Road. The only passenger was Patrolman William O. Scheer, doing guard duty.

Air-Pressure Tank Open.

The pressure tank on which the airbrake depends was later found to be open, indicating that the air-brake was not available for use; and it is understood that Isaacs admitted to Coroner Flynn that he didn't know anything about the hand-brake. The car gained dangerous speed down the hill, and the efforts of Policeman Scheer, who swung the trolley pole off the wire, were too late to stop it. At the foot of the hill the car ran off the track and it plunged straight toward the row of jitneys along the curb.

The nearest automobile was that of Julius Grossman, 1,526 St. Lawrence Avenue, the Bronx, who had brought three passengers down from near the Mount Vernon line and was just giving them their change when the car swept toward them. The passengers, who were safely out, got away, and Grossman himself escaped just before the street car struck the hind wheels of his machine and wrecked it. Just beyond was a motor truck, fitted up with temporary seats, which was being employed by Church E. Gates & Co., a lumber firm, with head offices at 152d Street and the East River, to gather up employes in the Unionport region of the Bronx and carry them to their work. The truck was full of passengers, and none of them had a chance to escape before the street car struck them. The wooden superstructure of the truck was crumpled up, some of its passengers were hurled out

TRACTION LINES IMPROVE SERVICE

SUBWAY NEARER TO NORMAL

Only Westchester Tied Up Completely—Fund for Men Loyal to Companies.

The traction companies had a little the best of the battle with their striking employes yesterday. Only in Westchester did the public fail to get any relief.

Bronx dwellers, who have suffered more severely than those of Manhattan, got more than double the trolley service of Monday. Strikebreakers were used to move many of the cars.

All the Metropolitan district felt the benefit of markedly improved subway service both in number of trains and maintenance of schedules.

The elevated was somewhat better than on the day before, but did not gain as much as the underground lines. It ran fewer trains.

The New York Railways Company succeeded in keeping in motion without the use of strikebreakers 278 green cars—its best record since the strike started.

Strikebreakers were used again on the red cars, but the Third Avenue Railway ran only one more car than on the previous day. Second Avenue service improved a trifle and the officials announced that they had joined in the Third Avenue's war of extermination on the Amalgamated.

Two deaths and many injuries in a collision in the Bronx were ascribed to operation of a Union Railway trolley by a green strikebreaking motorman. A fall to death from a Sixth Avenue elevated train was blamed on overcrowding. The police contended with more violent disorder than on preceding days.

An ordinance prohibiting employment of inexperienced strikebreakers on traction lines was introduced in the Board of Aldermen.

The movement for a sympathy strike of men in trades affecting traction operation made little, if any, progress.

The public suffered, but less than on Monday, and transit was far from "paralyzed."

Staten Island and Queens motormen will decide today whether to strike. They are not expected to go out.

There was no trolley service in Manhattan, the Bronx, or the affected Westchester area after dark.

MORE SURFACE CARS RUN.

Third Avenue and Bronx Lines Maintain a Better Schedule.

Marked improvement in service was achieved yesterday by some of the surface lines involved in the transit strike, but there was no trolley transportation in most of Westchester, where Frederick W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Railway, persisted in his refusal to attempt to run any cars over the subsidiary lines in Yonkers, Mount Vernon, and New Rochelle. All surface cars in Manhattan and the Bronx were once more run into the barns at dark.

The most radical gains were by the Third Avenue Railway Company in Manhattan and the Union Railways Company, its Bronx subsidiary. They used strikebreakers freely, and the strike leaders insisted that the larger number of cars moved was not to be interpreted as measuring desertions from their ranks.

FRANK HEDLEY,
Vice President and General Manager
Approved:
THEODORE P. SHONTS.
Dated New York, Sept. 12, 1916.

Will Be Polite, Says Shonts.

Shortly after 5 P. M. yesterday President Shonts at the Public Service Commission received the recommendations of that body. He immediately hurried to a conference in the Hotel Belmont with other traction officials to frame the statement to his employes, which it is believed will be the text of his reply to the commission today.

As the hour approached midnight Mr. Shonts emerged from the conference room carrying the statement. He was asked if the reply to the commission today would be substantially the same as the statement.

"That question I will not answer before 11 o'clock tomorrow," said Mr. Shonts. "The answer, however, will be very polite.

"There will be no negotiations of any kind with Mr. Fitzgerald."

The commission has no power to compel either the traction officials or the union leaders to submit to arbitration or to make any agreements whatever.

It has power to restore service, and can, if it considers such action necessary, apply to the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus compelling the traction companies to operate a normal complement of cars. This would throw the entire question into the courts.

Another and a longer method would be for the commission to ask the State Legislature to adopt some measure compelling the carriers to submit the differences between them and their employes to arbitration.

FINDS BOTH SIDES WRONG.

P. S. Board Majority Demands Arbitration and Mayor Concurs.

Mayor Mitchel and a majority of the Public Service Commissioners, who have been hearing testimony of the causes of the transit strike, returned a finding yesterday that the agreement of Aug. 6, under which the first traction controversy was settled, and which was orally accepted by General Manager Frank Hedley for the Interborough Company on Aug. 30, was still in existence, and that both the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes and the heads of the companies were obligated to arbitrate their present differences.

Officials of the union were requested by the Mayor and the Commissioners to call off the strikes and to report their acquiescence at 11 o'clock this morning, when they and the officials of the roads have been asked to appear at the offices of the commission.

The Mayor, who had been sitting with the Commissioners by courtesy, agreed with all the members of that body that the issue of trade unionism was not a part of the controversy.

The finding, which was not concurred in by Commissioners Hayward and Hodge, was a victory for the union, to the extent that it called on the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to arbitrate the fairness of its individual service, or "master and servant," contracts, and was a triumph for the company in that the union was not upheld in having called its men out on strikes.

Union Heads Fail to Appear.

The ruling was reported after Mayor Mitchel and the Commissioners had spent the greater part of three days going over its provisions, and was read by Chairman Straus after Julius Henry Cohen, special counsel for the commission, had tried in vain to compel the attendance of the officials of the street car men's organization. These leaders had promised to hold themselves in readiness to go to the rooms of the commission whenever called, according to Mr. Cohen, but had found at the last moment that business elsewhere prevented them from appearing.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough and New York Railways Companies, and Frank Hedley, General Manager, and their counsel were present.

Briefly, the findings were:

First—That an agreement between the Amalgamated Association and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company did exist, and that it was based on oral assurances made to the union by Frank Hedley, General Manager of the company, on Aug. 30 last.

Second—That the question of whether the distribution of individual contracts constituted a violation of the agreements (of Aug. 6 and Aug. 30,) was a proper subject for arbitration, the contentions of the Interborough Company to the contrary notwithstanding.

Third—That the charge that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company sought to obtain acceptance of the individual contracts by fraud, misrepresentation, coercion, or intimidation was also a proper subject of arbitration.

Fourth—That the companies and the union should proceed with their conferences from the point where they were broken off.

Fifth—That, the agreement of Aug. 6 being still in existence, there was no justification for the present strike.

Commissioners Hayward and Hodge dissented from that part of the finding of the Mayor and the majority commissioners which imposed an obligation on the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to arbitrate its right to send out individual contracts.

The two commissioners contended that the "master and servant" contracts were sent out by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company before Mr. Hedley on Aug. 30 orally pledged that company to any of the provisions of the agreement signed by the New York Railways Company on Aug. 6 [illegible] the agreement of Aug. 6 [illegible] An official explanation was [illegible] for settling the disputes on all the lines.

Car Strike Makes Crush on New York Central and New Haven.

Extraordinary measures were taken by the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads yesterday to meet unprecedented demands on their local train services, caused by the trolley strike in the Bronx and Westchester, and the congestion on the subway and elevated.

Traffic on the Central between the Fordham and 125th Street Stations and Grand Central was the heaviest in the history of the road, the New Haven being called on to haul the greatest number of local station passengers that ever swarmed into its trains.

Full Text of the Public Service Board Ruling Placing the Blame for the New Traction Strike

Following is the text of the ruling by the Public Service Commission yesterday interpreting the agreement of Aug. 6, by which the recent traction strike was settled, and recommending that the present strike be declared off at once and the matters in dispute be submitted to arbitration under the Aug. 6 agreement, as interpreted:

By the Mayor of the City of New York and Public Service Commission for the First District:

The agreement of Aug. 6 was made with deliberation and care. It constitutes a statement of rights and principles. At the earnest solicitation of both sides, the Mayor of the city and the Chairman of the commission underwrote that agreement, which meant that they would use their best efforts and their official power to secure full compliance. To safeguard both sides, but more particularly the interests of the public, a complete method of arbitration was provided, in place of the strike and the lockout. For this purpose the agreement definitely provided that:

> All disputes that may arise between the company and the employes in the future on which they cannot mutually agree shall be submitted to arbitration as herein provided.

The various witnesses who appeared before us testified that they believe in the principle of arbitration and wish to see it sustained. Indeed, much of the difficulty that has arisen is due to charges and countercharges that the principle of arbitration has been violated. All of the witnesses concur in the opinion that the agreement of Aug. 6 was a fair, reasonable, and workable agreement provided it was observed in letter and in spirit.

The Interborough Agreement.

On Aug. 10, when the commission filed its memorandum, there was no agreement covering the subways and the elevated. On Aug. 30, it appears from the testimony before us, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company received a committee of its men, members of the Amalgamated Association, attended by the same advisers and spokesmen who appeared before us in the matter of the other railways. After discussion, Mr. Hedley informed Mr. Fitzgerald and his associates that, as the same men governed the policies of the Interborough as governed the policies of the railways company, they might proceed upon the assumption that the principles and policies embodied in the railways agreement of Aug. 6 would be regarded as controlling in the case of the Interborough. It was definitely agreed to by both that the principle of freedom to organize, the principle of freedom from intimidation or coercion, and the principle of arbitration should govern. Although this agreement was not reduced to writing and signed by the parties, it was approved by President Shonts and was relied upon by both sides in their subsequent negotiations.

Prior to and during the hearings before us, the officers of the Interborough sought to persuade their men not to join the Amalgamated Union. After the agreement of Aug. 6 they advised their men to form an organization of their own, as suggested by the President and Vice President of the company. The company stated that these suggestions were favorably acted upon and that nearly 10,000 out of some 11,000 voted to carry out this policy, and that they selected committees to speak for them and elected officers. The company contends that, as a result of the conference between the committees thus selected and the officers, working standards of wages and other matters were agreed upon; that this arrangement was submitted individually to the men and that approximately 10,000 of them signed separately an identical memorandum or agreement embodying these terms. The company officials claim that this was done freely and fairly without violation of any of the principles of the agreement of Aug. 6 and that the men were permitted to and did exercise their constitutional rights. On the other hand, it is claimed by the officials of the Amalgamated Association that such a form of contract was in violation of the agreement of Aug. 6 and 30, and that these contracts thus signed by the men were secured through fraud, misrepresentation, coercion and intimidation.

The Union's Stipulation.

It appears that on the 30th of August the officials of the Amalgamated first heard of the distribution of these contracts when the working standards were submitted to them as a basis for discussion. As soon as they had their counsel's opinion of the effect of this agreement upon membership in the union, they suggested that in addition to the four clauses there should be added the following:

> Fifth—Nothing in this agreement is to be held to preclude any employe from joining any organization or any union, and will not preclude him from participating in any movement toward the betterment of his working conditions or the increase of his wages; and in the event that he sees fit to join such an organization with such objects in mind, it will not be considered a breach of this agreement.

It appears from the minutes of the conference and the direct testimony before us that, if such a course had been accepted, difficulty might not have arisen at this time. [illegible]

Situation on Sept. 6.

It appears that by the 6th of September the men were in the frame of mind of believing that the company was seeking (as their counsel puts it) to "exterminate their union," and the company officials were of opinion that the men were seeking to "paralyze" the entire transit system of New York as a means of coercing the withdrawal of the [illegible] secure the men's signatures. In the first instance the Mayor of New York determined that the men should be reinstated; in the second instance the company may have been right or may have been wrong, dependent upon circumstances which were subject to proof and subject to investigation. The spokesmen for both parties now testify before us that this latter question could have been disposed of by processes provided for in the agreement of Aug. 6. Nevertheless, on the 1st of September, at a meeting of the Interborough men, resolutions were adopted demanding the return of the "working agreements" and authorizing their officers to call a strike if necessary.

It is conceded by the spokesmen for the men that at this time no effort was made to utilize the processes or machinery of arbitration provided in the agreement of Aug. 30, and on the 1st of September a communication was sent to the Chairman of the Public Service Commission by counsel for the men, inclosing a copy of a letter to the Mayor.

Attention is directed to the fact that in this communication it is expressly stated that no complaint is made "at this time" to the commission or to the Mayor or to the Chairman of the commission. Nor does there appear in the resolutions adopted by the men anything indicative on their part of readiness to follow the methods provided for in the agreement for arbitration. Yet the claim is made before us by the spokesmen for the union that on the 30th of August there was an obligation on the part of the Interborough to arbitrate all differences that might arise, even though they involved questions of personal honor.

Owe a Duty to the Public.

It is our opinion, after listening to both sides and carefully reviewing the testimony, that whatever may be the condition of the mind of the officers of the union or the officers of the company, there is a clear duty to the public which the underwriters of the agreement of Aug. 6 and this commission have the right to assert. This controversy does not involve the issue of trade unionism in this city.

Today, as on the 6th of August, the clear legal and moral principles governing the situation remain the same. Each side believes that it is standing for its rights, but the rights of both sides are subordinate to the rights of the public, and it remains as true today as on the 6th of August that the public's right to have controversy upon its railroads settled peaceably and without resort to a war of any kind is a right superior to the rights of either the men or the company.

We said in our memorandum of Aug. 10:

> The right of men freely to organize is a legal right, no longer subject to question. The right of men freely to select spokesmen or advisers is a corollary of this right. The right to deal or decline to deal collectively with an organization is likewise a legal right. So, too, the right to employ or to refuse to employ members of a certain organization is a legal right, justified morally in its exercise, according to the circumstances of each case. But the right of the State to have its public utilities operated safely, efficiently, and continuously is also a legal right. Which of these rights is paramount? The rights of the people, or the rights of workers, or employers? Whatever the application of these rights may be in private ventures, the right and duty of the State in respect to its public utilities are clearly paramount. It is true that none of these rights—of the State, the worker, or the employer—are arbitrable. But the adjustment of these rights so that each may be respected and properly balanced involved important considerations. While all of these parties have clear rights, the manner of exercising them is of the highest importance. The methods commonly accepted as moral are the methods of argument and persuasion, and the methods condemned are those of coercion or oppression. Neither should the men coerce acceptance of their views, nor the company coerce acceptance of its views. * * *

We also said in that memorandum:

> Nothing is so important and so vital to the preservation of enlightened and orderly means of disposing of industrial disputes than that compacts solemnly made shall be solemnly kept. This applies to the employers and to the men, both.

The Agreement Still Binds.

We believe that the agreement has not been destroyed by the acts of the parties. Though it has been violated, the moral obligation to maintain it still continues. It was deliberately made, and guaranteed by the Mayor of the City of New York and the Chairman of this commission. The public was also a party to this agreement. Whatever the other two parties may do they cannot deprive the public—the third party—of its rights under the agreement. Both parties asked for and received the sanction and guarantee of the City of New York and the Public Service Commission that each would perform its duty. Of course, one side or the other, or both, might violate the agreement, but they could not destroy their obligations under it. For, after all, it merely stated in terms what both had admitted and agreed were basic rights. The agreement contains nothing about wages or hours or working conditions; it was not an ordinary contract. It was not a trade union agreement. It was an agreement upon principles. In addition, it provided for a method of arbitration of differences and disputes. It was the clear intention of all parties concerned [illegible]

STRIKE HURTS RETAIL TRADE.

Merchants Await Opportunity to Intervene for Peace.

The traction strike is affecting business in the retail section of the city, and a canvass yesterday showed that many merchants were concerned over the situation, yet the consensus seemed to be that at present there was nothing the merchants could do to remedy matters. All would welcome some clear-cut issue which would give them an opportunity to do something toward bringing the strike to a close, regardless of which side won or lost.

An official of the Merchants' Association said yesterday:

"Our members have of course been discussing the strike among themselves, and realize that its continuance will work considerable harm to mercantile interests. There seems to be nothing to do at present. The sentiment seems to be to wait for a few days and watch the developments. If the strike should extend, it would bring about a situation the gravity of which might cause renewed efforts to be made. At present we do not think business downtown is being hurt to any considerable extent."

REQUESTS INQUIRY INTO 3D AV. STRIKE

Counsel for Railway Co. Sends Appeal to Chairman Straus of Service Board.

WOULD QUIZ LABOR MEN

Letter Asserts That Public Is Entitled to Full Information as to Who Violated Agreement.

Alfred A. Cook, counsel for the Third Avenue Railway Company, in a letter sent to Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, yesterday requested that, in view of the fact that the agreement entered into by the officials of the Third Avenue Railway Company with their employes, which was "underwritten" by the Public Service Commission, had been "so flagrantly dishonored," the commission call Messrs. Mahon, Fitzgerald, Frayne, and associates and ask for an explanation under oath of their "repudiation of a solemn agreement." He asked also that the commission definitely advise the community as to the responsibility for the latest strike on the Third Avenue system.

Should the labor witnesses be called Mr. Cook wants the privilege of questioning them on behalf of the company which he represents. His letter, after reciting the circumstances leading to the signing of the agreement and the present strike, says:

The officials of the Third Avenue Railway Company assumed that as the agreement with the men was "underwritten" by the Public Service Commission and the Mayor of the city, it would be respected, and did not expect that, to serve the purpose of the moment, the men who had signed it would immediately ignore it and would defy the public officers who had labored to bring the parties into unison.

Attempts were made yesterday at the hearing before the Public Service Commission to justify the calling out of the men and the breaking of the agreement with the Third Avenue system. The reasons advanced were spurious, and this must be evident when they are contrasted with the sworn testimony of Mr. Fitzgerald before the commission on Sept. 7, 1916, just a day or two before the men struck. That the Third Avenue system has done everything that it was called upon to do is evidenced by what Mr. Fitzgerald said (P. 573-574):

Mr. Cohen—What is the situation with reference to the Third Avenue?

Mr. Fitzgerald—Upon the Third Avenue system there has been a skeleton form of working conditions worked out from our demands and the company's position, which was submitted to them yesterday. That is in a state of conference. Conferences have gone along very well.

Mr. Cohen—So far as you know, peace and harmony prevail and the method provided for adjusting differences is working satisfactorily?

Mr. Fitzgerald—Yes, so far as I know today.

In view of the fact that an agreement made with the Public Service Commission and the Mayor of the City has been so flagrantly dishonored, I would respectfully request the commission to call before it Messrs. Mahon, Fitzgerald, Frayne, and their associates and ask for an explanation, under oath, of this repudiation of a solemn agreement, to the end that the commission may definitely advise the community as to the responsibility for this latest strike on the lines of the Third Avenue system.

The people of this community demand transit service, and when it is stopped they are entitled to know the reason. The breaking of promises made to the commission and the Mayor and the willful and unconscionable repudiation of a "sacred agreement" (as Mr. Fitzgerald called it in the statement issued by him) are matters as to which the public are entitled to be fully informed, and the moment invites a thorough and vigorous investigation. In connection with such investigation I would ask of the commission the privilege, after the counsel for the commission has concluded his examination, of interrogating the witnesses in behalf of the Third Avenue system, parties to the agreement.

I know that many unions deservedly enjoy the respect of the employer and the employe, but when a union seeks to foist itself upon an unwilling community and betrays its obligations and treats with contempt the representatives of the State and city, the men who are forced to join it should be appropriately advised of the situation their leaders have created for them.

BANKER STARTS FUND FOR LOYAL CARMEN

Shonts Hears of Plan to Raise $100,000 for Distribution; But Keeps Name Secret.

President Shonts of the Interborough last night announced that a banker telephoned to him that he was forming a committee of citizens to raise a fund of $100,000 to be distributed among the loyal employes of the Interborough and the New York Railways Companies. When asked for the name of the banker Mr. Shonts said:

"That is his enterprise, and it is only proper that he should be the one to reveal his name."

Mr. Shonts added that he was satisfied with the progress the Interborough and the New York Railways systems were making toward restoring normal service on those lines.

Company Advises Silence.

Isaacs and Sheridan, when brought to the stand, were both advised not to answer by Joseph Donohue, attorney for the company, who also represented the two men. But other strikebreakers told a good deal about the methods of hiring the men and of the officers who control [illegible] as twenty-five.

Some Pointed Questions.

"In your judgment," asked the Coroner, "is such an examination sufficient proof that a man is competent to run a car?" Elliott said he couldn't say that it was, but that it was a mere preliminary; that he supposed the Union Railway gave them a more thorough examination at the barns. He didn't remember Isaacs.

What really did happen at the barns was told by Arthur J. Reickard of 2,218 East Fifteenth Street, Sheepshead Bay, who is Superintendent of the men in the [illegible] Street barns for the Washington Agency, and has under him a Captain and five Lieutenants. Reickard said he knew how to operate a car "in a general way," but that he had never actually run a car more than ten or twelve feet. He assigned the crews to the cars, he said, and watched them for the first block or so on their way. He said he could tell pretty well by the way a motorman handled his car in that distance whether he was fit to operate it or not.

"Do the men undergo any further test?" asked the Coroner.

No Examination at Barn.

"No," said Reickard. "They come up from the recruiting office at 16 Bowery with their cards. If the card bears the word 'motorman' it is understood that they have passed the examination down there."

Charles Reed, Superintendent of the Washington Agency's strikebreakers in the entire Bronx, said that of a batch of twenty-five motormen sent up from 16 Bowery to the Kingsbridge barn seventeen had been rejected; but Mr. Elliott said he had heard nothing of it.

Reed, Reickard, and Elliott will testify again today in the hearing, which will be resumed at 2 P. M. Others who will be called are Harry Carrigan, Superintendent of the Union Railway, and Captain John T. Vickery and Alexander Cohen, President and Secretary, respectively, of the Washington Detective Agency.

STRIKEBREAKERS ASK MAYOR FOR AID

Delegations Call to Say They Were "Slugged" in Car Barns and Want to be Sent Home.

MANY SICK OF THE JOB

Charge "Keepers" Threatened Them with Pistols When They Demanded Their Pay.

Scores of roughly dressed men who said they were strikebreakers and told stories of having been "slugged" continued to besiege the offices of the Mayor and the Public Service Commission yesterday with petitions that their employers be compelled to pay them their wages and that they be provided with transportation back to their homes. They gave dramatic emphasis to their woes by pointing out bruises on their heads and faces which they said had been inflicted upon them by their "prison" keepers near the various car barns of the Interborough and New York Railways Companies.

Mayor Mitchel was not able to see the men, because he was busy most of the day conferring with the Public Service Commissioners, but it was made clear to the strikebreakers that the Police Department could not be expected to act as a collection agency to enforce the payment of their wages.

One of those who went to the offices of the Public Service Commission, and who was slightly better dressed than the rest, gave his name as R. W. Wallis of Boston. He said he represented sixty men who had been imported from Boston, all of whom were ill and anxious to get back to their homes. Like those who appeared before the Public Service Commission Monday, these men, Wallis said, had been employed by the Bergoff Brothers & Waddell Labor Agency of 120 Liberty Street, and, like the others, had found considerable difficulty in obtaining their wages.

The Boston strikebreaker had hardly left the office of the commission when four more "emergency employes" came in, and put in a plea for more than eighty of their fellows who, the four said, were mobilized in City Hall Park, very hungry, out of funds, and thoroughly discouraged. Their stories, like those of some of the other callers at the City Hall and at the offices of the commission, contained grim references to "knucks," "rods," and other weapons supposed to have been displayed for their benefit by their "keepers."

Inquiry at the general offices of the Interborough and the New York Railways Companies was met by the statement that the companies did not hold themselves responsible for the payment of wages to strikebreakers. They said the men would have to look to the labor agencies.

It was said at the office of the Commissioner of Health yesterday that the department had inspected the barns where strikebreakers were housed and had found sanitary conditions not in violation of the law. Inspectors found that, though quarters were crowded, ventilation and other sanitary arrangements were adequate.

MANY STRIKEBREAKERS QUIT.

One Hundred Called at Labor Agency and Demand Their Pay.

About 100 striking strikebreakers invaded the offices of Bergoff Brothers & Waddell, labor agents, on the fourth floor of 120 Liberty Street, yesterday and demanded their pay, stating that the conditions under which they are working had become unbearable, and that they wished to be returned to their homes, a promise they said they received when they accepted employment as strikebreakers.

They stormed the waiting room, and for an hour or more indulged in a protest meeting during the course of which they denounced the men who had employed them and made charges of brutal treatment against the men employed to guard them. Some of them asserted they had been made the victims of petty grafters and had been compelled in some instances to divide what money they received with strong-arm men where the strikebreakers were quartered.

The leader of the crowd was Charles Meyer of Chicago, who was hired last week for strike duty as a motorman, and who arrived from Chicago last Thursday.

"When they signed us up in Chicago," said Meyer, "they said all motormen would receive $5 a day while the strike lasted and all trainmen $3. When we reached New York they told us we would only get $1."

The manager of the agency said the men would be paid at the end of their first week of service, which had not arrived.

Manager Hedley of the Third Avenue system were jubilant last night over the result of their day's efforts, and insisted that the return to normal, which they had prophesied from the beginning, was now a certainty.

Strikers of the Third Avenue lines met in Lyceum Hall yesterday afternoon and cheered statements of their leaders that their efforts to tie up the red car lines had met splendid success. The speakers decried the use of strikebreakers and when Louis Fridiger, counsel for the Amalgamated, heard of the accident on the green car system, resulting in death and injury, he assured the men gathered in the hall that "the beginning of the end" was at hand.

Thirty-nine red cars were in operation at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, sixty-five at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and seventy-four at nightfall, when service ceased. This represented a gain of but a single car over the day before, but the company hoped to do better today.

That the Third Avenue officials had devoted their day's efforts largely to the Union Railway's lines in the Bronx was proved by the fact that operation in that borough was more than doubled. The greatest number of cars the company was able to move on Monday was forty. Yesterday it had sixty-four in service at 8 o'clock in the morning and by noon had more than doubled the maximum of the day before, with eighty-eight trolleys plying over the lines.

The resulting improvement in conditions was a boon to Bronx dwellers, who have suffered real hardship because of the great distances thousands of them have had to walk.

The Second Avenue Railroad joined the Third Avenue in declaring a war of extermination on the Amalgamated. Receiver John Beaver persisted in his refusal to employ strikebreakers, and said their jobs were still open to the "deserters" from the blue cars, but that they would have to return as individuals if they came back at all. He said police protection had become necessary because his lines traversed neighborhoods where disorder was likely to occur. The Second Avenue company kept twenty-three cars going all day—a gain of but one over Monday.

The situation on the New York Railways Company was better yesterday than on any day since the men walked out.

The fact that the front of the pay-as-you-enter cars had been protected with heavy wire netting, making the motormen safer from rocks, bottles, and the like, apparently encouraged some of them to return to work, for at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon there were 273 green cars in operation—a gain of 11 over Monday.

Company officials appeared satisfied with the slow improvement through efforts to induce their regular men to come back to work. They still refrained from using strikebreakers.

SUBWAY SERVICE BETTER.

More and Longer Trains Underground, but Fewer on Elevated.

Both sides to the Interborough struggle asserted the day's drive had fortified their positions, but for the first time the experiences of random travelers came nearer bearing out the contentions of the company than those of the men.

There were those who described overhead and underground transit as demoralized and their individual experiences as "awful," yet at the 6 o'clock rush hour at Brooklyn Bridge there were actually seats to be had in some subway trains, and the platform crowds were not indicative of such overflow as has characterized previous evenings.

In addition to moving more subway trains, the Interborough managed to make up more of them to normal length than on other days since the walk-out of its men.

In actual service to passengers the elevated didn't show up as well. Schedules were irregular, and the headway at times between trains noticeably lengthened. At the Brooklyn Bridge terminal of the Third and Second Avenue lines there was a severe degree of congestion at morning and night rush hours, and during the former trains became stalled at one period from the southern terminal almost to Fourteenth Street.

At 1 o'clock yesterday morning there were but forty-nine trains moving on all elevated lines combined. The company seemed to increase the number at will as the workers' hours approached, and by 5 o'clock in the afternoon it had 218 trains in motion. That was thirty-five less than it succeeded in operating on Monday, the first business day of the general transit strike.

Interborough employes engaged in the fight with the company met yesterday afternoon in Lyceum Hall in East Eighty-sixth Street to hear speeches from General Organizer William B. Fitzgerald and others, telling them victory was in their grasp and that their only need was to remain steadfast in refusing to work for the company unless the Interborough would consent to tear up the "master and servant" individual contracts which brought on the walkout. Two thousand men shouted in one voice that they would not desert the union.

Strike leaders were asked last night if they had contemplated as yet any peace negotiations with the Interborough.

"We have not reached that point yet," answered Hugh Frayne. "We are always willing to listen to any reasonable proposition but we have made none ourselves."

Assertions made at the strikers' meeting that many Interborough motormen and other operatives were deserting the service were denied with emphasis by company officials who declared the service they were furnishing afforded the best refutation of such contentions.

It was announced that both subway and elevated lines of the Interborough had handled traffic far in excess of that of the even date of last year. Operating heads admitted that the lack of adequate surface travel facilities accounted in large measure for the increased demand, but pointed out that the significance of bigger business lay in the fact that the company was able to handle it when offered despite the strike.

STRIKE LEADER DENIES CLASH WITH GOMPERS

Fitzgerald Charges Traction Heads Were Responsible for False Report.

W. B. Fitzgerald, General Organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, denied yesterday that there was friction between him and Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor. In a statement to the public Fitzgerald said in part:

"Through information, the source of which I have no exact knowledge, but the authority for which I can readily surmise, the press yesterday was led to publish a false report of an alleged quarrel between myself and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.

"I emphatically deny that there has been any friction or any suggestion of friction as between myself and Mr. Gompers, and to this Mr. Gompers will subscribe.

"The facts of the case are that we all sat in conference on last Sunday afternoon and had a free discussion of the situation in all its phases. There was no attack upon myself or anybody else, and I made no attack upon Mr. Gompers or any other conferee.

"The result of the conference was satisfactory to all present. I leave the question of veracity to the public mind, and believe that in its discretion and judgment the public mind will fix the responsibility for this and all other false statements which have or may be issued to prejudice our cause just where it belongs—at the door of the Shonts-Hedley-Whitridge crowd of tax looters.

"Equally malicious, and emanating from the same sources, is the statement that there has been bitter war between myself and our counsel. The test of that is that our lawyers are in conference with us in every session of the committee, and that they will remain with us to the end."

GAY STREET CROWDS MAKE STRIKE A JOKE

TAKE STRANGERS IN AUTOS

So Many Policemen Get "Lifts" It Looks as Though a Wholesale Arrest of Motorists Was On.

An observer might have thought yesterday, after watching the automobiles that had been pressed into emergency service on account of the strike, that the New York police were arresting automobilists in droves. Streets ordinarily unfrequented by automobiles were crowded with them yesterday, and in one block where they were thick policemen were noticed on the running boards of six at the same time. In numerous other cases they were riding in the rear seats.

The policemen, however, were not arresting the drivers for violations of the traffic laws or other offenses, and riding with them to the police station, as is sometimes done when such arrests are made. They were simply getting a gratuitous "lift."

Under normal conditions, policemen ride free on surface cars, but the paucity of surface car service left them without their usual means of getting about their work. First a few hit on the plan of jumping on the running boards of taxicabs going in their direction. Then word was passed around, and by last evening the custom had become general and had been extended to include private cars when their owners or drivers were willing.

A Typical Experience.

"Hey! Are you going up as far as Fourteenth Street?" a policeman at Lafayette and Grand Street called to a man driving a touring car up Lafayette Street during the rush hour last evening. The man said he was.

"Can I jump in?" the bluecoat asked, smiling.

This automobilist's experience was typical. The requests were taken good-naturedly as a rule, and frequently drivers went out of their way to accommodate their bluecoated passengers. Both police and traction company officials have commented on the good-natured spirit in which not only the automobilists but the rest of the traveling public have put up with the extraordinary conditions resultant from the strike.

Not only regular "jitneys" but many private cars have been pressed into "jitney" service, the usual charge per passenger being a dime despite the nickname. Many automobilists are also helping persons home without accepting fares. A new sort of freemasonry in the street crowds has been the result.

In the Bronx and Harlem last evening, as the crowds were on their way home, it was a common thing to hear persons in corner crowds hailing passing autos and asking for "a lift." And it was a common thing to see the request granted.

Similar crowds, particularly young persons, took delight in hailing limousines or obviously high-priced touring cars carrying their owners home. The more elegant the car, the more certain was some one on a corner to call out to its occupants, "Jitney? Jitney?"

The expressions on the faces of the occupants were in many cases interesting studies in outraged indignation.

Country Autos Come to Town.

The strike, automobilists say, has brought more automobiles into the city streets than ever before. Many persons who live in the suburbs or outlying sections of town, and who have always kept their automobiles at home for pleasure use, have been "commuting" in them since the strike.

This means of transportation, however, is exceedingly slow now, because of congestion. One person who started commuting in his car when the strike commenced said yesterday he had to allow three times as long for the trip to his office as he had done when able to depend on street cars and subway. Yesterday morning, when the downtown streets were jammed with automobilists, many were seen to desert their autos when they got in walking distance of their offices and leave them to the chauffeurs to take home.

Old-fashioned buggies, moving vans, trucks of all kinds, and every other conceivable sort of vehicle was again pressed into service to help crowds get to and from work yesterday.

With few policemen on patrol duty, downtown New York became a peddlers' paradise. For hours peddlers' wagons jammed the narrow side streets below Fulton Street. A huckster would find a profitable location and remain stationary for three or four hours without a policeman appearing to make him move on. In the meantime automobiles and trucks jammed frequently in the narrow streets and blockades were numerous.

On many downtown streets, too, the absence of the usual number of policemen brought joy to the hearts of office boys, and during the luncheon hour there were crap games in progress in the immediate vicinity of nearly every one of the large office buildings.

An Odd Street Car "Tie Up."

A truckload of fruit broke down on Grand Street, near Lafayette, in the afternoon, blocking the northbound Fourth and Madison Avenue car tracks and the eastbound Grand Street tracks for half an hour. Ordinarily this would have created a car tie-up for blocks, but at the end of the half hour there were just one Grand Street car and three Madison Avenue cars waiting to get past.

In the uptown districts, particularly those in which many of the laboring class live, the term "Scab" was shouted at the conductors and motormen as surface cars passed, and on the roofs of apartment houses on Eighth Avenue, just north of 110th Street, policemen could be seen patroling the roofs to prevent the hurling of missiles at elevated trains.

The points at which congestion was greatest during the day were the Grand Central subway station, Brooklyn Bridge, and the South Ferry terminus of the elevated.

PLURALITY IN MAINE GROWS TO 13,800

TOTAL VOTE IS 150,000

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—Returns today from outlying counties and from the Texas border, where the Maine National Guardsmen cast their votes, show that Carl E. Milliken, the Republican candidate for Governor, defeated Governor Oakley C. Curtis, Democrat, by 13,800 votes in Monday's election. The total vote cast was the largest in the history of the State, approximately 150,000.

These figures have not been approached since 1880, the year the Democratic and Greenback Parties fused, when the total was 147,852. In 1898 the total was 85,720. In the last Presidential year and two years ago it fell below 142,000.

Indicated pluralities for the Republican candidates were confirmed by a revision of the vote. The Republicans will have solid delegations in both branches of Congress and will easily control both Houses of the State Legislature.

The county vote as usual controlled the election. The cities gave a total plurality of 51 for Governor Curtis, as against a total of 6,000 received by him two years ago.

Maine, by a vote of about four to one, gave popular approval of the State law limiting the employment of women and children to fifty-four hours a week.

In the Second Congressional District complete returns gave White, Republican, a plurality of 630 over McGillicuddy, Democrat. The vote was 19,510 to 18,880.

The complete vote in the First Congressional District gave Goodall, Republican, 20,350, and Stevens, Democrat, 16,709.

Party leaders were especially interested in the vote cast by the Second Maine Regiment at the border, the result of which was received here today. It stood: Milliken, 300; Curtis, 167; Hale, 297; Johnson, 167; Fernald, 305; Sills, 161.

Hughes Congratulates Ham.

Charles E. Hughes sent the following telegram to Frank J. Ham, Chairman of the Republican State Committee today:

"Telegram received, heartiest congratulations on splendid victory."

It was in response to a message sent by Mr. Ham announcing the result of the election. All during today congratulations have been showered upon Chairman Ham.

"The National Committee conveys to you its heartiest congratulations on the great victory won by the united labors of the party in Maine. You have set the pace for the whole nation."

John Hays Hammond, President of the National League of Republican Clubs, sent the following message:

"Extend hearty congratulations to you in appreciation of the excellent work you have done, continuing to the grand victory which presages national victory in November."

Chairman Ham tonight made the following statement on the election:

"The sweeping victory of the Republican ticket at the election on Monday may be attributed to several causes. The members of the State Committee, aided by the members of the county, city, and town committees, stood solidly back of their candidates and worked until the last voter had dropped his ballot in the box. The principles laid down in the Republican platforms, both State and national, were those principles that mean the most to the social, business, and economic life of the people of Maine.

"With a two-thirds majority in both houses of the State Legislature, the Republicans have it in their power to make the years 1917 and 1918 the most notable in the history of Maine. They will proceed carefully in their work and enact no laws that are radical, nor will they abuse the great power which is theirs. Two years of magnificent work are ahead for the Republican Party, and the party will more than make good."

SPURS DEMOCRATS TO ACTION.

Maine Defeat Will Cause Them to Fight Harder for Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—An immediate result of the Republican victory in Maine, in the opinion of politicians here, will be to stir the Democratic campaign managers to greater activity in States which they have been counting on to be in the Democratic column in the November elections.

Few leading Democrats remain in Washington, and it is impossible to say what, if any, effect the result in Maine has had on the confidence that was felt by the greater number. One of the foremost officials said today that the success of the Republican ticket in Maine might be construed as showing the present trend of public opinion, but he pointed out that sentiment in the country, which had seemed to shift from time to time to one or the other of the great political parties, had always swung back to President Wilson and remained longer with him, as far as the Democratic observers were able to judge. His information from the best Democratic sources in Maine was, he said, that President Wilson was several thousand votes stronger than his party, and on that account this official believed that if the Wilson Presidential Electors had been on the Democratic ticket in Maine yesterday the national Administration would have been indorsed and the popularity of the President might have pulled through the rest of the party's ticket.

Surprised at Johnson's Defeat.

This is a Democratic view. Among the few Republican leaders who remain here the disposition is to claim that the Maine victory shows that the amalgamation of the Republican and Progressive Parties is complete and that a sweeping victory for Charles E. Hughes may be expected in November. They say that the Maine contest was made on national issues, and that the outcome has a national significance. It was admitted by some of them today that the defeat of Senator Johnson by Colonel Fred Hale, his Republican opponent, was something of a surprise.

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, who made speeches for the Democratic ticket in Maine, declined to comment on the outcome of the election there, saying he had not had the opportunity to read the newspapers and study the returns. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, who also participated in the Maine campaign, added to a statement he gave to the press last night. Mr. Daniels said:

"An analysis of the votes shows that about 77,000 Republicans voted for Milliken, the Republican Gubernatorial nominee, and from 60,000 to 70,000 Republicans voted for Republican Senatorial nominees. This means that from 7,000 to 8,000 Republicans voted with the Democrats on national issues. In the old days Republican majorities were engulfing. The average majority was about 30,000. When Cleveland was elected, both times Maine gave Republicans 20,000 majority.

Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee and the manager of the Administration's tariff measures in the Senate, made a long statement today reviewing the Maine result. He said he did not see anything particularly encouraging to the Republicans through their victory in a strong protection State. Protection and the Ship-purchase legislation authorizing Government purchase of foreign-built ships were issues directly involved in the Senatorial election, and on them, he said, the Republicans were able to carry the rock-ribbed Republican State of Maine by only 8,000, as against a Republican majority in past years ranging from 25,000 to 40,000.

HOW THE WEST VIEWS IT.

Republicans Jubilant—'Beaten Good and Plenty,' Says Champ Clark.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh, manager of the Western Democratic Campaign Headquarters, gave out the following statement today on the Maine election:

"The returns from Maine presage the election of Woodrow Wilson in November. While that State has gone Republican by about 12,000, it was carried by that party by a plurality of approximately 29,000 in 1910, 37,000 in 1908, and the combined Republican and Progressive vote in 1912 exceeded the Democratic vote by approximately 24,000. Another comparison affords still greater encouragement to the triumphs of Wilson. Sills, who has lost in the race for the Senatorship, has 10,200 votes more than were cast for Wilson in 1912."

"It is useless for the Democrats to try to explain away the Republican victory in Maine. The upstanding thing is the return of the Progressives to the Republican ranks. The returns show that about 85 per cent. of the Progressives of Maine voted for the Republican ticket. More than this, how can the Democrats explain away the victory of the Republicans in towns, precincts, and counties where there has not been a Republican victory for thirty years? The result in the Pine Tree State is overwhelmingly gratifying to the Republican party. It insures the election of a Republican House of Representatives and the redemption of the Senate from the hands of the Democrats."

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 12.—Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, who is here to aid the Democrats in opening the Missouri campaign today, was not surprised by the result of the Maine election yesterday. He said that any plurality for the Republicans under 15,000 was in reality favorable for the Democrats.

"We got whipped, and I guess that is all I will say about the Maine election," said Speaker Champ Clark. "We got beaten good and plenty."

CONSOLATION FOR EACH SIDE

McCormick and Willcox Both Find It in the Maine Election.

Although the Republican campaign officials were exultant yesterday over the Maine vote, Democratic officials, after carefully analyzing the returns, professed to find much that was encouraging. The Republicans insisted that not more than 5 per cent. of the Progressive vote went over to the Democrats and that the result proved that the bulk of the Bull Moose following had swung back to the Republican Party. The Democrats say that President Wilson undoubtedly is stronger than his party and that the approximately small Republican plurality in Maine indicates that Mr. Wilson will be re-elected.

Vance McCormick, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said he had never asserted that the Democrats would carry Maine and that if the Republicans insisted that the Maine result was a barometer for the rest of the country this year, it was well to bear in mind that in 1892, when a Republican Governor was elected in September by a plurality of 12,500, Grover Cleveland swept the country in the following November. Mr. McCormick said he was convinced that at least 25 per cent. of the Progressives in Maine and would vote for Mr. Wilson.

"Undoubtedly, Mr. Wilson is far stronger than the local ticket," said Mr. McCormick, "and if he had been at the head of the Maine ticket I believe it would have made a difference of at least 10,000 votes."

George W. Perkins at Republican headquarters said the attempt of Democratic managers to make it appear that Mr. Wilson was stronger than his party in Maine was ridiculous.

"The campaign was fought out on strictly national lines by both parties and everybody knows it," said Mr. Perkins. "The election of two Senators was the chief contest. It is impossible for Mr. Wilson to be any stronger than the record of the Democratic Senate, because Mr. Wilson has been the Democratic Senate. They have followed blindly wherever he has led. The chief argument made for Senator Johnson in Maine was that he voted for each and every one of President Wilson's policies. The defeat of Senator Johnson was direct repudiation of Mr. Wilson, and of course foreshadows the election of Mr. Hughes."

Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury, who was at Republican headquarters yesterday, made this comment on the Maine result:

"In former years when the Republicans carried Maine by 15,000 or more, the Democrats offered only nominal resistance. Recently, and particularly this year, they have made a vigorous campaign and boasted that they would control the State. Following a vigorous contest by the Democrats with unlimited financial backing and nearly every speaker of national importance, including several members of the President's Cabinet, 12,000 is a far greater victory than even 25,000 by default."

Chairman William R. Willcox returned from Syracuse yesterday and held conferences with the other campaign managers. He said he regarded the result in Maine as proof that Hughes would be elected in November.

"It proves that we are reunited, and that, of course, means success," he said. "The work will be pushed all through the country from now until Election Day. The Washington Administration turned loose all of its stars and its Cabinet officials for the support of the Administration policies. The verdict is unmistakable. Mr. Hughes, of course, was gratified at the returns."

BEVERIDGE HAILS HUGHES.

Congratulates the Candidate on the Victory in Maine.

> Beverly Farms, Mass., Sept. 12.
> The Hon. Charles E. Hughes, Plattsburg, N. Y.:
> Best congratulations. The notable victory demonstrates the wisdom and power of the campaign you are making.

ROOSEVELT STICKS TO FIVE SPEECHES

GETS CREDIT FOR MAINE

Compliments from All Over the Country Come by Wire—Not to Speak with Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 12.—Colonel Roosevelt, to whom the Republican managers assigned last week the task of adding more life to the campaign, apparently does not intend to change his original plans, especially to the extent of speaking from the same platform with ex-President Taft. It can be stated on the highest authority that the differences between the one-time friends have not been patched up to such an extent, and though each will make several speeches, they will be delivered from widely separated platforms.

Also, the Colonel has not considered increasing the number of speeches, five in all, which remain for him to make, and he will not do so unless some imperative and now unforeseen need arises. His next speech will be in Battle Creek, Mich., near the end of the month.

Mr. Roosevelt was in fine humor over the result in Maine, but Frederick C. Tanner, New York State Republican Chairman, found all attempts futile to induce the Colonel to display a more lively interest in lining up Moose voters behind the Republican State ticket. The feeling between Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Whitman may respond to treatment, but it has not done so yet. W. Cameron Forbes, Senator William M. Bennet, and James M. Beck were other visitors whose presence gave Sagamore Hill the appearance of a live political headquarters, but when his visitors had departed the Colonel had changed no whit from the plans originally laid down for his part in the campaign.

Despite their failure to get more from Mr. Roosevelt the Republicans who called on him today were grateful and happy for what they had got. The result of the Maine election and the more active participation of the Colonel in the campaign brought smiles of satisfaction to their faces.

The Colonel beamed his satisfaction at the Maine result. He was especially pleased with a huge pile of telegrams from all parts of the country complimenting him for his part in the Maine fight and giving him most of the credit for the result.

"It's fine, fine, I am very glad," he grinned, when he was asked for his comment on Manie. Those who have talked with him said he was highly gratified that the bulk of the 1912 Progressive vote was found in the Republican column this year. He took this as an indication, it was said, that the rank and file of the Bull Moose Party had buried their resentment and were still following his leadership. The Republican leaders were also of this mind.

ELECTION BETS ARE FEW.

Even Maine Election Didn't Disturb Unwonted Apathy.

The Republican victory in Maine had no effect on the election betting odds offered in Wall Street yesterday. To the surprise of the election betting Commissioners not one wager was made yesterday, and there was no change in the odds offered of 10 to 8 on Hughes to beat Wilson, with the Wilson money being held for 2 to 1. These odds have been quoted now for more than a week without a single wager of any substantial amount. Betting Commissioners said yesterday they expected little activity now until after the primaries.

FAIRBANKS TAKEN ILL.

Indigestion Attack Compels Him to Quit Speaking—Resumes Later.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 12.—Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican Vice Presidential candidate, suffered an attack of indigestion tonight while addressing a large audience at the Auditorium. For a time it was thought he had been stricken with serious illness. He was compelled to quit speaking for fifteen minutes and during the interval many people left the building. After his recovery in an ante room, Mr. Fairbanks finished his speech.

HANSBROUGH BOLTS HUGHES

Republican ex-Senator Will Vote and Work for Wilson.

H. C. Hansbrough of North Dakota, who served eighteen years in the United States Senate as a Republican, announced yesterday through the Democratic National Campaign Committee that he intended to support President Wilson for re-election and take an active part in the campaign.

"One of the reasons why I cannot vote for Mr. Hughes," he said, "is because I cannot conscientiously take orders from Theodore Roosevelt and George W. Perkins. I know them of old. I heard the Grand Forks address of Mr. Hughes and noted the fact that his tour of the Northwest was stimulated by the active presence of the President of the Great Northern Railway. I am for Wilson because I believe in the principles of Abraham Lincoln rather than a man who represents the special interests and privileged classes as distinguished from the true democracy of the country."

LAUDS COLLEGE LEAGUE.

Hughes Likes Its "Big Way" of Starting Work.

The Hughes National College League, with headquarters at 511 Fifth Avenue, received yesterday this message from Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate:

"I am gratified to hear of the big way in which the Hughes National College League is starting its work. The circularization of almost a quarter of a million college men means that there will be strong branches over all the country to work with the Republican-Progressive organization.

"It is particularly pleasing to me to note that every great section of our country is represented on the Executive and Advisory Committees or among the strong list of officers. If there was ever a time when the educated men of the country who have its welfare at heart should work for right principles and strong government, it is now."

United Typothetae Plan Campaign Against Competition After War.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—The United Typothetae and Franklin Clubs of America, the thirtieth annual convention of which opened at the Hotel Traymore today, plan an uplift of the printing industry in this country, according to President Albert W. Finlay, who delivered his annual address before nearly 1,100 delegates. It is proposed to conduct a three years' campaign, at a cost of $1,000,000, in every State in the Union, and it is hoped thereby greatly to improve business conditions in the trade. President Finlay said:

"This is one of the most important activities undertaken by the Executive Council. We plan to organize the entire country, making the membership universal and the practices in the different industries more uniform and stable.

"There can be little question that at the termination of the European war a competitive condition will prevail which makes it incumbent on American industries to adopt such methods as will safeguard them in the conduct of their business and in the maintenance of fair economic conditions. The printing industry undoubtedly will be placed on the defensive, and it behooves not only our own members, but printers generally, to work unitedly to minimize as far as possible the threatened competition."

President Finlay announced that the standard cost-finding system had received the indorsement of the Federal Trade Commission.

MAINE VINDICATED THEM

No Changes in Hughes Campaign Management Likely Now—Senator Smoot Indorses Chairman's Work.

Although Old Guard Republicans have been dissatisfied with the conduct of the national campaign, and especially with some of the men in active charge, there were indications yesterday that all factional fights are to be called off, and that Chairman William R. Willcox, Frank H. Hitchcock, and others are to be left to run the campaign as they see fit. One reason for the change of attitude is the result of the Maine election. Had the Republicans suffered defeat in that State on Monday, there might have been a wholesale shakeup in the management of the campaign.

The Old Guard opposition has been centred principally upon Mr. Hitchcock. Men like W. Murray Crane, United States Senator Reed Smoot, William Barnes and Senator Boies Penrose, who have long held grudges against Mr. Hitchcock, were ready to put their troubles squarely up to Charles E. Hughes and demand that certain changes be made. Now, while the dissatisfaction still exists in some measure, the Maine result has shown that the campaign has not been so badly bungled as some members of the National Committee had thought. It was said yesterday that Mr. Hughes had signified his purpose to keep hands off and allow matters to go on as at present.

Senator Smoot came here the other day to have a conference with Mr. Hughes and offer his advice as to how the campaign should be conducted. The conference will take place when Mr. Hughes returns to New York City, but it was said that Mr. Smoot was no longer in a captious frame of mind. He said yesterday that the conduct of the campaign had his entire indorsement. He expressed satisfaction over the Maine result and said it would awaken the Republicans throughout the country to their chances in November.

"The campaign is progressing very satisfactorily," said Senator Smoot. "Any one who insinuates that the work of Chairman Willcox is not of the best has an ulterior motive. I am in New York for two or three days to assist in any capacity which the managers care to call on me for. In my State, as in the rest of the country, we believe the so-called eight-hour law is wrong. We do not believe that Congress has the right to fix a wage scale. I believe there is no question of the election of Mr. Hughes in November."

Among those at Republican headquarters yesterday were George W. Wickersham, Representative Sidney E. Mudd of Maryland, Medill McCormick of Chicago, John Hays Hammond, William P. Jackson, National Committeeman for Maryland; Galen L. Tate, Leslie M. Shaw, Campbell Bascom Slemp of Virginia, George B. Curtis, who for many years was United States Attorney for the Northern District of New York; J. H. Vichestain, editor of The Labor Tribune of Pittsburgh, which is supporting Mr. Hughes, and I. H. Stevens of Denver, who was the Progressive candidate for United States Senator in Colorado in 1912.

"All of the Progressive leaders in Colorado with one exception are for the Hughes-Fairbanks ticket, and of the rank and file I believe that 90 per cent. are back in the Republican ranks," said Mr. Stevens.

Chairman Willcox received a telegram from Harold L. Ickes of the Western Republican Committee, who was Progressive National Committeeman for Illinois, in which he said:

"Progressives are with Hughes. This is the outstanding, significant fact shown by the Maine election. Progressives are with Hughes in sufficient numbers to assure his triumphant election in November."

The National Chairman gave out a statement on the eight-hour law he received from Representative Augustus P. Gardner of Massachusetts, in which Mr. Gardner said:

> As a matter of fact, it is not an eight-hour law at all. It does not curtail the trainmen's workday by a single minute. If an engineer has been receiving $5 for working ten hours a day, this law will raise his pay to $6.25; but it will not shorten his workday even the tenth part of a second. This is no more like the true eight-hour principle than chalk is like cheese.
>
> The reason why people call this an eight-hour law is because it says that in the case of railroad trainmen they shall get their day's pay for the first eight hours' work, and all the rest is to be considered overtime.
>
> Do not tell me that this strike could not have been called off or postponed if President Wilson had shown that he meant business. I do not for one minute believe that those four brotherhood leaders started the blaze going without knowing how to put it out. One of them admitted that he could put it out so far as his own brotherhood was concerned, but that his followers would think that he had gone back on them if he were to do so.

Mr. Hughes is due to arrive in the city today from Plattsburg and for several days will rest and confer with local leaders and officials of the National Committee. He will start on another Middle West trip next Monday. The first speech is to be at the State Fair at Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19.

it ceases to be the home of the brave it will soon cease to be the land of the free.

"I respect the sense of democratic obligation which leads men to recognize duty, as well as to insist upon privilege. We need more and more in this country that sense of obligation and that willingness to sacrifice, which will insure the permanence of our institutions and our absolute security in every emergency. The military value of the training camp is obvious. Its civil and social value are to my mind equally important. It is a training school in democracy. It is a discipline that knits men together in a wholesome comradeship. It is a splendid upbuilding of character.

"It is preparedness, not only military, but civil and moral. It is a great means of drawing men of all sorts and conditions together in a recognition of a common fellowship and in the delight of a wholesome co-operation. That is the spirit we must have in this country if America is to go forward, if America, indeed, is to hold her place among the nations in the troublous days of the twentieth century.

"I desire to see these camps maintained in various parts of our land, and men in constantly increasing numbers seeking the benefit of training and the discipline. I believe that our citizen reserve should be trained under Federal authority. I think it was a great mistake to abandon the plan that was first formulated with that end in view. When we are military we should be military, and not political. When we are military we should desire in every way to adapt to our ends the very best possible means and I think that in this country we must rely in the main upon a great citizen reserve, and we should have that reserve trained and controlled under Federal authority. That is real preparedness.

"We desire to see, throughout our land, a disposition to be ready to serve the nation and that her peace and security shall be placed beyond doubt."

Mr. Hughes next came to the charge that he was simply destructive in his attacks upon the Administration. He said:

"It was said in the Democratic platform of four years ago that the principle of our merit system should be maintained as a barrier to spoils. It is deplorable that the barrier to spoils has been largely removed—where it was needed. Now, that is not simply destructive criticism, for when I say anything by way of criticism I endeavor to write alongside of the criticism the proposal, on the other hand, of what we propose to do. We propose to have applied the principle of the merit system. We propose to have the spirit of our civil service laws maintained. We propose to have efficiency and competency in public office."

Of his position before the people Mr. Hughes said:

"If I did not believe that the Republican party was the party of true progress, which was prepared under its leadership to take the country along the way of adaptation to new deeds and exigencies of the future, I should have no pride in representing it. But, the party of Lincoln is reunited today, and we consecrate it to the ideals of Lincoln, and those ideals are permanent. They are the ideals of the success of the plain people. They are the ideals of the achievements under free institutions of success in all the activities of the co-operative energy of the plain people.

"This is not a country for isolated success, where the few may exploit the many. It is a country devoted to the principle that under the rule of reason and by organized public opinion we shall have a diffusion of prosperity, shall be elevated, and every man, however humble his occupation, will have a sense of pride because he is a citizen in a land where justice reigns and he is treated fairly under laws wisely adapted to the prosperity of all in the community.

"Our friends on the other side tickled the ear with many promises which they have not fulfilled. They said that the Republican Party was responsible for the high cost of living. They have been in power for some time, and I do not see that the cost of living has been reduced. It seems to be beyond Democratic control. It was said that they would dispose of many useless offices. The abolition of useless offices has not been quite as apparent as the appointment of useless officers. It was said that they would get rid of extravagances. The Republican administration was arraigned for extravagance. Now it is our painful duty to arraign the Democratic administration for extravagance."

Mr. Hughes cited an executive budget as another constructive policy, and pledged himself to obtain one if he was elected President. He added:

"Let us be American, and let us prize honorable American achievement and try to build it up in every possible way. That is the program that I lay before the American people. I desire that we should have a suitable basis in order that we may erect a structure of essential justice upon it. We are not considering efficiency for its own sake; we are not considering protection for the sake of the quantities of goods and produce that we produce. We are not thinking of the statistics of increased wealth, of the vast parade of resources, encyclopedias or treasuries of information. The man who is looking always at economics and never thinking of humanity won't get very far with the first, and won't count at all with the second. Contentment underlies efficiency, and to have contentment you must have a recognition of human needs, and a great desire to better human life."

Mr. Hughes feels that with the victory in Maine his campaign is on a sound basis, and that those who have appeared as his critics have erred in judgment. Upon his return to New York tomorrow morning, where he will arrive at 7:30 o'clock, Mr. Hughes will have covered 11,464 miles by rail and 2,000 miles by automobile. He left New York on Aug. 5. He has spoken at 170 cities and towns, and has passed through twenty-five States, in twenty of which he has delivered campaign addresses.

Today he found representatives of all factions of the Republican Party and many Progressives on hand to greet him. The reports he has received have been encouraging from up-State at least, and all of his utterances today reflected his feelings. He feels that he has made a favorable impression in all of the States.

Mr. Hughes left here at 10:50 o'clock tonight.

GERMANS IN NO FEAR OF 'WAR AFTER WAR'

Philip Heineken Believes Plan of Allies Will Not Offset Natural Trade.

SCOUTS IDEA OF "DUMPING"

North German Lloyd Director Thinks America May Build Second Isthmian Canal.

BERLIN, Monday, Sept. 11, (via London, Sept. 12.)—The prospect of a "war after the war," as proposed by British newspapers and discussed at the economic conference of the Allies at Paris, apparently is causing little anxiety in Germany, where the belief is expressed that natural commercial tendencies will soon overcome any artificial barriers which may be erected. This view was voiced in a statment today by Philip Heineken, Director of the North German Lloyd steamship line. Herr Heineken discussed plans which are being made in Germany to resume international trade after the coming of peace, and said there was no basis for the apprehension that Germany might unload low-priced goods on the American market.

Like all German shipping experts, Herr Heineken looks forward to an immense call for tonnage with the ending of the war. All Europe, he said, will be calling for raw materials to replenish exhausted stocks. As ships which have been requisitioned for war purposes cannot be returned immediately to the ordinary channels of traffic, but will require considerable alteration to reconvert them from transports, auxiliary cruisers and so forth to cargo carriers, those companies which have tonnage afloat and immediately available will be in a position of great advantage.

"Post-bellum traffic," said Herr Heineken, "will, of course, be largely one-way traffic at first. German ships, for example, will be able to load for America a certain amount of potash, dyestuffs and so forth, but this will not counterbalance the cotton, tobacco, copper, and other raw materials which will be imported immediately from America. Only after the arrival of these raw materials and the reconversion of our industries to a peace basis will cargoes of manufactured articles be available."

Herr Heineken's reply led to a question as to the probabilities of "dumping," which he scouted. He said that whatever stocks of manufactured articles might have been on hand at the beginning of the war naturally had been utilized in Germany, and that there had been no replenishment of these supplies.

Like most other German business men, Herr Heineken felt that the proposed "war after the war" would have no greatly injurious effect on the future of German shipping lines. England, he declared, was too dependent on Germany for certain articles, and Germany in turn could supply herself in some ways with too much advantage from England to permit of the permanent supplanting of natural and mutually advantageous relations. Then, too, he added, the proponents of a post-bellum economic war forget that they might not be in a position, when peace comes, to dictate terms such as they now proposed.

German ships in neutral harbors outside the tropics would be available immediately after the war, said Herr Heineken. Only those in such ports as Manila would have deteriorated to such an extent that they could not be put in service without considerable delay.

Were war to cease tomorrow, he continued, the North German Lloyd line would be able to resume service with virtually the same tonnage as before the war, regardless of whether the steamships captured in hostile harbors were recovered. New construction during the war—and this is now virtually completed—just about balance the tonnage destroyed or captured. For this reason, Herr Heinecken said, the North German Lloyd was in a somewhat better position than most other shipping lines, even in view of the enormous activity of shipbuilding in Germany, which has reached such a point that available shipbuilding works, crowded with orders, cannot take another contract for two years.

In the conversation Herr Heineken prophesied that the building of a second Isthmian Canal by the United States would not be an improbable development of the none too distant future. He fears that the Panama Canal may prove too unreliable a route to permit the United States to base thereon its entire international and naval policy. In this case, he said, it would be the part of wise statesmanship to choose promptly between the alternatives of building and maintaining a second fleet or of constructing a perfectly and permanently reliable canal.

None of the projected sister ships to the Deutschland and Bremen have, however, been completed yet, according to a statement by Philip Heineken, one of the Directors of the Ocean Navigation Company, owners of the Deutschland.

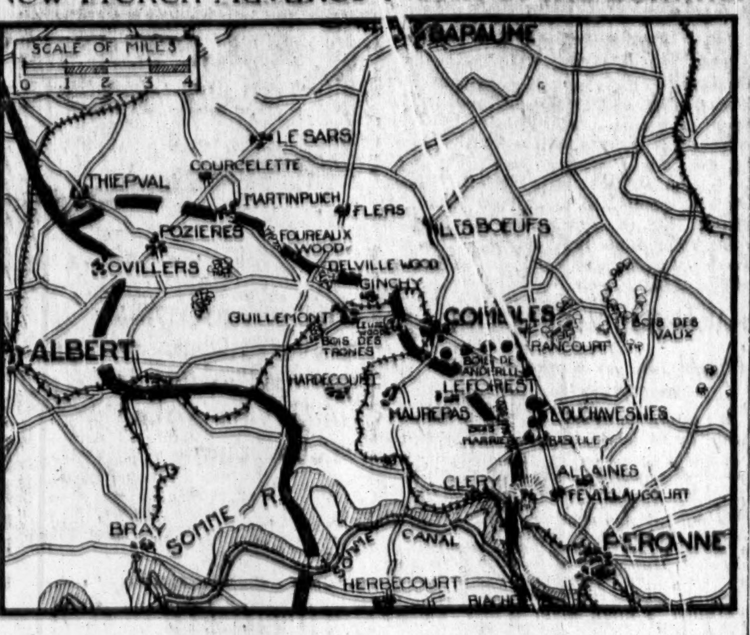
New French Advance North of the Somme.



By a vigorous offensive launched north of the Somme yesterday the French captured German trenches on a front of nearly four miles from Combles to the river. They pushed their lines to the Bethune-Bapaume-Péronne high road, which they touch from the southern outskirts of Rancourt to the district south of Bouchavesnes. The important town of Combles is thus practically cut off. The dotted line shows the extent of yesterday's advance.

and set afire an ammunition store. During the last twenty-four hours some fifty prisoners have been brought in.

In the course of aerial fighting yesterday one of our machines, which returned safely, collided with a hostile aeroplane which fell out of control and disappeared in the clouds. Today a hostile machine was brought down in flames in our lines near Pozières.

Two of our aeroplanes failed to return.

The afternoon report follows:

Yesterday evening our heavy artillery caused two large conflagrations in the enemy's ammunition depot at Grandcourt.

There was some hostile artillery activity during the night against our lines between Delville Wood and Mouquet Farm. Otherwise there were no developments.

GERMANS LED BY PRINCES.

Three Royal Commanders Direct Troops on the Western Front.

BERLIN, Sept. 11, (via London, Sept. 12.)—Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria has now assumed the overcommand of the German armies on the Somme front.' He is intrusted with the general direction of operations against the Anglo-French offensive. All troops assigned to this task are placed under his control, making possible the distribution of reserves and the employment of all the means of war to the best advantage under a unified plan.

The appointment of Prince Rupprecht was effective before the latest visit of an Associated Press correspondent to Bapaume last week, but the news could not be cabled until the announcement in the official army headquarters report of today, which reveals a general rearrangement of commands brought about by the appointment of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as Chief of Staff.

The new order divides the western front into three sectors and assigns these to three princely commanders who, regardless of reasons of policy which dictated their appointments to the command of armies at the beginning of the war, have won their spurs by the successful conduct of operations. They are regarded here not as figureheads but as Generals of experience and distinction.

Duke Albrecht, prospective heir to the kingdom of Württemberg, who is in command of the northern sector, before the war had risen to the rank of General and corps commander. He inflicted the first great defeat on the French in the dash northward through Belgium. Crown Prince Rupprecht, in command of the central sector, was the victor in the battle in Lorraine which crushed and repulsed the French invasion of Germany in 1914.

The German Crown Prince has the overcommand in the Verdun sector.

the Chamber the bill for the new war loan, accompanying it with a memorandum in which he said:

"The time has come to appeal to the country for a second loan of 5 per cent. for national defense, similar to the loan of 1915. The former issue was made at 87.25. The price on the Bourse has always been above the price of emission, and now stands at 90, with the next coupon period beginning from August last; that is, it is about three points above the issue price."

The Finance Minister referred to the success of the previous loan, and said the forthcoming issue would be an attractive investment.

"There is not a Frenchman," he continued, "who does not feel it is his duty to bring to the State at least a part of his resources to assist in the national defense. The confidence of the nation is never questioned, and at the present it is stronger than ever. No one in France or out doubts that victory is certain.

"Victory must bring peace worthy of France and worthy of her heroism and sacrifices."

M. Ribot then explained the conditions under which the loan would be issued. The date of opening the subscription lists will be fixed later by a decree.

The previous 5 per cents., but not the Government threes, will be accepted in exchange for the new loan, which will be non-taxable and will be redeemable after Jan. 1, 1931.

Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber, opened the sitting with an eloquent tribute to Rumania, which he called the preserver of the ancient Roman ideas of justice. The entire House arose and cheered Rumania. A. E. Lahovary, the Rumanian Minister, who was in the diplomatic box, bowed his acknowledgments repeatedly amid tumultuous demonstrations.

The feeling of Parliament today appeared to be in singular contrast with that on previous openings since the beginning of the war. Complete confidence in the trend of military affairs seems to have replaced certain currents of criticism which hitherto have affected minority parties.

Premier Briand has decided that one day each week shall be set aside in the Chamber for Cabinet members to reply to interpellations on the conduct of affairs.

LOSS OF DANUBE ROUTE SERIOUS FOR BULGARS

Rumanian Armies Continue Their Advance in Hungarian Mountain Territory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 12, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—By virtue of the Rumanian success in occupying Orsova all possibility is henceforth denied the Central Powers of sending supplies to Bulgaria by water. Besides, as there exists only one railway across Serbia linking up Sofia with Budapest it is evident the loss of the Danube route is a vital matter.

It has been by the Danube that for the last two years conveyance has been made of the whole mass of munitions and material of war that enabled the enemy not only to hold out at Gallipoli and the Dardanelles, not only to overrun Serbia, but also to confront the Allies in the Saloniki theatre, and now to make their attack against Rumania.

In the Carpathian mountain system from the Danube to Bukowina the Rumanian armies continue to advance. They have reached an average length and depth of invasion of twenty-five miles into Transylvania, and at certain points of some thirty-five miles. The valley of the upper Maros has been acquired by the capture of Toplitsa and with that of Gyorgyo-Szmiklos and other towns. The greater part of the Valley of the Olt is in the hands of the Rumanians, who have taken possession in its upper reaches of Csikszereda and Sepsisan-Gyorgyo.

After having taken in the very first day of hostilities the lower portion of the pass of Turnu Ruishu, the valley of the Jiul has been ascended as far as Petroshani, a great mining centre where coal of superior quality is extracted. By the capture and possession of these mines a severe blow was dealt at Hungary's economic life, and if we add to that all the inexhaustible mineral and agricultural resources that the Teutons used to draw from Transylvania we shall obtain some idea of the efficacy of what Rumania is doing.

Austria-Hungary and Germany, which profited greatly from Rumania's neutrality, are now deprived not only of petroleum and cereals which they used to import from this country but also of the last resources that remained to the monarchy of the Hapsburgs in Transylvania. Rumania's action, therefore, is as efficacious from an economic point of view as it is from the purely military. It has, moreover, a depressing moral effect upon the enemy, who clearly perceive in Rumania's intervention the loss of their illusions. That is why, despite the unhappy episode of Tutrakan, confidence in victory is absolute in Rumania, and the course of events is awaited with complete calm.

Teutons Push On in Dobrudja.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (via London.)—The official German report of today shows that, as had been reported unofficially, Field Marshal von Mackensen is in charge of the German and Bulgarian forces which are invading Eastern Rumania. The statement says:

German and Bulgarian forces under the command of Field Marshal von Mackensen continued their advance in Dobrudja.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The repulse of a sortie made by the Rumanians and Russians near Dobric, in Southern Dobrudja, on Friday last, is reported in the Turkish official statement of Sept. 10, which says:

Near Dobric the enemy on Sept. 8 made a new sortie, but was again defeated by the Turks and their allies.

Dobric was occupied by the Bulgarians in their advance into Southern Dobrudja, but according to an official Rumanian report on Sept. 9 the Bulgarians were subsequently driven out by the Rumanians and Russians.

Predicts Great Attack on Rumania.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 13, 3:08 A. M.—The Times's military correspondent in an article today discusses the probable strategy of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the new German Chief of Staff, under the caption of "Rumania's Danger."

The writer expresses the belief that the German leader will adopt a defensive policy in the west and gather an important army for an attack on Rumania in an effort to repeat Germany's performance against Serbia.

"We Allies," says the correspondent, "must in this case come to the aid of Rumania with all our might. This does not mean that we should allow our strategy to be deflected, but rather that the settled plan of the Allies should be pursued with increasing energy and determination. To fly about the world to any point where von Hindenburg is beyond us is an act of folly. The best means of helping Rumania is by continuing on all fronts our general attack with increasing means and increasing constancy. Our main efforts must be on the principal fronts where our main armies stand."

8vo. Cloth. 552 pages. $2.00

The present volume, the second of a proposed series, comprises some forty selected Addresses delivered between 1891 and 1916. They are a masterly exposition of the principles of the Constitution and of the government established by it, of the duty of the citizen to understand the Constitution and to conform to its requirements, and of the right of the people to amend the Constitution in order to make representative government more serviceable. The addresses on law show how legal procedure should be modified in the interest of justice rather than the legal profession.

SIX NEUTRAL SHIPS ARE REPORTED SUNK

SOME OF CREWS MISSING

But the Greater Number from All of the Ships Have Been Landed Safely.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Renewed activity by submarines was reported today in dispatches telling of the destruction of six vessels, all of them neutral. The greatest sufferer was Norway, five of the victims flying her flag. The other vessel destroyed was the Spanish steamer Luis Vives.

The sinking of the Luis Vives was announced by Lloyds Shipping Agency. Her crew was saved by the Dutch steamer Krakatau of Amsterdam. Lloyds also reported the sinking of the Norwegian steamer Furu, of 2,020 gross tons, of Bergen; the Fredavore, of 1,018 gross tons, of Farsund, and the Lyderhorn, 930 tons gross, owned in Bergen.

A dispatch to Lloyds from Genoa says that forty-seven members of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Elizabeth IV. have been landed at Savona by the Greek steamer Petritsis.

PENZANCE, England, Sept. 12.—The Norwegian steamer Polynesia has been sunk, and her Captain and twenty-three of her crew have been landed here. Four other members of her crew, who left the Polynesia in another boat, are missing.

The Norwegian steamer Furu arrived at Bougie, Algeria, on Aug. 6 from Newport. The Fredavore was last reported arriving at Newport from Seville, Spain, on Aug. 14.

The Elizabeth IV. measured 4,182 tons and was last reported at Colombo on Aug. 11. She was on her way to Marseilles from Shanghai.

DUTCH STEAMER CAPTURED.

The Zeelandie Taken in the North Sea by a U-Boat.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (via Sayville.)—"The capture in the North Sea by a German submarine of the Dutch motor steamer Zeelandie, with contraband from Rotterdam to London," is reported today by the Overseas News Agency.

No Dutch motor vessel Zeelandie is listed in available shipping records. The Dutch steamship Zeelandia, of 7,995 tons gross, was last reported sailing from Amsterdam on Aug. 16 for Buenos Aires.

SHIP IS MADE OF CONCRETE.

New Type at Christiania Has Only Ribs of Steel.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Sept. 12, (via London.)—A new type of ship has arrived here from the shipyards of Christiania Fiord. The ship, which resembles a huge barge, is constructed entirely of concrete, except for the ribs, which are steel, and is the first stone vessel ever floated.

It is said that the hull will resist damage better than steel or wood and that the ship is therefore safer.

Enver at German Headquarters.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The arrival at German Headquarters of Enver Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War and commander of the Turkish armies, is reported by the Overseas News Agency. Emperor William assigned him to quarters with the Fusilier Guards, the agency adds.

HUNGARIAN PARTIES AGREE.

Coalition Cabinet Expected—Opposition to Tisza Wanes.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Reports from Budapest indicate that an agreement has about been reached between the Government and the Opposition for the formation of a Coalition Cabinet for Hungary, according to a Reuter dispatch from Zurich today.

The groups of Count Apponyi and Count Andrassy, the reports state, no longer insist on the retirement of Premier Tisza, the demand for which has hitherto constituted the chief obstacle to a settlement.

The party of Count Karolyi will not join the coalition, but does not oppose the project for such a Government, it is declared.

NORTHCLIFFE FINDS SPAIN VERY GERMAN

80,000 Teutons on Peninsula, He Says, Dominate Every Branch of Nation's Life.

FAMILIAR ARGUMENTS USED

Berlin, in Addition, Spreads Propaganda So That It Reaches South America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Lord Northcliffe in a long dispatch to The Times from Pamplona, Spain, records his impressions on the state of Spanish opinion which he derived from a recent visit. The gist of them is that the Germans captivated in a great measure Spanish opinion, and that Great Britain failed to meet and confute their propaganda. Northcliffe gives 80,000 as the approximate number of Germans now in Spain. These, he says, constituted themselves into a well-drilled army of propagandists, acting on definite instructions.

"It is an unpleasant surprise," he writes, "on going to a Spanish bank to find that the British sovereign is at an uncomplimentary discount. It is unpleasant, too, on opening countless Spanish newspapers to find that the belief in German victory and in German invincibility is apparently conviction in most parts of Spain. It is disappointing to be received by old Spanish friends with fear or doubt as to our capacity to make war."

German Refugees Organized.

Many of the Germans in Spain are refugees from France, Portugal, and the Cameroons.

"A majority obtained work in the innumerable establishments of their compatriots," says Lord Northcliffe, "some in Barcelona, some at Seville, some in the iron districts, others in the countless industries in Spain into which the German vampire has dug its claws. They are unquestionably helping to get Spain into the German clutch. They realize that if to a victorious Germany Spain is very useful, to a defeated Germany Spain is almost essential. It is likely that, in event of the development of overland transport by aeroplane, the coasts and harbors of friendly Spain would be invaluable to Germany. The mineral wealth of the peninsula, only now being scientifically developed, would afford her several sorts of raw material of which Germany has little or none, and as an outlet for German goods, as the main point of departure for the wealthy republics of South America, as a bulwark against the English control of Gibraltar, Spain is, from the German point of view, distinctly Germany's pidgin.

"Well-drilled battalions of German residents and refugees in Spain know exactly how to confuse public opinion in any locality. In North Spain where the French have never been popular since the Napoleonic invasion they alarm the ignorant by threats that an allied victory might mean a revival of the days of a hundred years ago. In the west they state that as reward for Portugal's treachery in joining the Allies she is to be given two of the richest Spanish provinces.

Spain Leads to South America.

"The Germans know that with Spain as a point d'appui and the backing of Spanish opinion and above all with that of the Church, their cause is likely to be better appreciated in the new world than if mother Spain were hostile. From Spain, therefore, proceeds to South America a great deal of German propaganda in the Spanish language. The chief methods of propaganda seem to be a daily stream of wireless communiqués from Berlin and Austria discrediting the Allies' continuous activity, on the part of the Church and Carlists, the influence of the German colony with steady work on the part of the university professors and schoolmasters on behalf of the Central Powers, the chief channel being, of course, the press.

"As elsewhere the view is industriously spread by Germany that England is the sole and only cause of the war and that the unfortunate French are only too anxious to make peace. England is represented as sacrificing France as she is alleged to have sacrificed Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro. The argument runs that were Spain so mad as to join the Allies her fate would be that of France. President Wilson, who like most Americans is not liked in Spain by reason of Cuba, and whose Mexican policy is not pleasing to a country that has millions invested in that distraught Eldorado, is quite the hero of the Germanophiles. When pro-Ally Spaniards ask pro-Germans when they are going to protest against German horrors the pro-German reply is that the atrocities are a malicious invention of John Bull. If they are true the good President Wilson would interfere in the matter.

Urge Spain as Arbiter.

"Another line taken by the German propagandists, chiefly among the aristocratic circles, is that Spain should keep herself strictly impartial so that, if necessary, King Alfonso and his Cabinet may perhaps be invited by Great Britain to arbitrate when we sue for peace with Germany. That we shall eventually invite the Spanish Court to save our face seems to be accepted by all except the inner circle who know some of the facts. One of these facts is that the Germans lately induced a well-known Spanish nobleman to go to London to fly a peace kite and that on his arrival those to whom he was accredited wisely took not the least notice of him. The Germans now assert the unfortunate Spaniard went to London on his own account.

"From much that I heard in the course of my inquiries the Spanish Court would be the very worst arbiter between the Allies and the Central Powers. Whatever may be King Alfonso's own knowledge, the views of the average Court official are something like these:

"'English officers are gallant fellows, excellent polo players, good sportsmen in general, but amateurs. The English tommies are few in number, brave but foolhardy. The "bloody repulses" so often mentioned in the German communiqués are due to the fact that an army cannot be raised in a few years. France has called up all her men from seventeen years of age to forty-eight. England can do nothing on land of any service, therefore Germany is bound to win and even if she does not win she cannot possibly lose.'"

SAYS SPAIN MUST DECIDE.

Nation Cannot Remain Uninterested and Neutral, Says Maura.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Spain must decide in favor of one or other of the groups of belligerents, in the opinion of Antonio Maura, former Spanish Premier and leader of the Conservative Party, according to news dispatches from Madrid, quoting an address delivered by Señor Maura.

The address was delivered at Beranga, near Bilbao, at a meeting attended by 6,000 Mauristas. The former Premier declared, according to the dispatches, that Spain could not abandon her neutrality, but that the conditions of the war made her isolation henceforth impossible. He is quoted as saying that it was essential that France and England should not be hostile toward Spain.

The Madrid dispatches predict that Señor Maura's speech will cause a strong impression throughout the country, as his prestige was never so high as at present. The majority of his followers are supposed to be pro-German in their sympathies.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

From such reports as have reached us of the fighting north of the Somme in the region of Ginchy, it does not seem that there has been any point on the entire British front, with the possible exception of Thiepval, where the German resistance was, in the first place so determined, nor, after the position was captured, where the German counterattacks were so frequent or so violent.

Ever since the Germans lost this little village, they have been exerting every effort to recapture it. Attack after attack has been leveled against the new British line as if the Germans were determined to retake it at all costs. To justify such an expenditure for such an apparently unimportant object it must have some particularly great local advantage, either to the German defense or to the British in subsequent attacks or both.

It is worth while considering this point in order to ascertain just what the value of Ginchy is, viewed in all of these various lights. It lies, as we know, north of Guillemont and was the point where the allied line turned south toward the river. It might, therefore, have been called the pivotal point in this immediate sector of the German line. Before the last great French attack, which resulted in the advance of their lines to the east as far as the environs of Combles, this had a distinct meaning. The Germans holding Ginchy fast, could use it as a point upon which to swing their line to the south as the pressure became severe. This in reality they did at the last French attack. Holding fast to Ginchy their line swung eastward to Combles and the woods of Marrière.

But Ginchy had a still further meaning and a value of a different sort. First, it must be remembered that as a major part of their defensive scheme in France the Germans have converted each of the small villages into so many fortified points to be used on the same general principle as the Russians use their fortified quadrangles. The cellars of the houses constitute so many rifle pits for the infantry sharpshooters. The walls of the houses, in most cases destroyed, afford excellent cover from the fire of rifles and machine guns. The various eminences of the towns are excellent positions for the mounting of machine guns of their own. In any given area the villages have always proved the crux or bulwark of the German defense.

Now it has been perfectly obvious that the first important step of the allied advance must be the capture of Combles and of Péronne. Before the latter can be taken the first must fall. The French have indicated that their process of taking Combles is to be the same as that used in the case of so many other villages—that is, first surrounding the village by a series of attacks on either side and then breaking the defense by a combined attack on three fronts. They began this operation by a drive south of Combles which carried them well east of the village as far as the woods of Marrière.

But the British hold the line north of Combles, and in order for such a move to succeed the British advance must be equal to that of the French. That is, while the French create the southern half of the pocket, the British must create the northern half. This was impossible as long as Ginchy was held by the Germans. Ginchy simply had to be taken before any move to assist the French could be made. The French gain was thus neutralized as long as the Germans held on. The last British stroke, however, eliminated Ginchy from consideration and inclosed it in the British lines.

There is still another point. There is no village, no point d'appui from which the Germans can thrust out east of Ginchy for over two miles. Morval, northeast of the woods of Bouleaux, is the first village met with. The country between Ginchy and Morval, over two miles distant, is level and offers no defensive advantages. Therefore, until Morval is reached the Germans are in the open, from which, as soon as their counterattacks have ceased, the British can blast them out. Combles then will be in the familiar pocket and subject to the usual attack.

In this connection one thing is particularly noticeable and has been emphasized in the more recent of the French and British attacks. That is the comparative inability of the Germans to resist the blows when they come. The depth of advance on the occasion of the last two French attacks, for example, has been much greater than on any other occasion since the first attack was delivered. Succeeding the first attack there was the steady creeping forward of the French lines, it is true, but the individual gains were small, and although at times they did extend over a considerable front, they were shallow.

On the British front this is not the case. With one exception, the British attacks have never penetrated to any great depth, and the last attack against Ginchy, while delivered with great force, succeeded only in driving past the town. No better illustration could be had of the ability of the French to drive through to a considerable depth than the blow the French struck yesterday from Combles to the river. Starting from the south, they went straight to the Péronne-Bapaume highway, which they reached a few hundred yards south of Bouchavesnes. Continuing up this road, they enveloped the remainder of Marrière woods still held by the Germans, took in Hill 145, near the highway, and directly east of Leforest, until they reached the southern edge of Rancourt. This is the largest gain they have yet made, and the most dangerous one to the present German lines.

The first of the important north and south communications of the Germans has been cut. All direct routes between Péronne and Bapaume are closed. More than that, not only Combles but Péronne as well is threatened. The French line established along the Bapaume road has but to strike south and the rectangle included between the bend in the Somme near Cléry and the bend in the Cologne east of Péronne—Péronne is at once threatened. Penned in between two rivers, so that their position is inclosed on three sides, the Germans will have to get out. To remain and try to hold their positions would be to court sure capture or destruction should the French succeed in making even small headway.

On the north the situation about Combles is equally threatening. Without waiting for the British to come up, the French have begun an encircling movement of their own which has already placed the town under fire from two sides. This, however, was purely incidental to the movement in the south and not of itself primary. It is doubtful if any move is made against Combles until the situation in the rectangle I have mentioned is cleared up.

This situation is full of possibilities. The French hold practically all of the west bank of the River Somme, which forms part of this rectangle and have held it for weeks, so that their artillery is already well placed. The gain of yesterday brings them in the rear of this position, so that the entire area is under fire both from the front and rear as well as on the flank. It is already practically untenable.

CRUISER TO CARRY RELIEF.

Des Moines Also Will Take on American Refugees at Jaffa.

Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee for Jewish War Relief, announced yesterday that the United States cruiser Des Moines would leave soon for Alexandria and proceed to Jaffa to transport the medical supplies sent by the committee for the hospitals in Palestine.

Through the courtesy of the Secretary of the Navy, permission has been granted for the cruiser to take aboard at Jaffa the wives and children of American citizens who desire to leave the country and come to the United States. The passage from Jaffa to Alexandria occupies about thirty-six hours.

All Americans who wish to have their families leave Palestine on the Des Moines, Mr. Warburg states, should send the necessary evidence of their citizenship to Albert Lucas, Secretary of the Joint Distribution Committee, 50 Pine Street. In addition to the citizenship papers, it will be necessary to state where the husband was born, and, if naturalized, when and where, and the correct name of the mother and the children with their ages.

GREEK MINISTERS ANXIOUS TO RESIGN

CRISIS SEEMS INEVITABLE

Premier Zaimis, at the Request of the King, Withdraws His Resignation.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Athens received here this evening says:

"Several members of the Zaimis Cabinet called at the palace this morning and insisted that it was impossible for the Ministry to remain in power. The belief is now held in official circles that a Cabinet crisis cannot be avoided."

ATHENS, Sept. 11, (via London, Sept. 12.)—Premier Zaimis offered his resignation to King Constantine this afternoon. He pleaded that owing to the constant difficulties arising of late he was unable to carry out negotiations of the greatest importance for Greece and which were imperative at the present moment. At the request of the King, and on receiving an expression of confidence from the representatives of the Entente Ministers, Premier Zaimis finally withdrew his resignation.

An Egyptian Greek named Canelopoulos has confessed he was hired, with forty denizens of the gashouse district of Athens, to create the disturbance at the French Legation on Saturday, when shots were fired while the Entente Ministers were in conference there.

The French flag, which yesterday was hoisted over the legation, has been hauled down out of deference to Greek opinion, though the guard of French marines remains. The British Minister to Greece refused the offer of a legation guard, considering it unnecessary.

Labor troubles continue. The employes of the street-car lines of Athens and Piraeus have struck, and the postal and telegraph employes are now threatening to quit work on account of the increased cost of living.

AMERICANS TO AID ORPHANS

Committee Will Hear Miss van der Flier Tell of Belgians.

An American committee has been formed to aid the work of the Holland-America Home for Homeless Belgian Orphans, which Miss Hendrika A. C. van der Flier of The Hague originated in Holland two years ago. The committee here is headed by Theodore Roosevelt, and includes Ethelbert Watts, United States Consul General at Brussels; A. van de Sande Bakhuyzen, Consul General of the Netherlands at New York; Frederick C. Howe, Commissioner of Immigration; Horace White, Eugene I. Boissevain, W. Van Doorn, E. E. Olcott, Adolph Lewisohn, and August Belmont, who is Treasurer of the committee.

A meeting will be held Monday night at the McAlpin Hotel, when Miss van der Flier will outline her plans for the home. She will illustrate her talk with lantern slides showing conditions among the homes she is making for the little Belgian children. She arrived here last January and has been touring the country in behalf of her enterprise.

A permanent committee, which will look after the orphan children after the war, includes Ethelbert Watts, Baron Fallon, Belgian Ambassador at The Hauge; Dr. Frans van Cauwelaer, member of the Belgian Parliament, and Miss van der Flier.

TOLD TO KILL PRISONERS.

British Produce Letter Said to Have Been Found on a German.

From official British sources THE NEW YORK TIMES received yesterday the translation of a letter found on a German prisoner captured in the battle of the Somme. The prisoner, writing to his family in Stuttgart, said that the Germans had received orders "to take no prisoners, but to dispatch them with the bayonet." With the translation came a photograph of the original letter, which was addressed to "Karl Koch and Family, Kaltental, near Stuttgart."

A part of the letter, as officially translated, follows:

"And now we had three days' rest, and I could get nothing at all to drink except costly wine. It is very disagreeable to us that we are obliged to go through it once again; you cannot conceive it. So many of our comrades are missing, who have fallen or were wounded during the week, and now we are obliged to go through it once more. Oh dear!

"Here we have proper Englishmen against us, and have orders to take no prisoners, but to dispatch them all with the bayonet, which I would not be sorry to do. But they are always getting more prisoners from us, and what do they do with them?"

ITALIANS CONTINUE ADVANCE IN TRENTINO

ROME, Sept. 12.—The Austrians made an attack on the Trentino front last night in an endeavor to recapture positions taken by the Italians on Sunday. The War Office announced today that the attack was repulsed and that further progress had been made by the Italians. Following is the announcement:

In the zone between Vallarsa and the head of the Posina Valley yesterday the enemy, after a heavy bombardment, attempted to retake the positions which we captured on Sunday. The attack was immediately driven off. Our troops progressed in Vallarsa and in the upper Posina Valley.

Small skirmishes occurred on Monte Lagazzuoi, in the Travenanzes Valley, on the slopes of Cima Bosche, in the Travignolo Valley, and on the slopes of Monte Nero. The enemy was repulsed with loss.

On the Isonzo front there were no developments.

All Attacks Fail, Says Vienna.

VIENNA, Sept. 12, (via London.)—The War Office issued the following statement today regarding the Italian front:

Between the Adige and Astico Valleys repeated enemy attacks from Monte Spil to Monte Majo were everywhere repulsed with considerable losses.

In the coast region the artillery fire became more intense on the Carso plateau.

Aviation—Last night our marine aeroplane squadron attacked airship sheds and the station at Gesi, emplacements at Falcodora, and anti-aircraft batteries at Ancona. Several bombs were seen to strike the airship sheds. Our aeroplanes were bombarded by anti-aircraft guns, but all returned undamaged.

SEIZE ITALIAN SOCIALISTS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 12.—Considerable indignation has been expressed by the public at the arrest of two officers of the Italian Young Men's Socialist Association, named Morara and Prinotti, charged with organizing anti-war demonstrations in Italy and other countries for Sept. 24. The police searched the house where the young men were arrested and found 50,000 copies of an anti-militarist manifesto intended for distribution among the soldiers and workers.

The press believes the Socialist plot was instigated by Germany to influence the masses against the war. When Prince von Bülow was negotiating with Italy before the latter entered the war it was announced that Bülow had been helped by certain unpatriotic persons, then said to be anarchists. These are the same Italians who have just been arrested. The papers even hint that certain Socialist deputies are concerned in the plot, as they recently took a journey to Zurich.

Some see in this plot the weakness of Central Empires, which are ready to influence anyone to do anything, however low, to bring about peace while it can still favor them.

KAISER ANSWERS WILSON.

Sends a Personal Note Bearing on Relief for Poland.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A personal note from the Kaiser to President Wilson, replying to the President's appeal regarding famine relief measures for Poland, was received by Secretary Lansing today from Ambassador Gerard. It was forwarded to President Wilson and was not made public.

President Wilson on July 7 made a personal appeal to the rulers of Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, and Austria-Hungary for concessions in an effort to get relief for Poland. The replies of King George of England and President Poincaré of France, previously received, setting forth the position of the Entente Allies, said that nothing could be done because Germany has insisted on feeding her armies on the products of Poland.

The German Government took the position that nothing could be done in the direction of getting supplies to Poland on account of the attitude of the Entente Allies and that there was no necessity for relief operations because Polish crops were large.

J. P. Zaleski and K. Zurowski of Chicago, President and Vice President, respectively, of the Polish National Defense Committee, asked aid of the State and Navy Departments today in sending a shipload of condensed milk to Poland as a Christmas present for Polish babies. They asked Secretary Daniels for the use of a warship, and were told that they would receive all possible assistance from both departments.

SENDS BACK AUSTRIAN NOTE

Italian Government Objects to Protest of Seizure of Palazzo Venezia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 12.—Austria sent a note on Aug. 25 protesting against the Italian sequestration of the Palazzo Venezia. The Spanish Ambassador presented the note to the Italian Government.

Brussels Had to Pay Fine.

BERLIN, Sept. 12, (via London, Sept. 13.)—The report current abroad that the $250,000 fine imposed on the City of Brussels because of the street scenes attendant on the departure of Cardinal Mercier had been revoked is denied.

The announcement is made that the payment of the fine was completed on Aug. 30.

RUGS

INTO their rugs the people of the Celestial Empire wove the symbols of their idols, good and bad, their hopes and fears, their myths and legends. The endless knot of eternal friendship, the Great Wall of China, the sacred deer and bat, the military horse, the imperial medallion, the butterfly and the dragonfly, are among the better known of these symbols.

The remarkable collection of small scatter-size antique Chinese Rugs now displayed at Macy's contains many extraordinary and highly desirable examples.

The wonderful, rich Colorings of Antique Rugs cannot be reproduced by Modern Methods for the passing of many decades has softened the original colors into rare Mandarin golds, peach tints and delicate old blues. The rugs were woven on hand looms generations ago by a people whose love for their task overshadowed all commercial thought.

A New Special Purchase

The rugs offered in this sale, each an authentic, antique work of art, represent a special purchase which it took two years of concentrated effort by one of the foremost antique rug connoisseurs to collect. They are all small scatter sizes, some square, some oblong, and, most interesting of all, there are some which, once upon a time, were used as saddle bags by the aristocrats and warriors of China. These flattened out, make remarkably beautiful, unusual scatter rugs.

About $30,000 worth of rugs are represented in this collection, which we have specially priced at about $20,000. Following are a few of the prices which prevail.

Antique Chinese Squares

Antique Chinese Saddle Bags

MARSHALL DENIES DORSEY'S CHARGES

CALLS IT RACIAL APPEAL

New York Gathering Solely in Interest of Jews Abroad, and Frank Case Never Mentioned, He Says.

Louis Marshall issued the following statement yesterday in reply to ante-primary charges made by Hugh M. Dorsey, one of the candidates for the gubernatorial nomination in Georgia:

"Of all the astounding phenomena connected with the prosecution of Leo M. Frank, the statements which are attributed to Hugh M. Dorsey in the course of his candidacy for the nomination for Governor of Georgia, which appeared in today's TIMES, are the most shocking. He mendaciously intimates that there is some connection between the convention of the national Jewish organizations held here on July 16, 1916, over which I presided, and the Georgia gubernatorial campaign; that the participants in that convention conspired in some mysterious manner with ex-Governor Slaton to bring about Dorsey's defeat; and it is falsely asserted, with deliberate malice, that what he is pleased to call an enormous slush fund has been contributed to insure his defeat as a candidate for Governor.

"This attempt to seek votes by stirring up religious animosity is not only a disgrace to the country, but an insult to those whose suffrages are sought by this unscrupulous method. It is true that a convention was held at the Hotel Astor of a number of the leading national Jewish organizations, and that I was chosen to preside over its deliberations. That convention was open to the public. It was largely attended. Its proceedings were fully reported in the newspapers. Its sole purpose was to devise methods whereby the Jews of Russia, Rumania, Palestine, and other lands, where they are deprived of their full civil, religious, and political rights, might secure them through the medium of the peace congress which is likely to be held at the close of the European war. Neither Leo M. Frank nor Dorsey was even remotely thought of or in any way considered by those who participated in the meeting. If ex-Governor Slaton was in New York at the time, that fact was not known to me, or, so far as I have been able to learn, to anybody who attended the convention. There was no communication, either directly or indirectly, before or after the meeting, with him on any subject. That the Jews have contributed to any fund intended to insure the defeat of Dorsey is without the shadow of truth. So far as I have been able to learn, the Jews outside of Georgia have not to the slightest extent taken part in the campaign, into which he has injected his poisonous slanders and his insidious racial and religious attacks.

"It is evident that this demagogue is attempting to become Governor of Georgia because of the fact that Leo M. Frank, an innocent man, was taken out of the State prison, where he was entitled to the protection of every public official of the State, including Dorsey, and murdered in defiance of law, order, and justice. Although Dorsey was at the time a public official, it is apparent that he never interested himself in bringing these murderers to justice. On the contrary, his present attitude is in the nature of an attempt to justify that crime against the law. He attacks ex-Governor Slaton because, acting under his official oath, after the most painstaking examination, he became convinced that Frank was guiltless of the crime for which he was convicted, and commuted the sentence of death which had been pronounced against him. He attacks the Jews because he believes that he can profit politically by appealing to the base passions of religious and racial prejudice, which he has persistently sought to arouse for his personal aggrandisement. Whether he now succeeds or not in his political ambition, there can be no doubt as to where he will be consigned by the verdict of history."

Bernard G. Richards, Secretary of the Jewish Congress Committee which has its headquarters in New York City, gave out a statement last night denying the charges made by Hugh M. Dorsey, candidate for Governor of Georgia, that members of the Jewish Congress organisation had contributed to a fund intended to force Mr. Dorsey's defeat in the coming election.

"The attack of Mr. Dorsey and his attempt to connect the project for a Jewish Congress with the Frank case is absurd to the point of grotesqueness," said Mr. Richards. "The movement for a Jewish Congress has now been going on for over a year and a half, and any one who knows anything knows that the chief aim of the plan is the attainment of full rights for those Jews in European and other lands who still labor under civic and political disabilities.

"In connection with the Jewish problem which has arisen out of the war, and with the agitation for the Jewish Congress, two conferences of representatives of Jewish organizations were held, the first and largest one in Philadelphia on March 25 and 26, and the second and more exclusive one in New York on July 16, last. Both dealt with the present crisis in Jewish life and with the congress question. Both had about as much to do with the Leo Frank case as with the Boxer uprising in China.

"Throughout the agitation of nearly two years, neither the name of Dorsey nor of Frank has ever been mentioned by any one in connection with the movement. The suggestion that the Jews would ever defend a criminal just because he was a Jew and because he was denied his rights before the law, is as extravagant as the rest of the statement.

"Like the Jews in many other States in the Union, the Jews of Georgia assisted in the relief work for the Jewish victims of the war and have also formed several committees to aid in the organisation of the proposed congress, to labor for Jewish rights in Europe. We have corresponded with Jewish societies in a hundred different cities of the country and have yet to hear from any one who ever cherished a thought of connecting the Frank case with our work.

"The story of a meeting held here by Jews with ex-Governor Slaten is one of purest fiction. Ours is a democratic American movement for human rights and we have always courted the fullest publicity."

nomination, and Benjamin Gates of Montpelier was leading Thomas H. Cave, Jr., by a small margin in the contest for the nomination for State Auditor. There were no other fights on the State ticket. Horace F. Graham of Craftsbury received the gubernatorial nomination, Walter F. Scott of Brandon was named for State Treasurer, Guy W. Bailey of Essex for Secretary of State, and Herbert G. Barber of Brattleboro for Attorney General.

Frank L. Greene of St. Albans, and Porter H. Dale of Island Pond, members of Congress from the First and Second Districts, respectively, were renominated without opposition.

The Democrats nominated candidates for the United States Senate, House, and State offices without opposition. Their ticket follows: Senator, Oscar C. Miller, Newport; Representatives—First District, Emmett B. Daley, Bennington; Second District, G. Herbert Pape, Brattleboro; Governor, William B. Mayo, Northfield; Lieutenant Governor, Henry C. Brislin, Rutland; Treasurer, Orlo H. Luce, Stowe; Secretary of State, Thomas B. Wright, Burlington; Auditor, Jeremiah C. Durick, Fair Haven; Attorney General, Frederick L. Webster, Swanton.

DENVER, Sept. 12.—Early scattering returns from the Colorado primary election today showed Samuel D. Nicholson of Leadville leading Governor George A. Carlson for the Republican nomination in Denver, while the Governor was running stronger out in the State. Forty-six precincts in Denver gave Nicholson 3,015 and Carlson 1,916. Ten precincts outside of Denver gave Nicholson 851 and Carlson 773. Approximately 50 per cent. of the registered vote was cast.

The following unopposed nominations for Congress were made in today's primary: First District—Hattie K. Howard, Progressive; Second District—Charles B. Timberlake, Republican, (incumbent;) Ralph R. Drener, Progressive; Third District—Edward Keating, Democrat, (incumbent;) William G. Francis, Progressive; Fourth District—Edward T. Taylor, Democrat, (incumbent;) Henry J. Baird, Republican.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 12.—Early returns from scattering precincts throughout the State tonight showed Governor George W. P. Hunt leading George A. Olney for the Democratic nomination for Governor. About 70 per cent. of the registered vote of the State was cast.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 12.—Scattering returns tonight from Western Washington in today's primary election show Senator Miles Poindexter and Representative Will E. Humphrey running close together for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, counting first and second choice votes. The same precincts gave former Governor Henry McBride, Republican, for Governor, a plurality of first-choice votes, with Roland Hartley second.

SMELTERS' EARNINGS BREAK ALL RECORDS

The American Co. Reports Profits of $13,229,059 for First Six Months of 1916.

16.2 PER CENT. IN DIVIDENDS

Income for Period Named Greater Than for All 1914—$6,642,959 Goes Into the Surplus.

The vast business coming to the metal industries was reflected yesterday in the semi-annual report of the American Smelting and Refining Company, which showed net earnings greater in the six months ended June 30 than in all of the year 1914. The total income from mines and smelters was $13,229,059, approximately twice as much as was returned in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal period. After making liberal depreciation allowances and setting aside more than four times as much for research work as a year ago, the company was able to report net revenues of $11,145,693, compared with $5,019,081 in the first six months of 1915. The complete year of 1914 brought in a net income [illegible] 271,565 and last year the profit was $14,402,732.

A balance of $8,146,199 remained for the common stock after preferred stock dividends had been paid, this being equivalent to 16.2 per cent. on the junior shares. If the remainder of this year sees equal results the balance will be more than 32 per cent. The six months surplus was $6,642,959, compared with $1,015,081 for the corresponding period last year.

The abnormal earnings were attained without any help from the company's properties outside the country.

"We have again to record with great regret," said President Daniel Guggenheim in his statement to shareholders, "the entire lack of earnings from the very valuable properties of the company in the Republic of Mexico."

Mr. Guggenheim said that, while prices had been stimulated far beyond any previous record, it had not been altogether clear sailing for the company.

"Wages have been advanced," he stated, "and an eight-hour day introduced at all points. The cost of materials has been advanced 50 per cent., and, in more than one instance, more than 100 per cent. On this account profits per ton of ore smelted, or bullion refined, have been seriously reduced, due to the fact that the toll received from the mines and smelters has been fixed in long-term contracts, made when present costs were not believed possible. The present favorable showing as to profits is due, partly, to a very large and abnormal increase in business, but to a greater extent to production of company mines and to new lines of business in which the company has interested itself, and which it is hoped will be increasingly profitable."

The report said that the smelting and refining capacity had been substantially increased during the half year and new properties had been bought at a total cost of $3,623,786. The balance sheet showed cash amounting to $10,556,007 and demand loans totaling $4,804,704, the latter item being approximately $3,000,000 larger than six months before.

WELCOMES BREAD INQUIRY.

Head of Bakers' Organization Says Higher Price is Justified.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 12.—S. F. McDonald, President of the National Association of Master Bakers, today announced in a telegram from Memphis to T. T. Frankenberg, representative of the association in this city, that the bakers welcomed the fullest Federal investigation into the cause of the proposed increase in the price of bread. The statement was in reply to information from Chicago that the city and Federal authorities would institute such an investigation.

"The bakers of the United States court the fullest investigation at the hands of Federal, State or municipal authorities," said the telegram. "They will cooperate in any investigation, provided the findings are completely given to the public."

"This is a wonderful opportunity," Mr. McDonald continued, "for the general public to get a proper understanding of the baking industry, which supplies approximately one-half the tables of the United States. I would suggest that if investigations are not started by legal authorities, that women's clubs and other institutions take up the subject."

LAUNCH 37,000-TON VESSEL.

New French Steamer Paris Will Carry 3,000 Passengers.

ST. NAZAIRE, France, Sept. 12.—The steamship Paris, of the French Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company, was launched here today. She is the largest steamship ever constructed in any French yard and will go into the service between Havre and New York.

The Paris has a displacement of 37,000 tons and has 45,000-horsepower. She is 639 feet long, with a beam of 84 feet and a draft of 40 feet. She will accommodate 3,000 passengers of all classes.

FRENCH LINE ADDED SHIPS DESPITE WAR

Compagnie Generale Transatlantique Made Substantial Profit in 1915.

INCREASED NET TONNAGE

Losses by Submarine Activity and Services to Government Offset by Large Freight Traffic.

The annual report of the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique, better known as the French Line, made public here yesterday, shows that France's merchant marine has grown instead of diminished since the war began. Among other vessels, the company has built and placed in commission a modern passenger steamship of 14,800 tons, and it has maintained an uninterrupted passenger and freight service between France and the Western Hemisphere.

At the beginning of the war the French Line placed every available steamship at the disposal of the Government, and its private shipyards, dry docks, and workshops were thrown open to the French naval constructors and Ministry of Marine. Notwithstanding an almost total absence of tourist travel, the reduction to an insignificant minimum of westward emigration traffic and losses incurred through the submarine activity, the report shows a substantial profit, due to large freight traffic.

In 1915 the French Line offset the losses incurred through requisitions and the acts of enemy submarines by placing in commission, besides the Lafayette, the Vaucluse, La Nievre, Ardeche, Mont Blanc, La Dives, Saint Andre, Saint Joseph, Saint Jean, Saint Louis, and the Saint Marc. In December, 1915, the company had 85 steamships, a total net tonnage of 394,004, and 389,960 horse power, an increase over 1914 of one steamship, 6,414 net tonnage and 4,500 horse power.

The heavy demand in France for material and labor has retarded construction of the gigantic new steamship Paris, which was to have been completed and placed in commission last year. Work on the Paris has been continued steadily, and it is expected that it will be ready for service soon after peace is declared.

Freight shipments were hampered through the congestion of freight and loading facilities in the port of New York and also through the inadequate equipment and shortage of labor in the French ports. Congestion in New York is attributed to the unusual number of vessels from the ports in Europe, from South American and Pacific Coast points, which made the question of berthing all incoming vessels a matter of delay and difficulty. Even after coming to a pier in New York, the report states, vessels have sometimes remained idle a week before sufficient facilities could be obtained to load them.

"Allows Splendid Color Distribution"
G. W. Danneman & Co.

"WE are glad to say that we are able to recommend Tokyo Bond very highly, and have done so to several of our critical customers who desired a 'classy' effect in their printing or lithographing, without a too high cost.

"We have found Tokyo Bond eminently suitable for such purposes. In lithography especially where a perfectly flat surfaced paper is desirable, we have found that Tokyo Bond takes the ink evenly and allows of a splendid color distribution for either one color or process work."

Yours very truly,
G. W. DANNEMAN & CO.

JAPAN EXPLAINS DEMANDS ON CHINA

Nothing Asked Which Violates American Compact, Tokio Tells Guthrie.

SOVEREIGNTY NOT IN PERIL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—An authoritative statement of the character and extent of the demands made by Japan upon China for apologies, indemnities, and rights in Southern Manchuria and Eastern Mongolia by way of reparation for the alleged attack on Japanese troops at Chang Chiatun was received by Secretary of State Lansing today by cable from George W. Guthrie, American Ambassador to Japan.

The statement was obtained by Mr. Guthrie from the Japanese Minister of Foerign Affairs, and was in response to inquiries made by the Ambassador under instructions cabled to him by Secretary Lansing on Sept. 6. The Ambassador summarizes the demands and reports that the Japanese Ministry has given assurances that there "was nothing in the demands infringing the sovereignty of China and nothing impairing the Root-Takahira agreement."

Whether the demands made by Japan are strictly in accordance with these assurances is a matter for international lawyers to determine. In making public the result of this Government's request for the facts Secretary Lansing made no comment, and refused to give any statement concerning this Government's interpretation and construction of the Japanese Government's explanation.

Generally speaking the assurances given by Japan are, however, regarded by this Government as reassuring. The Japanese Government's denial that the demands it has made upon China infringe the sovereignty of China or impair the Root-Takahira agreement is regarded as an important statement.

It is semi-officially interpreted as a reiteration of intention by the Japanese Government to live up to the principle of the open door and to the terms of the agreement between Japan and this country.

The demands made by the Japanese Government are also found to be, as explained by the Japanese Minister, considerably less general than as originally reported in newspaper dispatches from the Orient. According to these earlier reports Japan was represented as having demanded that China should grant to the Japanese Government police rights over inner Mongolia, a vast stretch of territory. As explained by the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs to Ambassador Guthrie, the demand for police rights is restricted to the placing of Japanese policemen in large Japanese settlements.

Secertary Lansing's announcement was as follows: "The department on Sept. 6 instructed the American Ambassador at Tokio to call the attention of the Japanese Foreign Office to reports published in American newspapers of certain demands made upon China by Japan in consequence of a disturbance of the peace at Cheng Chiatun, involving Chinese and Japanese troops. The Ambassador was instructed to ask for a statement of the facts and to inform the Foreign Office that the report of the demands made had greatly disturbed the American Government, which trusted that it was not true.

"Today (Sept. 12) a message has been received from the Embassy at Tokio saying that the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs had replied to his inquiries that some of the items reported as included in Japan's demands were approximately true, but that others were colored by a mixture of untruth and exaggeration.

"He stated that there was nothing in the demands infringing the sovereignty of China and nothing impairing the Root-Takahira agreement.

"The clash at Cheng Chiatun, being between military forces, was of a serious character and, therefore, in order to prevent a recurrence of such trouble, Japan was requesting, in addition to proper apologies and monetary compensation, that Japanese officers should be reappointed as instructors in the cadet school (probably at Mukden) and, suggesting that the Chinese Government should ask for the appointment of Japanese advisers to be stationed with Chinese garrisons in South Manchuria and Eastern Mongolia, and that, as an extension of its ex-territorial rights, the Japanese Government should be permitted to station Japanese policemen in towns where there are large Japanese settlements.

"The American Minister at Peking reports more briefly very nearly to the same effect; that is to say, that the Japanese Government had demanded the stationing of Japanese police in towns where Japanese reside and the appointment of Japanese advisers to the Chinese police and the appointment of Japanese military instructors in addition to the usual indemnities and apologies."

The best obtainable interpretation of the attitude of officials of this Government toward the Japanese explanation obtainable tonight is that the assurances made by the Japanese Foreign Minister are reassuring. The Japanese Government denies that the demands infringe Chinese sovereignty or impair the Root-Takahira agreement. In Chinese quarters it has been contended that these demands do infringe Chinese sovereignty. This Government's attitude must be one of interpretation. The negotiations growing out of the presentation of the demands are still in progress at Peking. It was intimated tonight that possibly the Japanese demands may be modified in these negotiations.

By the Root-Takahira agreement Japan and the United States again pledged the integrity of China and agreed to keep each other informed as to any steps which might change the status quo.

VOICE JAPAN'S FEAR OF US.

Newspapers There Comment on Editorials in The New York Times.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Aug. 15.—The American press opinion of Japan and the Pacific problems has aroused Japanese newspapers. They are paying close attention to what American newspapers say about the question. The larger newspapers, such as the Nichi-Nichi, the Asahi, and the Jiji in Tokio, and the Osaka Mainichi and the Asahi, have recently been publishing long cablegrams sent by their correspondents in the United States. Other newspapers which are not willing to pay high cable tolls are satisfied with translating the Far Eastern articles from American newspapers.

Editorials about Japan which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES that the last American mail brought here were translated by many Japanese newspapers. One of THE TIMES editorials which declared a preference for Germany to Japan as an American neighbor in the South Seas has interested Japanese editors. Many replied and said that Japan had no intention of menacing the American South Seas possessions.

It can [illegible] between the lines that Japan is determined to retain the German South Sea islands which she seized. Several parties of the South Sea islanders were brought to Japan by Japanese transports, so that they could get acquainted with the civilization of their possible future rulers. There is now a party of tribal chieftains in Tokio.

Soho Tokudomi, one of the ablest editors of Japan, publishes a signed article in his newspaper, the Kokumin, which represents Japanese feelings toward America today. Mr. Tokudomi is afraid that Japan may be invaded by the United States.

"The fate of the future Japan will mostly be decided by the relationship with the great republic across the Pacific," he says in part. "Let us be honest and treat truth as truth. We are more concerned with the American-Japanese relations than with our relations with Germany. About sixty years ago we were obliged to welcome an unexpected visit by Commodore Perry. Are we not in danger of having the visit repeated in the near future unless we are carefully paying attention?

"Japan has always shown her gratitude toward America for their traditional friendship. No matter how anti-Japanese one may be, he can never say that the Japanese are an ungrateful people. That Japan has a scheme to invade the United States is a malicious invention of those who are planning to entangle Japan with America, or of those who are trying to take advantage of any misunderstanding between the two countries. But who can guarantee that the United States has not such a scheme because Japan has it not?

"It is said that the United States is a peaceful country. But its history is full of warlike pages. Was not George Washington, father of the American people, a famous General? Is not the territorial extension on the American continent a result of the war with Mexico? Are not the American overseas possessions a result of the war with Spain? If it is too much exaggeration to say that the Americans are a warlike people, it is also too much exaggeration to say that the Americans are a peace-loving people.

"American diplomacy has always been blunt, and the blunt American diplomacy shocked even Bismarck, who was its very inventor. The Americans know themselves, but they do not understand others. They are like a blind man who is not afraid of a snake. The world has often been disturbed by the American blind man and snake diplomacy.

"Foreign Minister Lord Palmerston's secret of diplomacy was to use gunboats in dealing with small and weak countries which he called half-civilized. The United States is trying to solve the Pacific problems with battleships. Japan is doomed to be an opponent of the United States if the latter pursues the present policy. Truth is not always a pleasant companion, but we must not hide it. Our remarks may not be pleasant to the feelings of both the Japanese and Americans, but flattering words may be injurious to the future of the two countries."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Palace will offer next week as the third of the series of playlets from the repertoire of the Washington Square Players to be presented in vaudeville Zoe Akins's drama in free verse, "The Magical City." Margaret Mower, who created the principal role at the Bandbox last season, will be seen in the part at the Palace. Lee Simonson's original setting will be used.

This will be the last week of Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolic" on the New Amsterdam Roof. The roof will be closed next week, and the following Monday night a new midnight revue will be presented. The opening night an extra performance will be given at 9 o'clock for the benefit of the reviewers. A new entertainment is also in course of preparation for the Forty-fourth Street Theatre Roof.

Eugene Walter has written a play called "The Knife," and A. H. Woods has acquired the production rights. The play is in a prologue and three acts.

Edward Peple's drama of Quaker life, "Friend Martha," is being rehearsed under the direction of Edgar MacGregor on the stage of the Eltinge. Oza Waldrop will play the title role and in other parts will be Charles A. Stevenson, Reginald Denny, Jack Raffael, Walter Walker, Walter Howe, Mabel Burt, Ida Mulle, and Gladys Fairbanks. The play, which was first acted by the Manhattan Players in Rochester last Summer, is scheduled for a Broadway hearing soon.

George Parsons, who has been identified with a number of H. H. Frazee's farce productions, has been engaged by that manager for the principal comedy role in Mr. and Mrs. George Randolph Chester's new farce, "Business Before Pleasure."

The Hippodrome is making arrangements to give the boys of the Seventy-first Regiment a party when they return to New York.

Christine Norman and Courtney Foote have been added to the cast of the Hatton comedy, "Up Stairs and Down," with which the Cort Theatre will be reopened Monday, Sept. 25.

E. H. Sothern has added to the cast that will appear with him in "If I Were King" the following players: Albert Howson, P. J. Kelly, Esther Banks, and Millicent McLaughlin.

Three performances of Willard Mack's "King, Queen, Jack," to the cast of which Florence Reed and Lewis S. Stone were recently added, will be given in Providence, beginning Sept. 21.

Eva Tanguay will begin a tour at the head of a vaudeville company next Saturday at Union Hill, N. J. The company will go directly to the Pacific Coast. Charles J. Ross is one of the artists in her company.

ACCUSED OF $50,000 THEFT.

Clerk in City Water Department Arrested on Indictment.

Joseph Lewis of 1,663 Nelson Avenue, the Bronx, a clerk in the cashier's office of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, was arrested yesterday by Detective Bernard Flood of the District Attorney's staff on two indictments returned by the Grand Jury charging him with the misappropriation of the funds of the department. It was said at the office of the District Attorney that Lewis's alleged peculations total more than $50,000.

The specific indictments allege that Lewis stole $205 on Nov. 18, 1915, which was paid by the Roseff Realty Company of Fifth Avenue and 110th Street, and on April 26, 1916, $180, which was the amount of a bill paid by the New York Railways Company. Lewis was arraigned before Judge Wadhams in the Court of General Sessions and held in $2,000 bail for trial.

Cccording to Assistant District Attorney Bohun, suspicion fell on Lewis following a marked decrease in the revenue of the department during the last two years, when the receipts fell off nearly $50,000. Water Register Nelson Henry began an investigation and as a result Lewis was dismissed from his place by Commissioner Williams. The matter was then placed before the Grand Jury.

One of the methods said to have been adopted by Lewis was to issue permits for extra water supply and collect the amounts due. This money, it is charged, was kept by Lewis, instead of being turned in to the city.

CALL WEBER INCOMPETENT.

But Sheriff's Jury Says Wealthy Realty Owner Is Not Insane.

"Incompetent, but not insane," was the verdict of a Sheriff's jury which inquired yesterday into the sanity of Conrad Weber, wealthy realty owner and executor under the will of William Kraner, owner of Atlantic Garden and other valuable property on the Bowery. The proceedings were held before a commission consisting of Dr. H. Valentine Wildman, the alienist; Patrick A. Whitney, ex-Commissioner of Correction, and Theodore K. McCarthy, a lawyer.

The testimony showed that Weber, who is past 72 years old, had suffered from hallucinations for a long period, during which time he had lived at the Union Square Hotel. His condition became aggravated after the death of his daughter Mary last December. She was the last of five children. His mind became so weak finally that he was removed to the home of his brother, August Weber, at 17 Thirty-sixth Street, Brooklyn.

Song and Light Festival Tonight.

Park Commissioner Cabot Ward said yesterday he expected 50,000 to attend the "Song and Light Festival" which will be given by the Community Chorus tonight at 8 o'clock on the banks of the large lake in Central Park. Workmen were busy yesterday stringing wires for the "geometrical lanterns," designed by Claude Bragdon, which will throw many colored lights across the lake, and the chorus has also placed 5,000 Japanese lanterns in the groves overlooking the bank. The chorus, under the direction of Harry Barnhart, will sing across the water from the north shore of the lake.

"Girl from Brazil" to Buenos Aires.

The Shuberts completed arrangements yesterday with the Directors of the National Opera House in Buenos Aires to send an American company to present "The Girl from Brazil" there. The company will leave on a Lamport & Holt liner in November, and en route will give performances in Santos, Montevideo, and Rio Janeiro. If the venture proves successful other companies will be sent to South America to appear there in American plays.

"Arms and the Girl" for Fulton.

A new romantic comedy by Grant Stewart and Robert Baker entitled "Arms and the Girl" will be presented by William Harris, Jr., at the Fulton Theatre Tuesday night, Sept. 26. In the cast will be seen Cyril Scott, Fay Bainter, Frank Byrne, Ethel Intropodi, Catherine Calhoun, J. Malcolm Dunn, Marie Hassels, Paul Cazeneuve, Henry Vogel, and Karl Deitz.

Baby in Montague Glass's Home.

Montague Glass, the short story writer and dramatist, and Mrs. Glass are the parents of a baby girl born yesterday at their home in New Rochelle.

ASKS FOR CENT IN 5TH AV.

But Policeman Insists on Lending Woman a Whole Nickel.

A young woman approached Sergeant Peter Reed of the East Fifty-first Street Police Station as he stood at the police call box on the safety isle in the middle of Fifth Avenue at Forty-second Street yesterday afternoon.

"Mr. Officer, will you please lend me a cent?" she said.

"A cent," echoed the bluecoat. "Why, bless your heart, I'll lend you as many as you want."

"Well, one will be enough," she replied. "You see, it was this way. I thought I had enough money—that is, I mean I'm afraid to go—I want to go home on the Fifth Avenue 'bus and I was in the candy store and had some soda and I thought I had enough change left, but when I came out I discovered I had only a nickle and four pennies. So, you see, I need another cent."

"That's easily remedied," said the Sergeant. "Here is a nickle, and now I'll put you on your 'bus."

"Oh, I don't want a nickle; I couldn't think of it. Take these four pennies, please."

"That's my minimum; I never lend less than a nickle," said the Sergeant firmly. "Now, here comes your bus."

"But I'll return the nickle tomorrow. Will you be here?"

"I don't know where I'll be. Don't let that worry you," the Sergeant replied.

"Well, then, I'll mail it to you—if you will tell me your name and where you live," the young woman insisted.

"Never mind, that will be all right."

"I'm going to look for you tomorrow and make you take the nickle back," she said from the bus step as the Sergeant saluted.

TOTO MOURNS HIS PATTY.

Hippodrome Clown's French Bulldog Has Wandered Away.

Toto, the Hippodrome clown, has lost a French brindle bull with a white collar which was a gift from Dr. Potter. The pup was named Patty and assisted his master on the ice in the skating scene.

Patty lived in the stables beneath the Hippodrome and never went out unchaperoned, but yesterday some one left the door open and he wandered away. In his place at yesterday's performances was a wooden toy dog. Toto, in his own way, is advertising today for the return of his pet, whose departure he deeply mourns.

NOT TO WED THE DIVORCED.

Episcopal Church Commission Favors a New Canon.

If the recommendations of a commission of five Bishops and five clergymen and prominent laymen of the Episcopal Church are adopted by the General Convention at St. Louis next month, it will be impossible for any divorced persons to be married by an Episcopal clergyman. Hitherto the canon law of the Church has allowed an exception in the case of the innocent party.

It is purposed to suggest a new canon absolutely prohibiting marriage between persons either of whom has a husband or wife living, and who has been divorced for any cause arising after marriage. This will not affect cases where the marriage relation is annulled by the courts for causes arising before the marriage.

Hill's Minnesota Estate.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 12.—A preliminary inventory of the estate of the late James J. Hill, obtained by the Probate Court here, shows Minnesota holdings approximating $40,000,000, it was said today, on which about $1,250,000 inheritance tax would be paid to this State.

END THE STRIKE.

The traction strike in this city has degenerated into a purposeless, profitless nuisance. The Mayor and the Public Service Commission should now discontinue their inquiry into the cause and manner of its beginning and take such measures as lie in their power to end it.

Strikes that are destined to be successful either succeed at once or make such rapid and visible gains from day to day that the employer party to the conflict, foreseeing certain defeat, gives up the fight and makes terms. This strike has not taken that course. It was aimed at the Interborough Company, yet the daily volume of traffic upon the Interborough lines is above normal. The organizers of the strike have not succeeded in stopping the traffic of the surface lines. Trips are less frequent, a good many men have gone out, the interruption of service is serious, but cars are still running. The public is put to very great annoyance, but that is all that it amounts to. Acts of violence are increasing in number, and that is the usual sure evidence of a failing strike.

Mr. FITZGERALD of the Amalgamated Association came here to compel the employés of the Interborough Company to desert their own union and join his. Only a minority of the men were in sympathy with his purpose, yet he has attempted to coerce them, employing the usual means. He is trying to force a large majority to yield to a small minority. The situation is similar to that which would arise should cities enjoying a commission form of government form an amalgamated association and send their walking delegate, business agent, or organizer to this city to persuade it to abandon its present municipal government and adopt the commission plan. The organizer would be told that the people of New York are very well satisfied with the best City Government they have enjoyed within the memory of any of them now living, that they were not interested in commission government or in the amalgamated association of cities governed in that way. If then the organizer should adopt strike tactics and with such converts as he could secure should endeavor to block the wheels of the City Government, reduce it to impotence, and by coercion force the adoption of his plan, the parallel with Mr. FITZGERALD's procedures would be complete.

We should know what to do in that case. Happily the laws provide for the punishment of plots to destroy Governments. But the laws leave us powerless and without a remedy against the plots of labor organizers to stop the operation of our industrial and transportation machinery, even though the public suffers great loss and untold annoyance in consequence. Is there any reason why this community should lie flat on its back, unresisting, voiceless, and let Mr. FITZGERALD drag out his futile strike day after day and perhaps week after week? He is trying to substitute one kind of union for another, his union for the union within the trade which the employés of the Interborough Company have found satisfactory. The proof of that is that a very great majority of them are sticking to their jobs. Mr. FITZGERALD persists, therefore, merely because he will not acknowledge that he is beaten. To save his pride the public must suffer.

We suggest to the Mayor and the Public Service Commission that they find a way to bring the Fitzgerald disturbance promptly to an end. And the business interests of the city, the merchants, managers of places of entertainment and of amusement, the thousands of business concerns that have no relation with either party to the controversy, but are suffering loss and damage from the prolongation of the strike, ought to find some way to give effective support to Mayor MITCHEL and Chairman STRAUS in that undertaking.

The Mayor and Mr. STRAUS have reached the conclusion that the questions at issue are arbitrable under the agreement of Aug. 7. If they are hopeful that a settlement can be reached in that way, then they should use all their powers and all their influence to bring about an arbitration. We ought to have laws that would compel arbitration at the beginning, not in the middle or at the end of a strike. We shall have such laws as soon as the people force their legislators to make them. But either by arbitration or in some other effective way the intolerable nuisance of this traction strike must be abated.

LABOR'S VOTE IN MAINE.

About the general result in Maine the political chieftains will profitlessly wrangle and prove what is satisfactory to each of them. There are about the minor results certain lessons that no one can escape. There is something, for instance, to be learned from the defeat of DANIEL J. McGILLICUDDY, the Democratic Congressman from the Second District, and the only Democrat in the Maine delegation. He was first elected in 1910, he was reelected in 1912 and again in 1914; this is his first defeat since he went to Congress. He is a man of ability, so well thought of in Congress that he is on the Ways and Means Committee. His district includes Bath and other manufacturing cities and has a large labor vote. Mr. McGILLICUDDY has always been friendly to the labor interests and has been active in progressive legislation, and it is the votes of laboring men which have returned him year after year to Congress, even when the Democrats lost in the rest of the State.

This year there were all the old reasons why labor men should vote for McGILLICUDDY, one would suppose, and others in addition. That is, one would suppose it if one believed that the labor vote was a block of votes which could be swung one way or the other and always in response to bids made for it by politicians. This year McGILLICUDDY had all his old claims on the labor vote, and this year, in addition, his party had just enacted much labor legislation and it had averted a great railroad strike by compelling the railroads and the country to yield to the demands of the brotherhoods. Yet, strange to say, this was the one year, out of the four in which McGILLICUDDY has run for Congress, in which he was defeated, in which the labor vote obviously did not support him as generally before.

The lesson is evident. The labor vote is cast just as other votes are cast. Truckling to it, abasing one's party before it, does not win it. The mechanics of Bath and Auburn voted on the issues of the day, just as did the farmers of Oxford County. Mr. HUGHES's denunciations of the strike settlement, even his apparent hostility to the eight-hour principle, did not avail to arouse the unions of Sagadahoc against him. The Congressmen who voted for the strike law did not annex to their following a body of voters voting blindly to reward any one who might coddle them at the expense of the public. The union labor men of Maine are vindicated from this charge made by those who regarded it not as a charge but as a compliment. There is a lesson, too plain to miss, for politicians all over the country.

MEXICO MUST PAY ITS DEBTS.

There is no danger that the United States Government will ever be compelled to pay out of its own funds the claims of Americans and other foreigners against Mexico. In time all claims that are just will be settled by the Mexican Government, which is not yet existent. The claims are said to amount to $1,000,000,000, of which $400,000,000 are held by Europeans. These are large figures, but Mexico has wealth enough to settle them all, if they are just. Mexico is a country of vast resources. The fear referred to in our dispatches from New London, that the United States may have to pay the European claims because the European Powers consented to let our Government have a free hand in dealing with Mexico and supported our Mexican policy, is quite groundless. We could not, of course, permit European Powers to take forcible possession of Mexican territory for the purpose of collecting the money due to them, but it is at present extremely unlikely that any attempt will be made to invade Mexico or seize its territory.

All the world wants to see Mexico at peace, with her industries in full operation, her mines working, and her railroads carrying her silver and copper, her lumber, coffee, rubber, and cereals, to good markets. She can soon recover her solvency when her people stop fighting and get to work, and if she then wants to borrow outside capital, to help develop her amazingly rich resources, it will be available in large sums. Another idea that may be dismissed without debate is that the United States Government will ever lend a huge sum of public money to Mexico. That is out of the question. Our Government may encourage the lending of money to the Mexican Government by private investors, but it cannot hope to do that until the investors are satisfied that the security is good. That cannot be until peace is entirely restored.

All accounts agree that the situation in Northern Mexico is still dubious. To be sure, General PERSHING has been unable to find a trace of the reported rebel movement under VILLA. The lie factories along the border are still active. But there are armed outlaws afoot, and any relaxing of vigilance along our border might have direful results. The International Commission at New London has had gratifying evidence, however, of the progress made toward pacification by the de facto Government. Railway communication has become nearly normal over 12,000 miles of tracks, and the country possesses only 13,000. It is said that harbors have been improved, lighthouses built, the schools reestablished in many places, and some of the new land laws put in operation. There is much hope for Mexico, but she needs strong administrative ability in her government. Meanwhile the deliberations of the Commission are largely confined to the border situation and proposed measures for the suppression of banditry. The raiding fever must be cured and peaceable conditions restored in the north before much real progress can be made toward the financial rehabilitation of Mexico.

THE REPUBLICAN NEED.

Some of the Republican Elder Politicians are said to be grieved and moved by what their wisdom holds to be the mistakes of the National Republican Committee, and Chairman WILLCOX in particular. There is something the matter with the Republican campaign. It limps. It lacks "punch" and "pepper." The Western circumvagations of the candidate were ineffectual. The Republican voters refuse to get excited. It must be the Committee's Chairman's fault. It always is. The post of Chairman of a National Committee is as thankless a one as exists. The mutterings and grumblings at him of the old hands, big and little, are heard every four years. Visitors to headquarters, supernumerary sitters there; small officials, a whole clan of hangers-on, shake mournful heads. If they had charge of the campaign! But what can you expect? The chorus of political cicadas chirps every fourth Autumn. So has it been even when political experts of renowned slickness or unscrupulous adroitness were in charge. Now a mere amateur, this man WILLCOX, is Chairman. Inevitably, the professionals complain, their heads stored with all the legends, customs, and credulities of politicians, the simplest and most easily gulled of men, but profoundly convinced of their own profundity.

The choice of Mr. WILLCOX was a stroke of luck or evidence of wisdom on Mr. HUGHES's part. Obviously, a Chairman of the Elder Politician, the Crane-Smoot type, was out of the question. The Progressives would have fled from the premises. Mr. WILLCOX is only a man of high ability and character, a sound administrator, experienced in large affairs, shrewd, energetic, tactful, above all—and in the straits of the Republican Party this was a prerequisite—of high character and honor, commanding confidence, and scorning that petty trickery and chicane and tenderness to doubtful methods which marked the old-fashioned political manager.

The importance of the Chairman of a National Committee is usually absurdly exaggerated, not by himself but by his critics and politicians generally. The critics of Mr. WILLCOX and the Republican National Committee are blaming the wrong man. We shouldn't bother about the grief of the professionals, but a common feeling in the Middle and Far West is expressed by The Spokesman-Review of Spokane and needs to be soothed:

> What ails the Republican National Committee? Is it down with the "sleeping sickness," or is it under the delusion that HUGHES is already elected and no great effort will be needed to prevent Progressives drifting over to WILSON in large numbers? Up to date the National Committee has been asleep at the switch.

Somebody is asleep, but it isn't Mr. WILLCOX or the National Committee. They are doing the best they can to propel inertia. If the Republicans want vigor and fire to take the place of dragging and listless weariness in the campaign, they don't need a new Chairman, a new Committee.

THE NEW RAILWAY BILL OF LADING.

Bills of lading rank with bills of exchange and checks as commercial instruments. Consignments of more than a score of billions of dollars of value are made each year, and bankers have estimated that five billions of dollars are advanced annually on the security of railway bills of lading. Consequently it was an international scandal when it was discovered that forged bills of lading had been issued in 1910 on cotton sent to England. Litigation to place the responsibility for the loss has been carried on ever since, and has not yet ended. Nobody was ever punished for the forgery, because it was not possible even to find an indictment. It was even decided that the railways could not be held financially responsible unless they had actually received the cotton. Bills of lading issued in the course of trade did not certainly bind the railways. This was the more unendurable since it was shown that the practice regarding the issue of railway bills was so irregular and irresponsible that it was easy to put afloat worthless bills.

Such responsibility will no longer be tossed back and forth between the railways and the bankers who deal in bills of exchange. Concurrently with the litigation there has been persistent pressure for new laws. Three times the bill passed the Senate only to be delayed in the House. A few days ago the President signed the Pomerene bill, unnoticed amid the strike negotiations. Bills of lading are made negotiable as well as assignable. The railways no longer will be able to plead that the bills which they issued as an accommodation are worthless because the goods were not received, although receipt was certified by the signature of the railways' own officials. Also after New Year's it will be a crime to forge a bill of lading or for a railway agent to issue a bill which does not represent goods received in the course of business. It is essential to our new banking system that shipping documents should be above suspicion. It would cripple our entry into international trade on the present scale if the risk of a repetition of the Knight-Yancey frauds were allowed to continue.

Bills of lading underlie the system of acceptances, and the issue of Federal Reserve notes based upon commercial assets. State laws to control these attacks upon commercial fair dealing have been ineffective. All countries except England and the United States have had laws similar to the one just passed. It is singular that these two leading commercial countries should be so backward in this respect. The reason is that their law on this point was formulated before railways were developed, and the courts stood on the early decisions, applying the custom of water carriers to land carriers. It is true that the new law imposes another burden upon the railways, requiring them to assume the risk hitherto borne by bankers. But it is properly a railway risk, and not a banker's risk. Railways can protect themselves by the performance of an easy duty, and bankers cannot assure themselves of the validity of bills of lading seeming good on their face.

It is a reproach that thirty-odd foreign countries asked for this action, but without success, for years after the demonstration of its necessity. At last the work of the American Bankers' Association is crowned with success, and it means as much to traders as to bankers.

THAT BRONX SEWER.

It was announced yesterday that the United States will remove the pipes which conduct sewage from Westchester County to the Hudson River near Yonkers unless the Bronx Valley Trunk Sewer Commission purifies the sewage before it is discharged. This notice comes at a time when it will do most good, and on both sides the Hudson. The Bronx and Passaic sewers both were planned at a time when it was thought proper to dump your dirt on your neighbor's premises. Both plans of drainage were designed on the theory that the defilement of water courses was permissible because it was cheap. But before the sewers could be completed the clean-up movement had made such progress that the United States intervened and imposed a standard of purity for navigable waters without which the sewers could not be operated. The result is that to the expense of the construction of the sewers it is now necessary to add the cost of disposal works.

If the disposal works had been built in the first place the cost of the sewers could have been saved. The Passaic sewer case is in about the same situation as the Bronx Valley sewer, and is due for a hearing in October. Our New Jersey neighbors have sinned against light, and friendly advice, but their correction is to their advantage. If they purify their sewage they need build only a short sewer, and can save themselves much money and neighborly credit. The harbor is sufficiently defiled, to say no more, and the Federal and New York law officers can be trusted to push the advantage already gained. The times are not propitious for the policy of defilement. The epidemic has put the people of both New Jersey and New York on their guard against sources of disease, and defiling water courses is one of them.

BIRDS THREATENED AGAIN.

It would be a pity indeed if, after the recent ratification of the treaty between the United States and Canada for the protection of migratory birds, one of the largest reservations which the Government has set aside to harbor wild fowl, that at Lake Malheur in southeastern Oregon, should be destroyed, as is now threatened, according to Washington dispatches. A project is on foot, it seems, to drain this lake in order to make possible the use of the land which forms its bottom, and application has been made to the Federal authorities with this end in view.

The lake, which is some fifteen miles long by six miles wide and only about six feet deep, is a natural refuge for birds and is a breeding place now for hundreds of thousands of wild geese, duck, and other varieties of water fowl. According to T. GILBERT PEARSON, Secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, it attracts ducks and wild geese from Canada in large numbers and its obliteration will leave homeless thousands of young water fowl. Mr. PEARSON has brought the matter to the attention of the General Land Office and believes that the importance of the reservation and its maintenance should be brought home to the Secretary of the Interior before it is too late.

There is talk of co-operation with the promoters of the "reclamation" on the part of the State Land Board of Oregon, but it is difficult to imagine any use to which this bit of territory could be put which could be of more value to the nation than the purpose it already serves. Within the last decade much has been done to broaden the scope of national protection for wild birds, largely through the establishment of protected reservations such as this. It is a work which stands in need of expansion, not contraction. The destruction of so important and well-chosen a refuge as Lake Malheur is not to be thought of.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Civilization Reaches the Arctic.

It is or ought to be a little disquieting to all accustomed to think well of themselves as "civilized," in distinction from "barbarous" or "savage," to note the quick deterioration in the Eskimos reported by Dr. ANDERSSON as the result of contact with white men.

Of course it is a commonplace of ethnology that such contact has always been injurious and often fatal to primitive peoples, but usually the humiliation of this fact has been mitigated by the possibility of saying that the primitives suffered because the first visitors were exponents of the vices rather than the virtues of civilization—rough sailors, for instance, or conscienceless traders ruthless in exploiting nature's untutored children. This theory would be the better if in many instances missionaries of the most respectable sort had not brought about changes in the peoples they tried to serve which, though different from those worked by the sailors and traders, still led only with more or less speed to extermination.

It fails utterly in the case of these Eskimos, who have had, as yet, association only with white men who were as little inclined to make money out of them by selling cheap rum as they were to change the ancient habits of life dictated by experience as best adapted to the arctic environment. Dr. ANDERSON and the other scientists with him would have for native "folkways" respect as well as interest, and the last thing they would attempt would be the turning of arctic savages into New England villagers. Yet they say that the Eskimos of Coronation Island and thereabout have already lost their pristine virtues and learned both to beg and to steal.

"Learned," however, is hardly the right word. It would be more nearly correct to say that they have developed in a very natural way tendencies hitherto kept latent by circumstances. The members of a small, isolated clan do not beg or steal from each other, since all their property is practically owned in common. The arrival of aliens so strange as to seem a different species creates wholly new conditions, and begging and stealing from them are only manifestations of immemorial instincts from which none of us is yet free. "Natural" man takes what he can from a stranger with no more thought of wrong than if it were a bear or a deer he was despoiling—or than if he were an Austrian taking possession of Herzegovina.

Reputations Are Sure to Suffer.

A second disastrous fall before completion of the great bridge over the St. Lawrence River at Quebec is an accident of a peculiarly painful kind. That is for the reason that it can hardly be called an accident at all, and the responsibility for it is therefore a heavy one. The responsibility falls, too, upon the members of a profession that proudly claims to deal with things far more closely approaching to certainties than the things which most other people have to handle, and engineers claim, justly enough, a special competency for reaching accurate solutions of all such problems as were involved in the building of this bridge.

The strength of materials is a matter of mathematical computation, as are the stresses to which they are subjected in any form or position, and for defects in them of kinds not to be discovered by the available tests provision can be made in the shape of a "margin of safety" sufficient to meet all possible contingencies. Yet every now and then something like the failure of a bridge or a reservoir wall reveals that engineering, too, is not an exact science, and that even its ablest practitioners occasionally make mistakes like the rest of us.

The previous fall of this bridge received a full explanation—after the event. There were grave errors both of commission and of omission. Presumably there will be, within the next few weeks or months, a like clearing up of the present disaster. The dispatches as yet received have not told, however, in comprehensible detail even the operation that was in progress when the crash came. When all is known, no mystery will be left, presumably—except the mystery why such eminent engineers as were in charge of an enterprise so important and expensive did not take the precautions required by the conditions they so well understood.

That there was no conscious negligence and that the expectation of a successful raising of the great truss to its place was confident cannot be questioned. The result has not justified the expectation, and reputations will suffer, perhaps not less unjustly than severely.

A Boodle Word Transplanted.

New Yorkers with long memories know that the use of the word "combine," with the accent on the first syllable and meaning a group of men secretly united for the accomplishment of evil or corrupt purposes, was started by an east side Alderman in the days when the name of JACOB SHARP was of more than national notoriety. The word had, from the etymologist's standpoint, about all the faults a word could have, but it also had the greatest merit that a word can have—it met a need that was felt and realized—and the result was that it came at once into general usage.

It did not attain here the sort of usage called best, or, if good writers employed it, they put it in reprobative quotation marks. In this country the vogue of the word did not outlast that of the crude form of bribery and theft which it described. But, curiously enough, "combine" in the Jake Sharp sense has had a longer life and better fate in England than here. There it still occasionally appears in print, and without any indication, either, on the part of those resorting to it, that they know it to be an "Americanism," and "colloquial," too, as well as "provincial."

The latest observed example is to be found in the London papers of Sept. 1, and it appears, not in a facetious paragraph, but in a grave and dignified report of the Privy Council Committee and Advisory Council, appointed last year to carry out the Government's scheme "for the promotion of scientific research in relation to trade and industry." There the reader finds that "we believe some form of combination may be found essential if the smaller undertakings of this country are to compete effectively with the great trusts and combines of Germany and America."

One notices the old distinction still surviving. A "combination," especially if our own, is all right, while the wicked foreigner gets up "combines" and accents them on the first syllable, no doubt, just as in Boodle Aldermen days.

MONROE DOCTRINE SAFE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a little distressing to American ears to read such complaints as appear in the letter signed "Ornum" under the heading of "Hands Across the Sea" in a recent issue of THE TIMES. The writer has all manner of complaints against American shippers for demanding "cash on delivery to the wharf," "cash on the spot," &c., for the exports sent from this country. It is, of course, his privilege to complain if he does not like these hard terms; it is also his privilege to look elsewhere for better terms. But the real pinch is when he says:

> Let your correspondent lose no sleep on the Monroe Doctrine issue, as it is safe under the only protection it ever has had, or ever will have, viz., the British Navy.

The writer apparently has not taken note of the recent "preparedness program" in this country, especially in the line of our navy expansion. He likewise, perhaps, does not remember that the United States has never hesitated to insist upon the letter and the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine, even when this country had a navy far inferior to the present one. Perhaps he may recall the Venezuela incident during the Administration of Grover Cleveland, when that American President laid down what was practically an ultimatum to Great Britain and secured instantly from Congress a vote of $50,000,000 to begin enforcing it.

It may seem rash to some, but it demonstrates that the American Republic is not depending upon other Governments for the protection and enforcement of its fundamental doctrines.

Moreover, "Ornum" can rest assured that the United States will never again be in a position to warrant such remarks as he has made. So it is safe to say the future of the Monroe Doctrine is reasonably secure.

THE RAILWAY LABOR CRISIS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"What Would Mr. Hughes Have Done?" is the heading of the leading editorial in your paper of last Friday. Nobody knows. Not even Mr. Hughes can likely now say exactly what he would have done had he been in President Wilson's place when four labor leaders threatened the President with a country-wide railroad strike unless a law enforcing compliance with their demands be passed within forty-eight hours.

But we know what President Lincoln did in 1861, when civil war was threatened unless the demands of the slaveholders be complied with, and we know what President Wilson should have done when he had to choose between the upholding of the majority of the nation or surrender to the bidding of four labor leaders. Maybe if he had chosen the former a railroad strike, with all its dire consequences, would have followed—though leading railroad men aver the railroads could have coped with the resulting situation—but "government of the people, by the people, for the people" would have been maintained unimpaired.

Making an Elephant Move.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following extract from "The New Freedom," by President Wilson, brings to mind most distinctly the image of one of our "first citizens," especially after a recent speech at Lewiston:

> We have had political leaders whose conception of greatness was to be forever frantically doing something—it mattered little what; restless, vociferous men, without sense of the energy of concentration, knowing only the energy of succession. Now life does not consist of eternally running to a fire. There is no virtue in going anywhere unless you will gain something by being there. The direction is just as important as the impetus of motion.

On another page the President writes:

> Elephants and even other animals have been known to turn treadmills, making a good deal of noise, and causing certain wheels to go round, and I dare say grinding out some sort of product for somebody, without achieving much progress. Lately, in an effort to persuade the elephant to move, really, his friends tried dynamite. It moved—in separate parts and scattered parts; but it moved.

The Colonel was called upon by the managers of the "Grand Old Party" to succeed where their 1916 standard bearer had failed. He was to put some ginger into the campaign. Roosevelt answered the call. He used dynamite, and the "separate and scattered parts" of his wild utterances have convinced honest and intelligent citizens that our President for the next four years must be Woodrow Wilson.

Chief Justice S. P. Chase:

Dear Sir—I believe that you will one day be the President of the United States, but not while you are Chief Justice. The people of this country have always been opposed to looking to the Supreme Court for a candidate for the Presidency; they are determined that the bench shall not be a step from which one can hope even to mount higher, lest that hope influence the judicial mind. I certainly think you very able as Chief Justice, but I think you more conspicuously able in the Cabinet, the Senate, or in any higher executive place.

In winding up the war Grant, as it clearly looks to me, will be made President. You are Chief Justice and, depend upon it, that fact will postpone your nomination to a future time, when you are not Chief Justice.

Ever truly yours,

EDWARDS PIERREPONT.

Dr. Hornaday's Stand.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Hornaday's letter printed in THE TIMES of the 11th, stating that "10 per cent. of the people of New York are indifferent to filth and dirt," is most timely. This week the Teachers' Institute is in session, and the Board of Education is doing its best to co-operate with the Health Department by "introducing a system of health care and hygienic instruction." There is no question that park benches are sources of infection and contamination. Mothers with young children, who invariably want to play on all fours, should carry camp stools and choose clean places to sit, for the habit of expectorating is prevalent, and the virus of poliomyelitis enters the body usually through the mucous membrane of the mouth and throat. According to Dr. Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, all the evidence so far obtained points to human beings as the distributing agents, and there is "conclusive evidence of the occurrence of occasional chronic human carriers of infantile paralysis." This being the case Dr. Hornaday is quite right when he says "Patience has ceased to be a virtue."

ROMANTICISM AS THE HEART OF KULTUR.

To That Is Traced the German View of the Invasion of Belgium and the Sinking of the Lusitania.

By RICHARD H. RITTER.

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Sept. 11, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On all sides we Americans are confronted with the dilemma, as regards the present European war, of being either pro-Ally or barbarian, the sympathizer of England and France, or of all that is undemocratic, un-American, and unjust. This war, we are constantly reminded, is one of democracy and civilization against the spirit of the Huns reincarnated in the Germans; the Allies are fighting the cause of the advancement of the world, the fight against militarism. If an American daring to be neutral could be found, it might seem to him that, since the majority of our countrymen are in favor of increased military preparations for ourselves, and the majority also hold the view that German militarism is the root and evil of this war, there must be some inconsistency somewhere.

But this is all blamed on German Kultur. It is in the very nature of the Huns to be militaristic, they say; it is inconceivable that America will ever be a military nation. Then they go on to explain, also not realizing the inconsistency, that the reason America cannot be militaristic is because it is not surrounded by a group of grasping and powerful nations which might disturb the peace at any moment.

In this statement they imply that Germany is so surrounded. It is a known fact that in the last four years before the war Russia increased her forces 30 per cent. and France 15 per cent. (to say nothing of the "African Army" of 250,000 men,) that Italy was steadily drifting away from the alliance with Germany, that the Swiss were (comparatively) as well prepared for war as any other nation in Europe, that England in 1906 and again in 1912 gave Belgium solemn military advice (and perhaps more definite help) as to their fortifications along the German border, and that Britain herself completed the hedge with the mightiest of all navies. It cannot be denied that Germany was surrounded by rapacious and well-prepared foes on practically every side.

On this fact rests the understanding of German Kultur. It is a spirit we find hard to comprehend. To quote from a book written by an Englishman (Alfred E. Zimmern of Oxford):

> When we hear the German professors of today preaching of the spread of German culture by the German arms, and when we feel disgust at the exaggerated religious phraseology which pervades the Kaiser's oratory and seems to accord so ill with his policy and ambitions, we must remember the peculiar origins of the Prussian state and how comparatively recent these origins are.

But we must go even further than that; we must remember that the German people cannot be judged by English or French standards; and the reason is that the English and French and Russians themselves have forced them into their peculiar Kultur by just that same operation which we condemn in its logical carrying out by the Germans—militarism.

The Germans are not devoted to the ideals of Nietzsche that have been forced upon them. If left to themselves they will in the course of events repudiate them. The first compulsory military service in the world was instigated by Stein in the attempt to drive out the French from German territory, and it has been kept up ever since as the only means of maintaining the position which they have won in the face of the ring of steel about them. Present German Kultur is harsh for that reason, but present German Kultur, we must remember, is the result of foreign coercion, and is not the natural nor the ultimate Kultur.

When one goes among the peasants, the small tradespeople, and the bourgeoisie of the German people he sees the deeper Kultur which will and must conquer the Nietzschism and militarism of the aristocracy and the upper class. The Socialist vote proves annually how opposed to militarism the German people are, yet the present war proves how necessary militarism was if Germany were not to be crushed out entirely. The Kaiser was wiser than his people, and only by the aid of two factors could he maintain his rule in the face of their disfavor. The first was his apparent injustice in curbing the Socialists, the second was the peace-loving character of the people themselves; for if they had not been peace-loving they would have rebelled long ago at the misunderstood iron hand of their rulers.

This shows that underneath the harsh surface of the Kultur that is showing in the present crisis there was something real, something admirable, something vital in the heart of Kultur itself. And this all-pervading something which is at the basis of it all is nothing more than the one quality of romanticism. This may seem like a long way from the boasted German efficiency—the intensive cultivation of everything, from land to war preparations. But, as a matter of fact, it is nothing but the same thing in a different garb. The supreme romanticism of the German patriotism has led it to the doctrine that the individual is subservient to the State on every consideration and at all times. This explains not only the rape of Belgium and the sinking of the Lusitania, but also the utter inability of the Germans to understand why America had any real ground for objection. They saw only that it was a case of a few lives against the good of the State, and the fact that the lives were foreign instead of German did not complicate matters at all in the German viewpoint.

Carried further, this spirit of true socialism (as opposed to individualism) explains the advanced labor laws, the superiority of industry, the growth of maritime and commercial enterprises, the small amount of graft among Government officials, and the thousand other things that go with efficiency.

This romanticism also explains the unity of Germany, which was brought about in a different way from that of any other country in Europe, and the clinging to German ideals long after Germans have left Germany, which has brought them into such disfavor in this country. The expression of this romanticism is in Goethe, in Schiller and Heine, not in Nietzsche and Hegel, just as the English heart responds to Tennyson and Kipling rather than to Shaw. But the expression of this romanticism is even deeper than this with the real backbone of the German people, the peasantry—it is in the bursts of song which one hears on every side. Who in America can sing the whole of the "Star-Spangled Banner" through without hesitation, who here knows the complete song of "America," or who has inextricably woven in his own heart the words and melody of a score of the folk songs and legends of his native land? Yet this is what is dear to the soul of every German; this is the expression of the ever-living romanticism; this is Kultur.

GUARDSMEN NEEDED.

Recruits Will Have More Than a Share in Home-Coming.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The idea has somehow gained credence that the service of the National Guard on the border is practically over and that the need for more men in Texas is a thing of the past. This very erroneous view of the situation has naturally had its effect upon recruiting, and to some extent has counteracted the effort being made at the Government's request by States having troops on the border to recruit all organizations up to war strength.

While it is true that some 15,000 troops have been returned to their home States, it is also true that some 25,000 troops were recently ordered to the border. This in itself shows a recent increase of 10,000 troops on the border and does not include the recruits for all organizations there that are being sent South continually.

There are many thousands of young men in the State eligible to the military service who are red-blooded and enthusiastic enough to consider it an honor and a privilege to serve their State and country in a military way. Many are now hesitating merely because they think they would be taking part only in a home coming.

It is to be hoped that many of them will see this article, so that thereby mistaken impressions will be corrected, and that the service which they are so willing to give will be given now at a time when it is greatly needed.

When serious trouble actually confronts us, seasoned and well trained soldiers will be needed much more than new recruits.

Recruits are needed now, however. There are many recruiting stations in the city where young men may enlist in the National Guard for border service, and any station can put you in that arm of the service that you prefer. One of these stations is at Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue, Manhattan.

Size of the Danish Islands.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having resided in St. Croix, D. W. I., for several years as a missionary of the Moravian Church, I read with interest whatever you print about the sale. I think it would interest your readers if you print an outline of New York Harbor and impose upon it a sketch of the Danish West Indies. Beginning at the Battery, St. Thomas would about reach to St. George's, S. I. St. Croix would cover Staten Island. St. John's could easily find berth in the lower bay and leave room for Newark's shipping. But their hills would overtop Staten Island's beautiful heights. The price is tremendous, especially as Denmark has ruled the islands for some time at a considerable annual loss, and it is difficult to understand the assertion that we can do better agriculturally. Besides, the labor situation in St. Croix is extremely acute. All sides of the question should have been investigated before buying rosebushes that have so many thorns and are in need of drastic pruning that is sure to prove unpopular.

Casement's Honors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Kindly permit me as the only sister of the late Sir Roger Casement to reply to the letter of Mrs. J. H. A. Clements. My brother, so far from holding on to the "high honor," returned his decoration of C. M. G. to the British Government in 1914. Unfortunately he could not give up the Knighthood which he certainly never asked for, and found to his cost it had to be "paid for" in more ways than one. His pension he never touched from the time he entered the United States, and I defy any one to prove the contrary.

DOMINICAN POLITICS.

Velazquez Hernandez as the Man to End the Disorders.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Dominican people, in view of the intervention of the United States, have maintained an attitude of hopeful resignation. This unexpected behavior on the part of a people so jealous of their independence, for which they have fought on numerous occasions, is explicable by the fact that they are tired of revolutions and revolutionary leaders and cherish the hope that the Americans will, as they have publicly declared, once and for all put an end to the chronic anarchy and violence which have so long retarded the progress and the scientific development of the great natural resources of the country.

The majority of the Dominican people, who live not by the budget, but by the sweat of their brows, desire to labor in peace and to enjoy the benefits of an honest Administration of the public funds, ample political liberty and a just application of the laws.

To the attentive observer of the events of the last few years, the man most capable of leading the Dominican nation to its high destiny is Federico Velazquez Hernandez.

The task accomplished by this remarkable man in the scientific organization of the Treasury Department is unparalleled in Latin America, except, perhaps, for the work of Yves Limantour in Mexico under Porfirio Diaz. Velazquez was for seven years "the power behind the throne" in the Government of Ramon Caceres, the only Administration in the history of the Dominican Republic which has given to the country the basis of real progress and a peace which inspired confidence alike in foreigners and natives.

Many are the candidates for the Presidency. Every revolutionary chief carries on his fratricidal machete the inscription of a Presidential aspiration; but none of them can offer to the natives the hope of permanent improvement or give confidence to the foreigners, who have large interests in the country. All the attempts at Government since the death of Caceres, by men lacking in energy and without experience, have resulted in dismal and tragic failure. All this goes to show, more clearly now than ever, the need of a leader of solid accomplishments, of proved ability in public administration, and a man in whom the people will repose absolute confidence.

The only statesman who possesses the gifts of organization, whom the country knows and in whom the country believes, is Federico Velazquez Hernandez. He is the only man who can make of the anarchical and chaotic Santo Domingo of today a country worthy of an honored place among progressive and civilized nations.

The Kansas Spirit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thank you for your clever and charming editorial on Kansas. I read Mr. Nock's wholesale denunciation of Puritanism with amazement equal to yours. Puritanism gave the world nothing? On its theological side Puritanism was grotesque, but on its political side Puritanism lifted out the rights of the middle class, brought about England's constitutional monarchy, and gave us our American Constitution. It also was a power behind the liberation of the French Revolution. Voltaire tells how a visit to England made him go home determined to push the rights of the people as the Puritans had in England.

I tell you it's cheerful discovering on the map a whole State that believes in the goodness of man.

And really is it against a people that they have stemmed the tide of drink, for stemmed it they have? No one can go there and doubt it. I agree with you—too much of this Kansas spirit is better than too little, and thank you for saying it.

PRESIDENT ASSURES MEXICAN DELEGATES

REGENERATION FROM WITHIN

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 12.—For the first time representatives of General Carranza today received directly from President Wilson a statement of his sympathy with the aims of the revolution in Mexico. It was the first time, also, that the President had dealt personally with a representative of the de facto Government of the southern republic.

Mr. Wilson arrived here yesterday, having been summoned to the bedside of his dying sister, Mrs. Annie E. Howe. Secretary Lane, Chairman of the American delegates to the American-Mexican conference, carried to him a message of sympathy from Luis Cabrera, the Mexican Chairman, and his message expressed the hope also that the Mexican representatives might pay their respects to the President in person before they returned home. Mr. Wilson signified his wish to meet them at once. During such hours as the President is absent from his sister's bedside he is living aboard the naval yacht Mayflower, and it was arranged that the three Mexican Commissioners could pay their visit aboard the ship.

The Mexican party, accompanied by the three American delegates, was taken aboard the Mayflower in a navy launch, which had been placed at the service of the joint body. The visitors were received with full naval honors, except that the salute was omitted. A brief exchange took place in the President's cabin, Secretary Lane introducing the Mexican conferees.

President Returns Visit.

Within fifteen minutes after the Mexican Commissioners had returned to the hotel, where the conferences are taking place, the President's barge conveyed him from the Mayflower on a return visit. At the hotel dock he was met by Secretary Lane, Judge Gray, and John R. Mott, the American Commissioners, and escorted to a great sun parlor, where the Mexican representatives awaited him. For half an hour the President and the six Commissioners chatted informally.

Going directly into the subject of the revolution in Mexico, President Wilson said he was more familiar than his hearers perhaps realized with the fundamental principles of the struggle for free government in Mexico. He assured them of his deep sympathy with those aims, adding that right-thinking men all over the world must sympathize with such high aspirations. He indicated his comprehension of the great problems, political, economic, and social, which Mexico is facing. In this connection he said that regeneration of Mexico must come from within, and that development must be parallel in all three lines.

The President also sought to impress on the Mexican delegates the necessity for the protection of life and property in Mexico, and urged that a Democracy could not be established successfully until conditions of safety for life and property were assured.

Mr. Cabrera in his reply alluded to the United States as leader of the movement for free government, and as the tutor to whom Mexico must look in striving for the type of Government its people sought. Much had been done, he said, but much also remained to be accomplished before the aims of the revolution could be achieved.

The joint commission spent the morning studying a statement by Mr. Cabrera on the present condition of Mexico, intended to show the stability of the Carranza Government, and its growing power to deal with internal disorders and to protect lives and property.

Carranza's Work Reviewed.

After the session the commission gave out a summary of the statement in which the history of the Carranza revolution was traced from its beginning until it controlled the coast lines and the greater part of the interior of the republic. The statement continued:

"With this control once secured, General Carranza immediately addressed himself to the problem of organizing civil government in the States under his control. His purpose has been to accustom the people as soon as possible to the orderly procedure of civil rule and to limit to as great an extent as possible the more arbitrary methods of military government. At the present moment civil Governors have been installed in ten States, and in the territory of lower California. The States possessing such civil organizations are: Sonora, Coahuila, Nuevo Leon, Tamaulipas, Sinaloa, Hidalgo, Vera Cruz, State of Mexico, Mexico City, (Federal District,) Morelos, Territory of Lower California.

"Mr. Cabrera further outlined the plan which General Carranza has in mind for the speedy civil reorganization of the country. He is of the opinion that certain basic social and economic reforms should be carried through as preliminary to the revision of the present Constitution. As soon as conditions permit a constitutional convention will be called for this purpose. Immediately after the revision of the Constitution has been effected provision will be made for elections within the several States of the Union, and this will be followed by the Presidential elections.

"With this program, it is the hope of the Carranza Government to establish the country on a civil basis, which will assure to the Mexican citizen not merely a wider measure of liberty, but guarantee to him an equality of opportunity in the industrial life of the country, which he has not hitherto enjoyed."

Mr. Cabrera called the attention of the American Commissioners to the fact that municipal elections already had been held in all places within the jurisdiction of the Government except the Federal District, where elections are to be held soon. The election of a Congress to draw up and submit to the several State Legislatures a new Constitution is expected by the Mexican Commissioners to take place in December simultaneously with State elections. A date for the holding of Presidential elections has not yet been set and the Mexican Commissioners state that they do not know whether it will take place before a new Constitution has been adopted or not until later.

Decrees to be Studied.

Translations now are being made of the decrees issued by General Carranza and his military Governors and will be considered by the commission. The purpose of its study will be to establish the facts as to the sincerity of the Constitutionalists in carrying into effect their proposed reforms. The question of claims against Mexico for damages suffered by foreigners as the result of any of the decrees also will come up. Several protests have been made by the State Department against Carranza decrees, and the data which were considered by the State Department will be placed at the disposal of the commission.

The commission will resume deliberations tomorrow and probably will continue them over the week-end. Major General Tasker H. Bliss, Assistant Chief of Staff of the Army, who has been detailed by Secretary Baker for conference with the American Commissioners, is expected to arrive tomorrow. It is regarded as unlikely that the commission will take up the border situation until [illegible] and information have been obtained.

SICKNESS RATE DECREASED.

New York Troops' August Record Beats That of July.

Special to The New York Times.

McALLEN, Texas, Sept. 12.—Although ninety soldiers of the New York division were sent to the hospital with paratyphoid fever [illegible] was even lower than the record of July, given to Lieut. Col. William S. Thayer [illegible] a thousand.

NO KISSES, NO HANDSHAKES.

Visitors to the 71st Camp Obliged to Observe Quarantine.

BEEKMAN, N. Y., Sept. 12.—As early as 10 o'clock this morning automobiles bearing relatives and friends of members of the Seventy-first drove up to the entrance of Camp Whitman, only to be told by sentries that it would be impossible to see any of the soldiers of that regiment. Later the stringency of the order was relaxed, and persons were admitted up to the first camp line, where their relatives were called, but under orders not to kiss or shake hands with any.

Colonel H. Page, Sanitary Inspector, and in charge of the Division Hospital, visited the camp several times. This afternoon, when he found that wives, mothers, and sisters of the men had gone right up to the line, he ordered every one away, and presently an outpost was stationed at the road entrance about one-half mile from the camp, to divert all automobiles except those on necessary business, making isolation complete.

RELEASED 14,600 GUARDSMEN.

War Department Shows Physical Disability Was Main Cause.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Since the promulgation of President Wilson's call of the National Guardsmen into Federal service there have been 14,600 discharges of officers and men from the various State units. A total of 9,846 were discharged for physical disability and 4,010 were discharged to enable them to take care of dependent families.

To set at rest rumors that various units of the National Guard soon were to be withdrawn from the border, Secretary Baker reiterated today that there was no fixed policy regarding maintenance of the State troops there. He said they would be sent home as soon as they could be spared without increasing the danger to life and property along the border.

PRESIDENT TO LEAVE NEW LONDON TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 12.—President Wilson, who was called here hurriedly yesterday by the critical illness of his sister, Mrs. Anne E. Howe, decided tonight to return to Long Branch on the Mayflower tomorrow morning. His decision to leave was on the advice of the physicians, who assured him that his presence excited his sister and would not help her. Mrs. Howe, who is suffering from peritonitis, became gradually weaker today, but her physicians announced tonight that she might live for days. At 9:30 o'clock tonight Dr. Edward P. Davis of Philadelphia, the family physician, who has been in consultation with Dr. H. M. Lee, the attending physician, gave out the following statement:

Mrs. Howe's physicians have advised the President that she will no longer be able to recognize him clearly or comprehend his visits, as she must be kept almost constantly under the influence of opiates. While Mrs. Howe cannot recover, her life may continue for several days or more, and in view of these facts and the urgent duties devolving upon the President they have advised him to remain no longer.

It is the President's intention to join Mrs. Howe's children at the earliest possible moment when the end of her illness comes. In her weak condition the visits of relatives and friends so excite her that from now on no one will be allowed to converse with her.

The President and Mrs. Wilson spent last night on the Mayflower, but were taken to the landing early this morning in the yacht tender and walked up to the hotel unannounced. It was the first time New London had ever been treated to the spectacle of a President walking unattended along its streets, but few people recognized him. There was quite a stir in the hotel as he and Mrs. Wilson entered, as even the Secret Service men there had not been apprised of the Wilsons' coming. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson spent several hours with Mrs. Howe and then returned to the yacht. Late in the afternoon they called at the hotel again in the same informal manner.

With the President on board the Mayflower tonight, besides Mrs. Wilson, were his brother, Joseph R. Wilson, and Miss Margaret Wilson. The other members of the family here are Mrs. Anne Cothran, daughter of Mrs. Howe, and her little daughter and two sons. Joseph Wilson and Miss Wilson are expected to remain in New London. The President and Mrs. Wilson are expected to leave here on the Mayflower at daybreak, and to land at some point in New Jersey, proceeding thence by motor to Shadow Lawn.

$750,000 IN TRUST TO GO TO PRINCETON

W. W. Lawrence Names University, His Alma Mater, as Ultimate Beneficiary.

LEFT MORE THAN $1,000,000

National Lead Co. Head Remembered Many Relatives and Business Associates in Pittsburgh.

Princeton University will receive more than $750,000 under the will of William W. Lawrence, [illegible] concern and head of W. W. Lawrence & Co. of Pittsburgh, who died Aug. 3 last. Mr. Lawrence lived at 3 East Ninety-first Street, and was survived only by his widow, Mrs. Jane Yulle Lawrence.

Mrs. Lawrence gets the income on the entire residuary estate, but upon her death it is to be divided into four parts. One part goes outright to the children of the late John [illegible] Lawrence, brother of the decedent, and the other three-fourths are held in trust for life to the decedent's sisters, Mrs. Theresa M. Turner and the Misses Annie M. and Mary E. Lawrence. Upon the death of each beneficiary the principal of the trust fund reverts to Princeton, of which Mr. Lawrence was a loyal alumnus.

His total estate is estimated at more than $1,000,000. Mr. Lawrence left no realty in New York, and the bulk of his estate consists of his holdings in the National Lead Company, W. W. Lawrence & Co., and other concerns in which he had a large interest.

The testator gave $25,000 outright to his sister, Mrs. Turner, and $1,000 to her husband, the Rev. Dr. William H. Turner of Overbrook, Penn. His two unmarried sisters received all his property in Washington, D. C., where they live. A sister-in-law and two nieces got $5,000 each.

Mr. Lawrence distributed a large amount of stock in W. W. Lawrence & Co. among relatives and business associates in the company in Pittsburgh. John Jacob and William Watson Lawrence, nephews, got 100 shares each, and Charles D. Wetzach also got 100 shares. William H. Andrews received 25 shares, and 25 shares and 15 shares, respectively, went to Harry G. Porterfield and Robert Simons.

WILL OF SARAH E. WICKHAM.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Sept. 12.—The will of Sarah E. Wickham of Elberon and Brooklyn, probated at the Surrogate's office here yesterday, bequeathed her Elberon estate, consisting of an eight-acre plot of land, with improvements, to her sister, Julia H. W. Evans, who also received all the household furniture, pictures, and equipment, as well as all stock, poultry, farm tools, &c.

Miss Wickham's brother, William H. Wickham, is executor. To him and another brother, Charles W. Wickham, and her sisters, Adelia Wickham and Julia H. W. Evans, was bequeathed an undivided interest in 55 Beekman Street, New York City. She left $100 to the Presbyterian Church at Mattituck, L. I., and from the estate of her father, Joseph P. Wickham of Brooklyn, which was devised to her, small bequests were made to nephews, nieces, and others.

The remainder of her father's estate was bequeathed to her sister, Adelia Wickham, and the residue of her personal estate divided equally among her two brothers and two sisters.

FLAGG ESTATE $11,727.

An estate of $11,727 was left by Montague Flagg, the portrait painter, who died at the Gainsborough Studios on Dec. 24 last, and who was the brother of Ernest Flagg, the architect. Mr. Flagg left his entire estate to his wife, Elise, for life, and on her death it was to revert to his half-brother, Charles Noel Flagg of Hartford, Conn. Mrs. Flagg died less than a month after her husband.

The chief asset of the estate consisted of 100 shares of stock in the Gainsborough Studios, appraised at $10,000, which enabled the decedent to control two studios in the building. Mr. Flagg's most valuable painting was an oil portrait of "Mrs. Abbott," appraised at $500. An oil painting of Commodore Vanderbilt was valued at $25.

F. C. Huntington Left $86,738.

Francis C. Huntington, member of the law firm of Huntington, Rhinelander & Seymour, who died March 15 last, left an estate appraised yesterday at $86,738. He gave $1,000 each to three sisters and $500 each to six nephews and nieces. His widow, Susan L. Huntington, got $75,583. His third interest in his law firm was appraised at $18,450, and his securities were valued at $60,500. He had a third interest in five shares of stock in the Churchman Company, publisher of the Protestant Episcopal publication, which was held to be of no value because the company has had a deficit of $20,000 in the last three years.

Mrs. Kerwin's Estate $15,582.

Mrs. Catherine Kerwin, who died May 25, 1915, and was the widow of General Michael Kerwin, left an estate appraised yesterday at $15,582 net, and it was insufficient to pay her bequests in full. The chief assets were her residence at 465 West 145th Street, valued at $12,000, and bank deposits of $5,975. She left $2,000 for a monument to be erected over the grave of her husband in Arlington Cemetery. She gave $5,000 to her husband's sister, Elizabeth Kerwin Smith, and the remainder to friends and relatives.

Appeal Filed in Eno Will Case.

An appeal from the verdict of a jury given last July, declaring invalid the will of Amos F. Eno giving more than $5,000,00 0to Columbia University, was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday by counsel for William Mitchell and Lucius H. Beers, executors named in the alleged invalid document.

PROTEST TO BRITAIN AT WARSHIP'S ACTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A vigorous protest will be made by the State Department to the British Government against the alleged violation of American neutrality by a British war vessel which entered the territorial waters of the Philippines and boarded the Philippine steamer Cebu. The holding up of the Cebu in violation of American neutrality was reported to the War Department today by Francis Burton Harrison, Governor General of the Philippines, whose dispatch was immediately turned over to the State Department, which will use it as the basis for a protest.

The Cebu was held up in latitude 11 degrees 23 minutes, longitude 120 degrees [illegible] minutes, or one and one-half miles from Culebras Island, yesterday, according to the master of the Cebu, [illegible]

The Cebu was boarded by Lieutenant [illegible] of the British destroyer [illegible]

[illegible] bringing the case to the attention of the British Government the State Department will insist that the activities of British war vessels be restricted so as not to violate American neutrality by encroaching on territorial waters.

The activities and the hovering of British warships near the territorial waters of the United States, outside New York and other harbors, has been the subject of considerable correspondence between the American and British Governments. The Collector of Customs at Norfolk on Nov. 29 transmitted to Secretary McAdoo an affidavit of Charles Moller, master of the Danish steamship Vinland, describing the pursuit of the vessel by a British warship within the three-mile limit in December. After the matter had been brought to the attention of the British Government, the British Ambassador at Washington sent a communication to Secretary Lansing saying that British ships of war employed in the Atlantic had strict orders against the violation of American territorial waters, which orders, he believed, had been carefully observed.

Correspondence regarding the Vinland case continued until April 26 of this year, when Secretary Lansing sent a note to the British Ambassador giving the grounds on which the objection to the continued presence of belligerent war vessels in close proximity to American ports was based and discussing the historical aspects of the American contention.

ROBS 7 ON A TRAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Sept. 12.—Seven passengers on a crowded Canadian Pacific passenger train from Toronto entering this city at 12:20 o'clock this afternoon were held up and robbed. The job was done quickly with the aid of the persons robbed. The train had just crossed the International Bridge and stopped for the usual customs inspection. A broad-shouldered man, probably 30 years old, dressed in a suit of gray, entered one of the coaches and walked down the aisle looking sharply into the faces of the men and women passengers. They noticed that he had bloodshot eyes.

"Where are you going?" he asked gruffly of Mrs. Jessie M. Ardill of 506 West 136th Street, New York. She told him she was going directly to New York.

"Well, I'll have to see your ticket," the man said while the other persons in the cars watched him and began to fumble for their own tickets. He examined Mrs. Ardill's ticket and then asked:

"How much money have you got?"

Mrs. Ardill opened her gold mesh bag. The man took the bag, looked over the roll, counted out $110, and returned $65 to her.

"I'll have to take this as a deposit," the man said, as he pulled a pad from his pocket. He wrote with his left hand a receipt on a blank piece of paper for $110, paid "to the United States customs at Buffalo."

Mrs. Ardill thanked him and pocketed the receipt. The man now walked down the aisle. Men and women looked up into his bloodshot eyes. There was nothing in his manner to excite any suspicion. He stopped next before Edward Crockett of Brantford, Ont.

"How much money have you got to get into this country?" he asked. Mr. Crockett had $50 and he showed his wallet. The robber counted the money and took $38, put it in his pocket, and returned the rest to Mr. Crockett.

"You'll have to leave this here as a deposit," the man in gray remarked as he proceeded to write another receipt with his left hand. Then leisurely he left the coach and went to the next one. In this coach the robber held up five persons and wrote out his receipts. He then left the train. The robbery did not become known until the train had left the International Bridge and had reached the Central Station, when the passengers showed their receipts to the conductor.

MISS WASSERMAN A BRIDE.

Married to Seymour Plaut by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman.

The wedding of Miss Estelle Wasserman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Wasserman, and Seymour Plaut of this city took place at 7 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, 111 West Eighty-eighth Street. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, with a tulle veil, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Rita Wasserman, as maid of honor, who was gowned in pink embroidered chiffon and carried pink roses.

After the reception the couple left for the South on their honeymoon, and will reside in Jamaica, L. I., on their return.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Kaminsky of this city have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Molly S. Kaminsky, to Irving Stein, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Stein. Miss Kaminsky is connected with several charitable institutions. No date has been set for the wedding.

HARDEN DENOUNCES FOOD DICTATORSHIP

Declares Berlin Is Jealous of Remote Communities Where People Can Eat Plenty.

MUCH GRUMBLING HEARD

He Believes Faith in the Present Bureaucratic System Is Fast Vanishing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 13.—The Times says that in the Zukunft of Sept. [illegible] Maximilian Harden joins hands with the Junker Herr von Oldenburg, who lately published a denunciation of war socialism generally and of bureaucratic control of the food supply in particular.

Harden declares that new officials, with their ten thousand heads, have done no good, although their offices fill whole streets and they swallow up vast sums of money, to say nothing of their consumption of paper. He proceeds:

"We always knew that a German war against England would bring in a naval blockade. That was stated plainly by Bismarck and Caprivi, and later on the argument was used hundreds of times to prove the necessity of protection. The empire's watchmen ought to have been prepared for this state of things when the danger of a European war arose."

Harden then quotes from another periodical a description of the abundance of food in a remote north German health resort, and after saying that similar "Edens" exist in all sorts of places describes the jealousy of Berlin.

"Must not the starving inhabitants of a great city," he asks, "be jealous of those who can travel to such bliss or obtain from an aunt, cousin, friend or servant's brother-in-law meat, eggs, flour, peas, chickens and fats? You can hear jealousy in every tramcar and indeed there is more talking and more grousing about gluttony than about the whole war.

"Ninety grams of fat, an egg, at most half a pound of meat—and that frozen—with soon not a drop more milk, vegetables, poultry, and fruit at prices never dreamed of, pure coffee unobtainable and cocoa trebled or quadrupled in price—in these circumstances, your Excellencies, one is not always in high spirits. Was it necessary to require of millions who every evening tremble for the food of the following day that they should give a written answer to the question what quantities of meat, milk, bacon, preserved foods, poultry, and fat they have in their cupboards?

"Can a good-natured man be angry if he reads naughty comments on the margins of official forms and hears people grumble that one might eat? At least leave them in peace. Every day there vanishes a bit more of the faith in the blessedness of the system created out of censuses, tickets, and votoes."

Harden adds that the blessings of bureaucracy will by no means end with the war, and that in view of the scarcity of gold, the scarcity of raw materials, the scarcity of cattle, and exchange and freight difficulties there can be no change until "a few years after the conclusion of peace."

RUNAWAY PERIL IN 5TH AV.

Chance Passenger Badly Hurt Saving Throngs Near Waldorf.

The traffic at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street was at its height yesterday afternoon when a big, black horse, attached to a swaying express wagon, dashed through Thirty-fourth Street straight toward a group of women, who stood beside Traffic Policeman John Flannagan waiting for a chance to cross Fifth Avenue.

Flanagan had his back turned, but the screams of the women warned him and he whirled in time to catch the bridle of the runaway. His hold was insecure and he was flung to one side, while the frightened animal headed toward a cluster of automobiles halted before the Waldorf.

Before the horse could crash into the motors, however, John Raushkolb, 50 years old, of 762 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, ran out and, though he, too, was shaken from the bridle, he managed to swerve the horse so that the wheels of the express wagon interlocked with those of a big double truck and stopped the flight of the runaway.

Raushkolb, who was thrown to the ground, was taken to the New York Hospital with a fracture of the nose and a broken right arm. Policeman Flanagan escaped with a slight laceration of the hand. The driver of the horse, John Lawson of 175 East Seventy-fourth Street, was held by Magistrate Duell in Jefferson Market Court in $300 bail on a charge of felonious assault.

PROF. PROSSER FOUND DEAD

Noted Geologist Believed to Have Committed Suicide.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—A fisherman early today found the body of Charles S. Prosser, fifty years of age, head of the Geology Department at Ohio State University and a well-known scientific writer, floating in the Olentangy River, near the University campus. Professor Prosser was considered one of the leading authorities on geology in this country.

Friends believe that Professor Prosser's mind became deranged and he committed suicide.

Professor Prosser was a graduate of Cornell University, and before coming to Ohio was instructor at Cornell, Washburn College, Topeka, Kan., and at Union College. He was the author of more than a dozen books on geology and was a Fellow in the Geological Society of America. He had many close relatives in New York City.

Professor Prosser was an assistant geologist of the United States Geological Survey and of the State Geological Surveys of Kansas, New York, Ohio, and Maryland.

GIANTS CONTINUE THEIR WINNING STREAK, BEATING REDS FOR SIXTH VICTORY IN A ROW

RESTORED GIANTS ROUT MATTY'S REDS

BENTON HAS GOOD CONTROL

As Christy Mathewson, clad in his Cincinnati disguise, saw his Redlegs neatly mussed up by the Giants up at the Polo Grounds yesterday, he remarked: "By jiminy, those Giants didn't play like that when I was with them."

The shock to which the Reds were subjected amounted to a 3 to 2 defeat. This makes the Giants' sixth straight victory, and it makes Manager McGraw sad when he looks back and wishes that he had this present outfit many weeks ago.

The Polo Grounds idol, Matty, has been in Cincinnati for some little time now, but the trouble and stress which goes with the managerial berth in Rhineland hasn't turned Matty's hair gray or even wrinkled his brow. Just like every one else connected with the Cincinnati club, Matty is getting accustomed to sojourning in last place.

Yesterday's game simmered down to an argument between the rival left-handers, Rube Benton and Clarence Mitchell. The Giants' chances were enhanced by a terrific home run clout high into the upper tier of the right field stand by Davey Robertson in the fourth inning. There was lightning-fast fielding by both clubs, and it was one of the shortest and snappiest games of the season.

After the first inning the Reds were helpless against Benton. His control was almost perfect and he gave only a single base on balls. Mitchell didn't issue a pass, and for two left-handers to go through a game with such unusual control is no slight task. Southpaws and bases on balls go hand in hand, and where there is one, you will usually find the other.

The crowd of about 5,000 which witnessed the proceedings was commendably quiet. If the management had put up signs, "Silence, please," the folks couldn't have behaved better. The crowd had one eye on the scoreboard all the time to see what Brooklyn, Philadelphia, and Boston were doing.

Redlegs Score in First Frame.

Rube Benton got away to a poor start, for Neale, the first of the Rhinelanders to face him, poled a three-base drive to centre field. Groh then got an infield hit to short and Neale trotted home. Eddie Roush smashed a single to right field, Robertson fumbling the ball just long enough to permit Groh to tally. Roush went to second on the play. Chase was safe on Fletcher's error and Griffith skied to Burns for the first out. McKechnie rolled to Fletcher and Roush was pegged out at the plate. Chase and McKechnie then tried to manipulate a double steal, but Chase died at third in a cloud of dust.

In that same inning, the Giants got one of the runs back. Burns opened with a single to first and he rushed home on Herzog's two-base belt to right.

After Robertson hoisted one to Louden, Zimmerman lifted a high foul close to the field boxes back of first base, and Hal Chase ripped off a typical Chase play. He made a spectacular catch, whirled around, and made a gorgeous throw to third, which station Herzog was trying to reach after the catch. The ball beat Herzy, and he was the victim of a neatly executed double.

In the third inning, with two out, Roush singled to centre and went around to third when Chase soaked a hard-hit ball at Zimmerman. Zim made a great stop, but couldn't get the ball over to first in time to get the runner. Roush and Chase then tried a double steal, but Roush was thrown out at the plate for the second time. Roush came in flying, with feet first, and hit McCarty like a ton of brick. McCarty held the ball, but when he got up he had torrid words with Roush, although the argument didn't get so far that it was necessary to call out the Fire Department.

Robby's Homer Ties the Count.

In the fourth inning, when Herzog had demised at first, Robertson whacked his long home run into the upper boxes in the right-field stand, tying the score.

The Giants won the game in the fifth inning. Benny Kauff singled to short, beating the throw, and Holke rolled to Groh. Groh tossed to Louden for a force-out play, but Louden dropped the ball as if it were a hot potato. McCarty placed an infield hit along the third-base line, where no one could reach it without the aid of a fishpole, and filled the bases. Benton then hit into a double play, Louden to Groh to Chase, and while this destruction was going on, Kauff hustled home with the winning run.

Benny Kauff made a right smart play in the seventh. After Louden had received the only pass of the game, Huhn was safe on Robertson's muff. Neale then smashed a liner to Kauff in centre field. It was a hard drive, and looked like a hit, so Huhn scooted for third. After making a hard catch, Benny whirled all the way around and doubled Huhn at second.

RUDOLPH CURBS THE CUBS.

Wins First Game, Then Pitches Nine Innings of Next.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—Rudolph pitched Boston to a 1 to 0 victory over Chicago in one game today, then twirled nine innings of the second game, which went thirteen innings before darkness intervened, with the score tied at 3 to 3. Rudolph was retired when Tyler batted for him in the ninth and finished out the game.

Carter gave Rudolph a hard battle in the first contest, holding the Braves to three hits, while Chicago made five hits off the Boston man. A single by Egan, coming between Carter's only pass and Gowdy's sacrifice fly, accounted for the Boston run. In the second game the visitors had the Braves 3 to 1, with two out in the ninth inning when Snodgrass doubled after Hendrix had given two bases on balls. The scores:

WEILMAN A PUZZLE TO SOX.

Holds Chicago to Three Bingles and Browns Win, 5 to 3.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Carl Weilman held Chicago to three hits today, while his teammates bunched hits off Benz; this, coupled with erratic fielding by the White Sox, gave St. Louis a 5 to 3 victory. The score:

BOLD, BAD PIRATES ROCK ROBINS' BOAT

Brooklyn's revived hopes of capturing the National League pennant were voiced in lusty tones from the bleachers and stands of Ebbets Field yesterday, where 10,000 loyal residents of the borough gathered to welcome the Dodgers for their first game on home grounds since Aug. 15. Wilbert Robinson rewarded them by showing baseball of the championship kind, winning the first game from Pittsburgh without once going to the whip, 6 to 0, and losing the second on what might be styled racing luck or a bad ride, by 2 to 1.

During the two games the home team demonstrated that it still possesses the punch that it was feared was lost in the temporary slump on foreign fields. There was the same old confidence, and even when two runs behind at the beginning of the ninth inning of the second game the men never gave up trying. They made such good use of their opportunities that with one run over the plate new batteries began warming up for the Pirates to save Mamaux in case the score should be tied.

For the victory big Jeff Pfeffer had to be thanked. He celebrated his twentieth success on the mound this season by shutting out the Pirates in a manner that gave them little chance to score. The Dodgers were so unmerciful with the shoots of Evans, who opposed Pfeffer, that he was relieved in the fifth inning and Jacobs and Miller finished out the contest without any real chance to stem the tide of defeat. Jack Coombs took up the task of combating the Pittsburgh star, Mamaux, in the second game. Although beaten, it can scarcely be said that he was by any means outclassed in what was largely a pitchers' battle. Mamaux was wild sometimes from choice and sometimes because he could not help it. Coombs had perfect control throughout, giving a free trip to the old master, Wagner, when he had an opportunity to drive in runs, and twice allowing Fischer to stroll so that he could dispose of the side by retiring Mamaux. Fischer had earned the respect of the Brooklyn crowd by twice hitting Pfeffer for two-baggers in the first game.

It was Wheat who started the scoring in the first game. He tripled to left in the second inning and came home on Cutshaw's out. That was all the scoring done until Brooklyn's half of the fifth, when Wagner threw out Getz before Olson hit to centre field. Carey threw in smartly enough, but Wagner, thinking Olson would not dare to try for second, went to sleep and missed an opportunity for a put-out. Meyers was allowed to stroll and Pfeffer struck out. Johnston hit over second base, bringing home Olson. An error by Wagner gave Daubert a chance to sprint to first and Stengel walked, forcing in a run.

In the sixth Cutshaw walked and took second on Getz's sacrifice, stole third, and scored on Olson's hit to right. The wallop looked good for two bags, but Schulte fumbled it and Olson reached third. On Meyers's hit Olson left the base. It took the Pirates so long to run him down that even the Chief had time to reach third, whence he scored on Pfeffer's single to right. Johnston walked, but into a trap, as he was caught off first base. The final tally in the eighth came when Getz singled to centre, took second on a passed ball, and third on Olson's sacrifice. He scored on Meyers's single between second and third.

The Pirates managed to get the jump in the second game by bunching two hits. Hinchman started with a single to left, and after Wagner had sacrificed, Schulte went out on a foul fly. Johnston singled to centre, scoring Hinchman. In the third Warner was thrown out and Bigbee beat out a bunt. Carey was hit by the pitcher and Hinchman reached first when Johnston dropped his fly to centre field. Johnston managed to throw to second in time to nip Carey. A double steal was attempted on which Bigbee scored because of Olson's poor throw back to the plate.

RALLY SAVES SENATORS.

Turn Imminent Defeat Into Victory Over Red Sox by 4 to 3.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Washington Americans closed the local season today with a rally in the ninth and tenth innings which turned an apparent defeat at the hands of Boston into a 4 to 3 victory. McBride's error gave Boston two runs in the seventh. In the tenth, succesive hits by Lewis, Scott and Gardner filled the bases and Walsh, running for Lewis, scored on Thomas's sacrifice fly.

Leonard led off Washington's half with a single, which forced the retirement of Mays, and an infield hit by Milan and singles by Smith and Gharrity off Shore brought in the two runs that ended the game. The score:

Red Sox May Lose Bill Carrigan.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—President J. J. Lannin of the Boston American League Club said today that Manager Bill Carrigan had informed him recently that he thought this would be his last year in major league baseball. "I believe he will stay, but of course Carrigan will do as he thinks best," President Lannin added, when asked whether any formal resignation had been offered. The names of Patrick Donovan of the Buffalo Internationals and Heine Wagner, until recently manager of the Hartford team of the Eastern League, have been mentioned as possible successors to Carrigan.

KATOURA AND ELENA OFF ON OCEAN RACE

Tod Sails His Own Craft Against Plant's Challenger for Cape May Cup.

Robert E. Tod's schooner, Katoura, defender of the Cape May Cup, started on her race down the New Jersey coast yesterday with a handicap of one second, due to the fact that she did not cross the starting line until one second after the four minutes' time allowance for the start had expired. Both she and the smaller but equally graceful challenger, Morton F. Plant's Elena, were off Sandy Hook all night, ready for their ocean race which is to decide the question as to which is the speedier yacht in a run of 214 miles.

There was a good stiff breeze from the eastward when Commodore Baker's steam yacht Viking took up her position and threw out her mud hook opposite the Ambrose Channel light ship to lay the imaginary line across which the racers must run at 11 o'clock to make the start for the possession of the trophy. Commodore Baker had as guests Vice Commodore George Nichols of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club, William Butler Duncan and the members of the Race Committee, H. de B. Parsons, J. M. Macdonough and Frederic O. Spedden. The committee set the warning signal at 10:50 and sounded the starting signal at 11 o'clock, by which time the wind had fallen considerably, though it still held in the east and had a velocity of about eight miles. But it was constantly falling lighter and working toward the southward, from which point it was blowing with very little force when the last was seen of the racing yachts.

With all the sail they could carry the two racers came to the line on the port tack for the beat to windward, Captain Bill Dennis at the tiller of the Elena and Captain Tod sailing his own craft and pitting his wits as a sailor against those of the veteran skipper of so many successful races. The Elena was the first to make across the line at 11:02:28, moving slowly in the light breeze. Captain Tod did not get Katoura across the line until 11:04:01, just one second behind the time officially set as the limit for the start, and a minute and thirty-three seconds astern of Elena.

On board the Katoura with the owner and sailing master were Mrs. Tod, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Miss Gertrude Brown, who has frequently sailed the big schooner in her races off Newport Harbor, and Fleet Captain Grenville Kane of the New York Yacht Club, who will be Captain Tod's chief sailing adviser during the run.

With Captain Dennis on the Elena were John F. Lovejoy, William H. Busk, F. M. White, and Guy Lowell, who will represent Mr. Plant and the New York Yacht Club during the race. Mr. Plant and his wife, with a large party of friends, were aboard Mr. Plant's steam yacht Vanadis and will follow the yachts over the course.

The yachts will sail directly south to the Five-Fathom Lightship, off Cape May, which will be turned to port for the return trip to the Ambrose Channel Lightship, which may be reached some time tonight if the wind should freshen and give them half a chance for a race. The fact that the Weather Bureau had predicted the presence of a storm coming up the coast from the direction of the Bahamas, with gales off the South Atlantic coast, will probably have a tendency to hasten the finish of the race if it reaches the craft in time to send them bowling north ahead of it, but not in time to make them buck into it.

SEVERE SWIM FOR TITLE.

Goodwin, Though Lost in Hudson, Wins Five-Mile Race.

Not in the history of competitive swimming has such a series of hard luck incidents marred a titular contest as those which made a farce of the five-mile metropolitan championship conducted in the Hudson River yesterday under the auspices of the New York A. C. Bud Goodwin, the New York A. C. veteran, who has been winning championships consecutively for the past fifteen years, again captured his yearly honors, but in doing so he was compelled to combat wind, tide, darkness, a piercing cold, and, above all, incompetent arrangements, the climax to which was capped when he was compelled to swim two miles beyond his destination.

Darkness had long since spread its inky coat over the Hudson, and an orange moon was peering over Washington Heights when Goodwin, exhausted, suffering from the intense cold and from hunger, was pulled out of the water opposite 247th Street shortly before 8 o'clock, after having been in action since 4:51. Goodwin, with four other swimmers, jumped off the float of the Columbia University crews at 116th Street, and were to have finished their long journey opposite 216th Street. The tide at the time had been figured out as running north, favoring the contestants, but when they started their swim they found that it was still running out, and had not turned at 4 o'clock, as the officials believed. It was a long, tedious journey for Goodwin, who in the early part of the race swam nearly a quarter of a mile out of his course, avoiding ferry boats and Hudson River Day Line boats headed for their piers at West 129th Street.

For nearly an hour Goodwin struggled against the tide. Finally it turned in his favor, and he made more progress. His frequent deviations from the course mapped out for him cost him an early advantage, and at the end of an hour's swimming Charles Kaufman of the American Life-Saving Society and John J. Curren of the New York A. C. were out in front of him, making a severe pace in the hope of reaching the finish before darkness had fully settled.

In this they failed, for by 6:45 o'clock it was impossible for any one to see in front of him. Goodwin was accompanied by a launch and a rowboat, with several amateur coaches, but neither was equipped with a light. Goodwin floundered about in the darkness, but steered a straight course as best he could. At the finish mark opposite 216th Street there were no officials apparently, and no lights or marks by which it was possible to tell that the end had been reached.

Goodwin, far out in the stream, could not tell where he was and after going two miles beyond the proper point, he was compelled to quit. Goodwin had to be assisted to the embankment along the river front, where a bonfire was built for him. He had neither clothes to protect him from the chilling winds, nor food, and he had eaten nothing since morning.

After the comfort of Goodwin had been looked after, the crew of the rowboat and the skipper of the motorboat which conveyed Cyril Carol, an impromptu referee, started a search for the other two competitors, Curren and Kaufman.

The motor boat cruised about for twenty minutes, following a course in midstream. At last there was a faint yell from the direction of the Jersey shore, opposite Spuyten Duyvil, that led the motor boat skipper to Johnny Curren, tired but unwilling to give up his fight. Curren was clinging to the side of a rowboat, and he was picked up. Kaufman was found shortly after. The two swimmers were chilled through when they started for the Manhattan shore, the two rowboats in tow.

To add to the misfortunes of the swimmers the engine of the motor boat stopped working, and one of the men had to row ashore for help. The last heard of the swimmers was that they were in the remaining rowboat trying to tow the motor boat against the tide down to the Columbia boat house.

Thomas Ruddy, New York A. C., and A. J. Palenscan, Hungarian-American A. C., who completed the field, retired from the competition just before dark.

TRACK TEAM IS CHOSEN.

Simpson and Murray to Go Abroad with Meredith and Loomis.

Richard Simpson of the University of Missouri and Fred Murray of San Francisco have been selected by Frederick W. Rubien as the other members of the American track and field team to accompany Ted Meredith and Joe Loomis abroad. They will compete in games being arranged in Christiana, Norway; Copenhagen, Denmark, and Stockholm, Sweden, on Oct. 12, 14 and 21 respectively. It was originally intended to send a distance runner as the third member of the team, but the only man eligible for this place was Joie Ray of Chicago, and it was impossible for him to make the trip.

Secretary Rubien felt that Bob Simpson would be a big attraction in the Scandinavian countries, but would find little competition, as there are no hurdlers on the other side good enough to make Simpson extend himself. For this reason, he has decided to send Fred Murray along to give Simpson competition in the high hurdles and Loomis to extend the cracks in the low hurdles. Both Simpson and Murray are good, all-around men. Simpson has broad-jumped over twenty-three feet several times this year and has also equaled the world's record in the low hurdles.

In addition to being a great hurdler, Murray is a crack sprinter and shot-putter, and has also scored points for his college in the high and broad jumps. Loomis will be able to take care of the 100 yards and high jump, and should also score points in the running broad jump and low hurdles. Meredith will take care of the quarter and half-mile runs and the four together will make an almost unbeatable combination in a half-mile relay, each man running 220 yards.

BEEKMAN FAVORITE IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Princetonian Defeats Harte of Harvard in Second Round of Title Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Leonard Beekman of Princeton established himself as a prime favorite for the intercollegiate tennis title in singles by defeating Richard Harte of Harvard in the second round of the annual tournament, begun on the turf courts at the Merion Cricket Club today. Beekman, who won the national interscholastic crown two years ago, went three sets with Harte, winning at 3—6, 6—3, 6—3. Harte won the doubles championship for Harvard last year in partnership with R. Norris Williams, 2d, who won the singles, and as Williams was graduated from Harvard in June it was generally believed that Harte would win the present tourney.

A Pacific Coast flavor was injected into the tournament for the first time in years by the presence of Warren and McCormick of Southern California. Two Stanford men, Hawes and Clover, were also entered, but both defaulted. Warren won both his matches today, defeating Pringle of Pennsylvania and Stoddard of Yale, each in straight sets. McCormick was eliminated in the second round by Jerry Weber of Yale at 6—0, 3—6, 6—4.

"Ted" Edwards of Pennsylvania did well in the first round against Bowman of Cornell. After dropping the opening set at 6—4 he then steadied down and ran out the next two at 6—4, 6—0. In the second round he won the first set from Caner at 6—3, but the Harvard man put on the brakes when he found himself skidding and captured the next two at 6—0, 6—4, for the match. Sid Thayer's two victories were over Larmon, Dartmouth, at 7—5, 3—6, 6—1, and Whitehouse, Harvard, at 6—1, 6—3.

Harte and Beekman came together for the feature match of the second round by disposing of Hopkins, Yale, and Lyon, Dartmouth, respectively. Against Beekman the Harvard athlete could not control his service and this handicapped him from the start. In the second set Beekman passed Harte repeatedly as the latter followed his service into the net, and this forced Harte to change his tactics and indulge in a baseline driving duel, in which Beekman was the more successful. Beekman jumped into a 3—1 lead in the deciding set, and games then went with service until he had taken the set at 6—3, and with it the match.

The summaries:

SINGLES.—First Round—Weber, Yale, defeated Rowland, Pennsylvania, 7—5, 6—3; Vandeventer, Princeton, won from Colver, Stanford, by default; Blair, Cornell, defeated Koeniger, Dartmouth, 8—10, 7—5, 6—3; Caner, Harvard, won from Taylor, Johns Hopkins, by default; Edwards, Pennsylvania, defeated Bowman, Cornell, 4—6, 6—4, 6—0; Harte, Harvard, defeated Hopkins, Yale, 6—4, 5—7, 6—1; Beekman, Princeton, defeated Lyon, Dartmouth, 6—3, 6—2; Warren, Southern California, defeated Pringle, Pennsylvania, 6—2, 6—1; Stoddard, Yale, defeated Holt, Cornell, 6—2, 6—4; Thayer, Pennsylvania, defeated Larmon, Dartmouth, 7—5, 3—6, 6—1; Whitehouse, Harvard, won from Benedict, Cornell, by default; Knox, Princeton, won from Hawkes, Stanford, by default; Pfaffman, Harvard, won from Allen, Johns Hopkins, by default.

Second Round—Weber, Yale, defeated McCormick, Southern California, 6—0, 3—6, 6—4; Blair, Cornell, Defeated Vanderventer, Princeton, 3—6, 8—6, 6—4; Caner, Harvard, defeated Edwards, Pennsylvania, 3—6, 6—0, 6—4; Beekman, Princeton, defeated Harte, Harvard, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3; Warren, Southern California, defeated Stoddard, Yale, 6—4, 10—8; Thayer, Pennsylvania, defeated Whitehouse, Harvard, 6—1, 6—3; Coffey, Princeton, defeated Ball, Yale, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1; Pfaffman, Harvard, defeated Knox, Princeton, 6—4, 6—0.

PLANS FOR SERIES VAGUE.

Baseball Magnates, at Friday's Session, May Draft Several Schedules.

Owing to the closeness of the two major league pennant races and the resultant uncertainty regarding the contenders for world's series honors, members of the National Commission are seriously handicapped in their efforts to draw up a schedule and make other arrangements for the holding of the series, now less than a month away. Although the date for the opening game has been unofficially set for Saturday, Oct. 7, the fact that the commission is unable to determine at this time which clubs will participate is hampering the completion of the many details and arrangements which they wish to clear up well in advance if the series is to move smoothly.

This problem, it was announced here today, will be fully discussed at Cincinnati on Friday, when the commission and the club owners gather for the annual drafting of minor league players. The situation may result, it was indicated, in the extraordinary procedure of preparing a number of world's series schedules covering National and American League clubs which have a chance to win the right to compete in the baseball classic. Only three weeks leeway will exist at the time the magnates meet in Cincinnati, and it has been suggested in official baseball circles that the only way to meet the conditions would be to adopt this broad schedule plan, probably including Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston in the National League and Boston, Detroit and Chicago in the American League.

Evans at Wykagyl Tomorrow.

The amateur four-ball contest scheduled at Wykagyl yesterday, with Evans, Lewis, Bermingham, and Anderson as accessories before the fact, was postponed through the inability of the amateur and open champion to get here in time to play. He telephoned from Philadelphia that he would play at Wykagyl tomorrow afternoon, teamed with John G. Anderson, against Jerry Travers and Bermingham.

SHIPWAY HARD PRESSED.

Binzen, Other Finalist for Junior Tennis Title, Has Easy Match.

Elliot Binzen, national junior indoor tennis champion, and C. W. Shipway each won their matches in the semi-final round of the junior metropolitan championship tournament yesterday on the clay courts of the New York Athletic Club, at Travers Island. The final will be played this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Shipway was opposed to D. Allen, who scored an unexpected victory over J. Kemmerer of Pleasantville, N. Y., on Monday. The match finally went to Shipway, but not until he had been forced to three hard-fought sets.

In the first set Shipway had the upper hand by 5—2. Allen, however, made a remarkable recovery, and took the next five games in succession for the honors of the set. Allen continued his strong playing in the second set, and for a spell played Shipway literally off his feet, but the latter finished strong, and won by 6—3. Shipway won the deciding set at 6—2.

Binzen's opponent, Gerald Donaldson, the youthful star from Borough Park, Brooklyn, was defeated in straight sets, but he also gave evidence of surprising form at times. Binzen, however, showed his superiority when once he settled to his task, and took the match, 6—3, 6—2.

Competition was commenced in the doubles matches, in which three rounds were decided. Thirty couples were scheduled to participate, but the majority of this number telephoned the officials early in the day that they would be unable to play. Those left in were redrawn, but even then many of the matches went by default. Shipway and Binzen, with their respective partners, progressed through the three rounds to the semi-final round, which will be decided today. The summaries:

Metropolitan Junior Championship Singles.—Semi-Final Round—C. W. Shipway defeated D. Allen, 5—7, 6—3, 6—2; Elliot Binzen defeated Gerald Donaldson, 6—3, 6—2.

Doubles.—First Round—Raymond and Shipway defeated Stone and McMillan, 6—0, 6—0; Taylor and Holt won from H. Loughman and J. Queva by default; Forster and Kaltenbach defeated Krick and Brookman, 2—6, 6—2, 6—1; G. Donaldson and C. Donaldson won from Jones and Fleming by default; W. H. Barnes and partner won from O'Neil and White by default; Watson and Dudley won from G. Kaltenbach and partner by default; Middleditch and Clark won from Saunders and Whyte by default; Letson and Binzen won from Baker and Leclund by default; J. McLoughlin and R. McLoughlin defeated Dorr and Banks, 6—0, 6—1; Anderson and J. Queva won by default; Vischer and Emerson won from Ortgies and Plitt by default.

Second Round.—S. Loughman and A. Gallagher defeated Rasalsky and Winsten, 6—3, 6—0; Raymond and Shipway defeated MacCord and Lachurd, 6—0, 6—0; Forster and Kaltenbach won from Taylor and Holt by default; G. Donaldson and C. Donaldson won from Barnes and partner by default; Middleditch and Clark won from Watson and Dudley by default; Letson and Binzen defeated J. McLoughlin and R. McLoughlin, 6—0, 6—2; Vischer and Emerson won from Anderson and Queva by default; G. Andrade and C. Andrada won from Von Bermuth and G. Donnell by default.

Third Round.—Shipway and Raymond defeated Loughman and Gallagher, 6—1, 7—9, 6—3; Forster and Kaltenbach defeated G. Donaldson and C. Donaldson, 6—2, 6—2; Letson and Binzen defeated Middleditch and Clark, 6—0, 6—1; Vischer and Emerson defeated G. Andrade and C. Andrade, 6—3, 3—6, 6—4.

MATHEY ADVANCES AT NET.

Reaches Fourth Round in the Tri-State Tennis Tourney.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 12.—In so far as winners were concerned there were no surprises in the third round of the men's singles of the tri-State tennis tournament played here today. Dean Mathey, the only Easterner playing in the tournament, got into action today and worked his way into the fourth round by eliminating two Cincinnati boys in easy fashion. Mathey was fortunate in the draw by getting into the second round without a contest, owing to the odd number of entries.

The most exciting match of the day was between Willis Davis of San Francisco and William Hopple of Cincinnati. The Californian won, but only after the match had gone into a third set affair and then only after the third set had gone to deuce twice. Roland Roberts, also of California, likewise had a rather hard tussle in disposing of Trux Emerson of Cincinnati.

BUXTON DEFEATS EVANS.

Champion Loses to Philadelphian in Exhibition Match.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—The Philadelphia golf champion, Cameron D. Buxton, despite his elimination in the third round of the national tourney, came back strong today in a four-ball match over the Pine Valley Country Club links at Pine Valley, N. J., and defeated Chick Evans, national open and amateur champion. Buxton turned in a card of 76 for the eighteen holes as against 80 for the Edgewater player, and in addition had the dual titleholder beaten by two up at match play. This took place in an exhibition match.

In the four-ball match Evans was paired with W. P. Smith of Pine Valley, who reached the second round in the Merion tournament, while George A. Crump of the home club paired with Buxton. Buxton and his mate won over Evans and Smith by one up.

BAYBERRY CANDLE WINS AT HAVRE DE GRACE

FALL TURF SEASON OPENS IN MARYLAND

FANTAM BALA WINS SPRINT

Special to The New York Times.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 12.—The Autumn season of racing in Maryland was inaugurated here this afternoon with the opening of the Harford Agricultural and Breeders' Association meeting. The weather was ideal, and it was a typical opening day crowd, with the exception that society folk, for some reason or other, did not blossom forth as brilliantly as in former year.

Whereas the program was made up of over-night events, it produced a number of close and exciting contests which were well worthy of the enthusiasm displayed by the 5,000 spectators. There were seven races on the card, and, although the favorites took the majority of the events, the mutuel machines paid liberal prices, and those speculatively inclined were particularly pleased with the day's sport.

The feature of the program was an all-age handicap at one mile and seventy yards. This proved an easy victory for that great little race mare, Bayberry Candle, which defeated Fenmouse and Gnat in the order named. At the finish the winner had two lengths to spare, and was being pulled up. Bayberry Candle followed closely the pace set by Gnat until the stretch was reached. Then J. McTaggart, who had the mount, sent the mare out in front. From then it was no contest, as she easily disposed of Fenmouse, who was the contender after Gnat had practically stopped after going a little more than three-quarters of a mile. There were only three starters.

Fantam Bala Wins Thriller.

But the feature was by no means the exciting event of the afternoon. The fifth race, a selling affair for two-year-olds at five and one-half furlongs, had the spectators on their feet shouting both to the horses and their riders to come on and win. It was a stretch run which caused the intense enthusiasm between Fantam Bala, owned by Richard T. Wilson, and Mrs. C. N. Darke's Aimee T. These two youngsters raced like a team up the course toward the finish. The crowd was yelling and many of the more enthusiastic were waving their hats and appealing to the jockeys to ride harder.

Apparently the two thoroughbreds flashed by the stand together, and no one was able to tell the winner until the numbers were recorded on the board. When Fantam Bala's figures were placed first there was another demonstration which lasted for several minutes.

It was a big day for Emil Herz, for twice he saw his silks carried to victory. On the first occasion, the third race for maiden two-year-olds, mares and geldings, over a five-furlong course, Daddy's Choice, a fine-looking Ogden product, outraced Admiration and Storm Nymph, which were second and third, respectively. In the sixth, at one mile and seventy yards, the imported Devil Fish had very little trouble in leading home a none too high class field of selling platers.

Murphy Too Much for Plumose.

The opening event on the program was for three-year-olds and upward, at six furlongs. The winner turned up in S. Lewis's Murphy, which took a one-length victory from a fair field of nine other platers. Murphy was rushed in front soon after the barrier was sprung, and, while never headed, received a strenuous ride to withstand the challenge of Plumrose in the final furlong. The latter saved ground the entire journey, and made a game effort in the home stretch, but could never get at the leader. Ambrose was always in the race for the first half mile, but after that faltered, and practically gave up the contest.

Keogh, Warscher, and J. McTaggart divided the riding honors, each bringing home a pair of winners. E. Haynes was astride Thomas Clyde's Hyannis, which paid $22.10 and defeated a shifty field of youngsters.

The summaries, with straight, place, and show odds:

Chesterton, Sir Devrom, Day Day also ran.

HORSEMEN PLAN A COUNCIL.

Scheme Calls for State Convention in New York This Autumn.

Plans for a great State convention of horsemen and those interested in good roads for horses will be presented before the annual meeting of the New York State Association of Horsemen in Syracuse tomorrow. It is the purpose to hold a convention this Autumn, probably in New York, and to invite the Governor and other prominent State officials to hear the needs of the horse. Should such an idea meet with the approval of the association, the convention will last two or three days, and experts on breeding, highway surface, and traffic problems will be present to discuss these subjects.

Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who is interested in the work of the association, and has promised to be present, will be asked to give his views on horses for army use. H. E. Cook, Dean of Agriculture at St. Lawrence University and an officer of the association, will tell prospective breeders the best blood lines for farm and general work. It is the belief of those back of the scheme that a meeting of this nature would not only prove a valuable factor in developing new ideas on subjects of importance to the horse industry, but that it would give opportunity of ascertaining the opinions of those using the animal on questions that may come before the next Legislature.

The annual meeting of the association will be held in the offices of Vice President Ernest I. White at Syracuse. Following the members' meeting, a session of the county representatives will be called to elect officers. County members may choose their own delegates at county meetings preceding the annual meeting, but where no choice has been made representatives will be named at Syracuse. The call for the meeting states that another effort to open the New York Speedway to motors is anticipated before the next Legislature.

Three additional directors, or county representatives, have been named under the authority of the board—Edward S. Richardson of Belmont for Allegany County, Stewart L. Purdy of Penn Yan for Yates County, and Will H. Ash of Binghamton for Broome County. Mr. Richardson is Deputy County Clerk of Allegany County and has served as chief for the Belmont fire department since 1897. Mr. Purdy was active in the Western New York Breeders' Association during its career and is a writer on horse topics. Mr. Ash is an authority on all horse matters.

CUP POLO BEGINS SATURDAY

Circuit Teams Transfer Mounts to Bala, Penn., for Big Matches.

Thirty polo mounts were shipped yesterday from the Thousand Islands Polo Club, Alexandria Bay, N. Y., to the Philadelphia Country Club at Bala, Penn., for the first game in the first Polo Association Inter-Circuit Cups tournament on Saturday between the Midwestern and Southeastern teams. The mounts for the Southern team were shipped last week from Narragansett Pier, and H. P. Whitney, who is to mount the Eastern team, will send the mounts over from Westbury on Monday.

The teams and dates follow: Sept. 16, Midwestern, (J. L. Anderson, Edgar Y. Clausen, A. G. Miles, and W. P. Hulbert,) in receipt of fifteen goals, vs. Southeastern team, (Thomas W. Standley, E. Lowber Stokes, and Robert E. Strawbridge;) Sept. 20, Eastern, (Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., J. Watson Webb, Malcolm Stevenson, and Devereux Milburn,) conceding twelve goals, vs. Southern team, (A. J. Drexel Paul, Earl W. Hopping, Frederick Roe, and Alexander Brown;) Sept. 23, final between the winners of preliminary matches.

PLUM VICTOR AT TRAPS.

Wins All-Around Championship at Atlantic City Shoot.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—Fred Plum of Atlantic City, won the all-around trap shooting championship by defeating Edward L. Bartlett, Baltimore, in the challenge match for the "E. C." cup today preliminary to the tenth annual tournament of the Westy Hogans. Bartlett won the cup last month at the Grand American handicap in St. Louis and Plum was the runner-up on that occasion.

ENGLEWOOD WOMEN LEAD.

Defeat Cranford in New Jersey Section of Team Golf Contest.

The Englewood team still holds its lead in the team contest of the New Jersey section of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. Yesterday the Englewood women journeyed to Cranford and won a 5-1 victory over the defenders of the home course. Miss Georgiana Bishop, former national champion, and Miss Gertrude Pickhardt were the only point winners for the victorious team, but between them they scored enough for a comfortable margin of victory.

Glen Ridge and Hackensack waged a bitter battle on the links of the Glen Ridge team, and the home players won out by the margin of a single point 4-3. The summaries:

Hommey to Box Mooney Tonight.

The two ten-round bouts arranged as the feature at the Poneer Sporting Club in West Forty-fourth Street for tonight give promise of furnishing plenty of action. In the principal bout Packey Hommey, an east side featherweight, will oppose Joe Mooney of the west side. In the other contest the veteran west side lightweight, Kid Burns, and Johnny Clinton of the east side, will be the principals.

HAVRE DE GRACE ENTRIES.

TROT RECORD SET BY LEE AXWORTHY

Champion Stallion Lowers Own World's Mile Mark to 2:00 at State Fair Meet.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Lee Axworthy, world's champion trotting stallion, lowered his own world's record at the New York State Fair Grand Circuit Meet this afternoon, stepping a mile in two minutes. Paced by two running horses, the son of Guy Axworthy never faltered during the trial against time, trotting each of the four quarters in exactly 30 seconds. Lee Axworthy's former record was 2:00¼. Under perfect weather and track conditions his driver, Ben White, essayed to break the track record of 2:01¼, held by The Harvester, and his feat in also shattering the world's record, horsemen say, will go down in harness history as one of the greatest achievements of the sport.

St. Frisco, capably handled by Ed Geers, won the $10,000 Empire State Stake in three straight heats. The event attracted nine starters, among others the noted Mabel Trask, who was the favorite. St. Frisco set a new record for the race in the second heat, which he made in 2:03¾.

In the first heat Mabel Trask had the pole, with St. Frisco on the extreme outside of the first tier. Geers took St. Frisco away at the word and when the upper turn was reached had a substantial lead, with Mabel Trask in pursuit and the field trailing. Coming into the stretch Mabel Trask caught St. Frisco, but a break within 100 yards of the wire deprived the Cox mare of a chance to win, St. Frisco crossing the line a neck in the lead.

In the second heat Geers again got away to a good start and when the stretch was reached Mabel Trask tired, with the result that Al Mack, driven by Murray, flashed past her within twenty yards of the finish, to win second money.

The third heat was a triangular duel between St. Frisco, Mabel Trask, and Al Mack, with the former showing all the early speed and enough stamina in the stretch to forestall the challenge of his two nearest competitors.

Peter Stevens won the 2:05 pace in straight heats, leading the field of four starters all the way in each heat. Peter Look had things all his own way in the American Horse Breeder Futurity for three-year-old pacers. Harrod's Greek was an easy winner of the Ka-Noo-No Stake, outclassing the field.

Anta Guy furnished the speed in the Messina Springs Sweepstake for two-year-old trotters, Labe Riddle finishing second. The summaries:

STRENUOUS DAY FOR TIGERS

Princeton Football Men Rake Field at First Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE MINNEWASKA, N. Y., Sept. 12.—It was a weary crowd of Princeton football candidates who ran for the locker rooms at 5 o'clock this afternoon after the first practice of the season. Coach John Rush had his players out of their quarters before 7 o'clock this morning, and throughout the day the men were kept preparing in some way for the season that is approaching.

The coaches spent a few hours today, and will spend the same time each day for the remainder of the season, conferring with the players on their game. The candidates received only a slight taste of football this morning, most of the time being given over to getting the practice field in condition. Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick acted in the capacity of gang boss and had the players remove the stones and rocks and erect one goal post. The field is not large enough for two posts and is not generally level, but the advantages of Lake Minnewaska as a football camp offset the disadvantages and the Princeton team should this year be in better physical trim than in any previous season.

The players were out again in togs this afternoon and had light workout in handling the ball and in practicing starts. Captain Hogg, Wilson, Rahill, and Moore were the only lettermen in the squad today.

BEECHER HOLDS HIS OWN.

Gains Draw with Pierce by Rally in Last Two Rounds of Bout.

Harry Pierce, the Brooklyn lightweight, and Willie Beecher of the east side furnished a slashing ten-round draw as the feature attraction at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn last night. For pure, unadulterated slugging it was one of the best bouts seen in this vicinity in some time, for both boxers threw what knowledge they possessed of the finer points of the game to the wind, and exchanged blows head to head in every round. Beecher had an advantage of some eight pounds in weight, and this enabled him to withstand Pierce's hardest blows and finish in the last two rounds with a rally that completely swept the Brooklyn boxer off his feet. The spurt came too late, however, for Beecher to win, but gained him an even share in the honors.

Throughout the earlier rounds Pierce's coolness and good judgment earned him a slight shade. He rushed Beecher to the ropes various times, and there pounded away with clean blows to the face and stomach. Several times the east sider essayed to rush Pierce, but the latter used a left-hand jab with tantalizing effect, and frequently had Beecher missing awkwardly.

ELIS GUARD NEW TACTICS.

Yale Field Gates Closed and Football Practice Held in Secret.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 12.—Rumors that several undergraduates of other universities have been seen in the vicinity of Yale Field daily since the Eli football squad reported the past week led the coaching staff today to close the gates of the inclosure during the afternoon practice. Head Coach Tad Jones said tonight that the practice will be secret until college opens Sept. 28.

Many improvements in football technique have been planned by Yale's coaching staff, which has just assumed charge of the campaign, and they believe that only the Yale squad should benefit by them. Regarding football as a war game, the Yale coaches feel that they have an exclusive right to their tactics until they uncover them in a scheduled game, and for this reason they did not hesitate to order barred gates within a fortnight after the squad reported.

The smallness of the squad has embarrassed the coaching staff. Not enough experienced linemen were present today to allow Chief Jones to form two full elevens, as he had planned. He wishes to order one or two light scrimmage practices before this week closes and plans a couple of signal drills by two elevens in advance. Fully a hundred players were expected at the practice this week, yet the squad today hardly amounted to half that number.

Alonzo Stagg, the Chicago coach, actively assisted in the coaching, although it was asserted that he taught no Western formations, giving his attention to details in play. Stagg's visit East was prompted by his patriotic wish to aid Yale in building up a new coaching system rather than plans for teaching definite new plays. Henry Hobbs, tackle on Ted Coy's eleven, the last Yale team to defeat Harvard, and later coach at Amherst, was the only new coach today.

Vorys was tried at centre, although Callahan's work has been gilt-edged and both Van Nostrand and Ames were tried at quarter back. Half an hour's signal drill and a long session in rudimentary play comprised the morning and afternoon football bill.

HARVARD PRACTICE HARD.

Squad Divided Into Two Elevens—More Coaches on Hand.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 12.—More coaches came to Soldier's Field today to drive the Crimson football players, who, after tomorrow's drill will be separated into the 'Varsity and second team squads. Wallie Trumbull, acting Captain two years ago, and one of Harvard's best linemen in years; Gil Browne, Smith, and Ernest Soucy, all recent 'Varsity end rushers, and McKinlock, of last year's backfield, took hold with the large regular staff and things moved fast.

The linemen were dressed to play hard football, and had a long session of breaking through drill. The ends were worked on smashing interference, and there was a lot of kicking and handling kicks in addition to the rudimentary practice and the signal drill for the backs. It was a hard day's work.

Not until next week will the coaches decide even on a tentative rush line, but the backfield as now composed of Robinson at quarter, with Bond, Flower, and Horween seems sure to start as first string. Willcox, sub-quarter for two years, was shifted to his old place today and handled the second string backs, Thacher, Hitchcock, and Minot. Bathelder, one of the best Freshmen linemen, started to play centre, and Horne, a former back, began work at end today.

SIGNAL DRILL AT FORDHAM.

Coach Gargan Works Out Formations with Two Tentative Teams.

With more than enough men to form two fairly strong elevens, Coach Frank Gargan started the Fordham football squad on its first real work yesterday. The squad was strengthened by the return of Wally Golden, the quarterback a year ago. Cartwell, who was ranked as the best back on the 1915 scrub team, was also on the field. With Yule and Dunn both lost by the four-year rule, it is expected Cartwell will fill one of the vacancies.

Yesterday's drill included the first use of formations this season. Gargan selected two tentative teams and ordered practice of a few of the more simple evolutions. Assistant Coach Moriarty picked out a few of the regular linemen of a year ago, including Conklin and Kindrik, and worked with them.

The development of good kickers received continued attention yesterday. Coach Gargan seemed particularly impressed by the work of Fitzpatrick, a tall rangy candidate who drove the pigskin well over fifty yards on almost every punt. Fitzpatrick has never played intercollegiate football, his only experience being on the sophomore eleven in the class series a year ago.

The actual training of the men also got a good start. With the national track championships over, Jake Faber, the New York Athletic Club trainer, reported for the first time.

PENN MAY LOSE BERRY.

Informs Folwell He Cannot Obtain Release from Border Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 12.—Howard Berry, of whom much was expected this season by Coach Folwell, of the Pennsylvania football team, sent word from El Paso, Texas, today, that he is unable to get his release from army duty and that he may be out of the game all season. Berry went to the border with the National Guard and for a time it was believed that he would be relieved of duty in time to join the Red and Blue football squad at Langhorne. Coach Folwell sent him word to report several days ago, but it is now apparent that Berry will not be able to do so.

Folwell swept his pupils through a flying practice this afternoon. The first ten minutes were spent by the squad in capturing punts kicked by Billy Quigley, Shorty Loucks and Bert Bell. A passing practice followed, in which the big squad formed a circle with Coach Folwell in the centre.

DINNER FOR ROBERTSON.

Irish-American A. C. Coach Soon to Become Quaker Track Mentor.

On the eve of his departure to accept the task of giving the University of Pennsylvania a winning track team a testimonial dinner was tendered to Lawson Robertson, coach of the Irish-American A. C. last night at Murray's by 200 friends, among whom were many athletes developed under his instruction.

Congressman Murray Hulbert presented Robertson with a gold watch on behalf of his friends. Patrick J. Conway, President of the Irish-American A. C. and Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, assured the departing trainer that if he ever desired to return to the Winged Fist organization his position would always be open. It is understood that Lawson will return before the indoor championships to prepare the I. A. A. C. athletes, and will get them in shape for the national outdoor games which always come after the intercollegiate championships.

Robertson's sportsmanship, both as amateur and professional, was extolled in short speeches by Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union; Seward A. Simons of Los Angeles, Vice President of the A. A. U.; Anthony J. Barrett, Chairman of the I. A. A. C. Athletic Committee; Major John J. Dixon, former Boxing Commissioner; Al Copland, Charles Dieges, and Sparrow Robertson.

In the last seven years Robertson has failed only once to give the Winged Fist club a winning team in the senior national championships.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Notice to Creditors of THE CINCINNATI, HAMILTON & DAYTON RAILWAY COMPANY.

All persons, firms, associations or corporations having claims or demands against The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, other than those secured by mortgage or conditional sale, duly filed or recorded, and other than those which have been heretofore filed with the Receivers, are hereby notified that the District Court of the United States, Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, in the cause wherein Bankers Trust Company is plaintiff, and The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company is defendant, in Equity No. 41, Consolidated Cause, on the 14th day of August, 1916, entered an order in which it is provided as follows:

IT IS ORDERED that the report of the Receivers, pursuant to the order entered November 2nd, 1914, in the cause in this Court entitled "Bankers Trust Company, Plaintiff, vs. The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, Defendant, In Equity No. 41," with respect to claims, shall, upon the filing thereof, be forthwith referred to Frank H. Shaffer, who is hereby appointed Special Master for the purpose of taking evidence and reporting the same to this Court, together with his findings and conclusions of law and fact as to whether, and to what extent, any or all of said claims are valid and which thereof, if any, are entitled to priority over the mortgages sought to be foreclosed in this Consolidated Cause, and being the mortgage dated July 1, 1909, executed by the defendant, The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, and commonly known as its First and Refunding Mortgage; the mortgage dated July 1, 1909, executed by the defendant, The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, to Central Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, and commonly known as its General Mortgage; and the Mortgage dated May 1st, 1891, executed by The Cincinnati, Dayton & Ironton Railroad Company to Central Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, of which United States Mortgage and Trust Company is now successor Trustee, and commonly known as its First Mortgage;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that all persons, firms, associations or corporations having claims or demands against the defendant The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, other than those secured by mortgage or conditional sale duly filed or recorded, and other than those which have heretofore been filed with said Receivers, are required on or before the 15th day of September, 1916, to file the same with said Special Master, which said claims or demands shall be supported by affidavit and shall set out the amount and nature of any security or lien held by the claimant or to which the claimant is entitled; and also any claim to preference or priority in payment from any of the assets in the hands of the Receivers, or the earnings therefrom or the proceeds of sale thereof, in priority to the bonds secured by either of the three mortgages sought to be foreclosed herein, being the same three mortgages heretofore specified.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that any and all persons, firms, associations or corporations who fail to file their claims as herein required, be, and the same are hereby forever barred from asserting a claim to payment from any of the assets of the defendant The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company in the hands of the Receivers or the earnings therefrom or any proceeds of sale arising therefrom.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that said Special Master publish notice of all the foregoing requirements of this Order in reference to the filing of claims with him and the barring of claims not so filed, three (3) times a week for four (4) consecutive weeks in a newspaper published and of general circulation in Cincinnati, Ohio, and in a newspaper published and of general circulation in New York City, State of New York. Said Special Master is directed to take evidence and report the same to this Court, together with all claims filed before him and together with his findings and conclusions of law and fact as to whether and to what extent any or all of said claims so filed are valid, and which thereof, if any, are entitled to priority over the mortgages, or any thereof, sought to be foreclosed in this Consolidated Cause, being the same mortgages heretofore specified.

And on the 15th day of August, 1916, said Court made the following Order:

IT IS ORDERED that Gilbert Bettman be, and he is hereby, substituted as Special Master in the place of said Frank H. Shaffer, with all the powers and duties in said order of August 14th, 1916, prescribed.

The undersigned Special Master, pursuant to said order will hold a hearing for the purpose of taking evidence and reporting the same to the said Court, together with his conclusions of law and fact as to whether and to what extent any or all of said claims to be filed with him or to be reported by the Receivers are valid, and which thereof, if any, are entitled to priority over the mortgages or any thereof sought to be foreclosed by said Consolidated Cause, being the same mortgages as in said order specified, on the third day of October, 1916, at his office, No. 1114 Union Trust Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

All claimants having claims or demands not heretofore filed with the Receivers, and not secured by mortgage or conditional sale duly filed or recorded should present them verified as required in the order to the undersigned on or before the 15th day of September, 1916.

GILBERT BETTMAN, Special Master,

The establishment of new high records in some of the active issues, including United States Steel, was followed yesterday by a reaction, under extensive profit taking. Not all the ground made early in the day was lost, and in the late trading further advances were recorded in some parts of the list. The profit taking called for no other explanation than the preceding rise, for it has been characteristic of the present movement in the stock market that buyers have been cautious in respect to prolonging their commitments and have been disposed to take profits on every brisk forward movement. The fact that the list has advanced despite the restraint put upon it by this sort of commendable conservatism reveals clearly the strength of the forces which have brought about a succession of million-share days and a very considerable rise in the general level of prices.

The upturn in prices at the very opening of trading was prompted in part by political considerations. Wall Street as a whole has been less concerned over the outcome of the Presidential election this year than in any previous national election for a long time, but it was none the less disposed yesterday to show much satisfaction with the result of the Maine election. The rise in Steel, for one thing, probably mirrored the increased hope that the party which stands for a protective tariff will be successful in November. Yet this influence is tempered by the belief which is held by many people in Wall Street not usually disposed to such indifference that it matters little, so far as business is concerned, which party is victorious. Were it not for that feeling the news from Maine would probably have exerted much more effect upon market sentiment yesterday.

The market was being called upon to take a good many stocks, but it took them with an ease which helped to maintain the confidence of traders. The outstanding accomplishment of the American security market during the last year and a half is its absorption of a vast amount of stocks and bonds from abroad. Quite possibly no other market was ever called upon within any similar time to take back so great a volume of securities from outside markets. We could not have done it with the ease with which we have done it, if at all, were it not for the fact that Europe has been sending us these securities under the pressure of the necessity to find some means of paying us for the unending amount of supplies which she is buying in our markets. We have then taken securities in exchange for goods under the advantage afforded by the fact that the goods have been sold at unusually high prices.

The amount which we have taken back is known to be very large, indeed, but just how large we do not know. Further light will be thrown on this subject by the figures showing the amount of American railroad securities owned abroad which have been periodically compiled by Mr. Loree, whose report covering the first six months of this year is expected some time this week. When this is later supplemented by similar reports from companies other than railroads we shall have a very good basis upon which to estimate the total volume of liquidation. It would not be surprising if it were found to be running at the rate of $2,000,000,000 or more for the year in all classes of American securities. Were the market to absorb such a volume of securities and hold its own in the matter of prices, it would be thought to be doing very well. Actually, the market has advanced while absorbing these securities. The general level of prices had recovered yesterday to within about a point of the high price of last January.

LONDON MARKET IS STEADY.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Money was in increased demand and discount rates were steady today. French exchange closed firmer.

The stock market opened steady, but the demand slackened and some profit taking caused a slight easing in recent favorites without however, affecting the confident undertone. Peruvian issues were good features and gilt-edged securities were maintained, but home rails declined on labor fears. American securities were generally slack, with United States Steel a firm exception.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 64 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 95 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 90 francs.

MAXWELL EARNS $5,426,000.

A remarkable increase in prosperity of the Maxwell Motor Company was shown in a report for the year ended July 1, 1916, issued yesterday. The surplus earnings, after a deduction of $500,000 for depreciation, were $5,426,000, which is an increase of 135 per cent. over the surplus for last year, and of 260 per cent. over that for 1914. The surplus earned in the last year was equivalent to 30 per cent. on the common stock, after allowing 7 per cent. on the first preferred and 6 per cent. for the second preferred.

Walter E. Flanders, President, says that net working assets of the company and its subsidiaries at the close of its third fiscal year were $11,176,000, an increase of $3,500,000. Cash on hand amounted to $3,269,000.

The number of cars sold during the year increased 88 per cent. The manufacturing facilities at Dayton, Ohio; Newcastle, Ind., and Detroit, Mich., have been increased so that the company now is in a position to produce 100,000 cars a year.

$2,500,000 More Ottawa Gold.

J. P. Morgan & Co. deposited at the Assay Office yesterday $2,500,000 more gold which was received from Ottawa. This brought the total on the current movement up to $274,500,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

General Motors, Indoors and Out.

Not only did General Motors sell yesterday at a new high record, but in doing so it reached the highest price at which an issue ever sold on the New York Stock Exchange under normal conditions. In the panic of 1901 Northern Pacific sold at $1,000, but that was a quotation forced upon the buyer by a corner, and was not supposed to represent the value of the stock. General Motors, on the other hand, has reached its high point by a rise extending over many months. It sold yesterday at 642, up 52 points above the previous close. It opened at 599⅞. Why any one willing to pay such a price for stock should hold out for eighths, the Street, in its impatience to see the figure 600, could not understand, but it recalled that Bethlehem Steel once sold at the same figure. After that the advances were made by points, and no small number at a time. The curb shared to some extent in the popularity of General Motors by dealing in the new shares, "when, if, and as." It is expected that the company will exchange five shares of new for one of the old stock, and the outside brokers made a price of 130 for the new issue.

Bethlehem Steel Getting Back.

A few more days like yesterday and those who bought Bethlehem Steel on the crest of the big movement will be able to get their money back. It closed at 524½, up 24¼ points for the session. At that price its possibilities do not appeal very strongly to the average investor. Even if he had the capital to finance a purchase he would experience such difficulty in getting a hundred shares at the market, or of selling it afterward at the market, that one venture would probably satisfy him.

The Precedent of 1896.

Harking back to political precedents, some of the more bullish traders professed to find a parallel to their liking in 1896, asserting that business men were driven to Hughes by the eight-hour law just as they were forced to support McKinley because of the free silver plank in the Democratic platform. They noted that Vermont, which then held a State election on Sept. 1, and Maine, which followed two weeks later, both returned unprecedented Republican pluralities, and that the results of those elections were followed by brisk upward movements in stocks and bonds, the market swinging into a bull movement which gained strength as the campaign continued. Critics of this argument for a bullish position called attention to the fact that the Republican victory in Maine this week was by no means as decisive as that in 1896, and also insisted that the trend of business men in overwhelming numbers to Hughes remained to be demonstrated. There was room for argument, but the fact was entirely obvious that substantial purchases of securities were made yesterday on evidences of a swing toward Hughes.

Decrease in Idle Cars.

Though the crop movement can hardly be as heavy as last year, the yield of grain being nearly a billion bushels less, the American Railway Association reports that traffic so increased in August as to convert a surplus of 9,762 idle cars into a shortage of 14,281, a change of 24,043. The net shortage was greatest in box cars, which, on Sept. 1, stood at 14,622 below the demand. The net coal car shortage was 10,821 on Sept. 1, compared with a net surplus of 1,024 Aug. 1. The shortage is not so great as to threaten such congestion as the railroads suffered when called on to handle the enormous crops of last year, so that the figures indicate continuation of good earnings.

Remington-U. M. C. Financing.

It was reported that the Remington Arms-Union Metallic Cartridge Company had practically completed arrangements for bank loans sufficient to expedite the handling of the large number of war orders the company undertook. It was also said that changes in the personnel of many departments had been made and that the plants were now in better condition for the prompt execution of the orders. The $15,000,000 5 per cent. notes of the company, which were brought out at 99¼ and have recently sold below 88, rallied to 89½ bid. Bankers supposed to have charge of the financing said that the arrangements had not been definitely concluded, but it was intimated that an early settlement was expected.

Bonds Look Up.

It required ten days or more of a bull market in stocks to arouse investors' enthusiasm for bonds, but dealers reported yesterday that this enthusiasm was in evidence to a satisfactory degree. Municipal issues, especially of New York City corporate stock, have been in demand for some time, buying being accelerated as personal tax day, Oct. 1, approached, but the other markets lagged. Yesterday a bond dealer said that if he could get $1,000,000 of sound railroad bonds maturing between 1920 and 1925 he was confident of reselling them within a few hours. Four days ago, the bond men said, there was little doing in the railroad and industrial bond list, a condition which has since been reversed. Investors are inquiring for issues of fairly short maturity, and of these the available supply is reported as small.

More Brass for Europe.

Persons in close touch with the international copper trade expect to see in forthcoming months greater exports of semi-finished copper goods to Europe than before, particularly brass sheets, tubing, copper plate, &c. It is understood that foreign Government buyers have of late been increasing their inquiries for brass in various forms, and at the same time their anxiety to contract for large tonnages of copper has appeared less evident than a month ago. The new movement is not altogether understandable, although it is supposed that the allied nations desire to speed up the operations of munition factories within their borders and believe this end can be attained by using the brass mills of this country to carry materials along close to the point where they may be turned into finished shells and cartridges.

STOCKS GO BOUNDING ON MAINE ELECTION

STEEL COMMON IN THE LEAD

Sixth Million-Share Day This Month —Bethlehem and Motors in Race for Record.

The victory of the Republican candidates in the Maine election served to give the stock market fresh impetus yesterday, and the 10 o'clock gong proved the signal for the most exciting opening witnessed in almost a twelvemonth. The rush of brokers to get stocks overwhelmed the quotation reporters, and the ticker did not overtake the market for more than an hour. By 11 o'clock more than 450,000 shares had changed hands, and it looked as though the brokers were out to make it a million-and-a-half-share day. The million mark was passed before 1 o'clock, but activity was on the wane at that time, and the day's total was 1,221,000 shares.

Yesterday made the twelfth million-share session so far this year and the sixth this month. Wall Street had prepared itself for a moral defeat for Mr. Hughes in the Maine tryout, and the rolling up of a plurality four or five times as large as had been expected caused many traders to switch positions very quickly. The upward movement of Steel common was resumed, and almost the entire industrial list made rapid headway in its wake. The railroads are still suffering from widespread apprehension over the troubles which may follow the eight-hour day legislation, and they lost further ground, but the average gain for all stocks was greater than for any previous day on this movement.

Steel common, with transactions totaling 188,000 shares, once more passed its previous high record, selling up to 105⅝. A reaction carried the price back 1⅛, but it closed with a net gain of ⅝. Other issues suffered from the profit taking which took place on a large scale, but more than recovered their losses before the close, which was made at near the best prices for the day.

The spectacular feature of yesterday's exciting session was the race between Bethlehem Steel and General Motors for the honor of being the highest-priced stock on the Exchange. General Motors closed at 642, with a net gain of 52 points. Bethlehem did not attain its former high record, but it closed at 524¼, with a net gain of 24¼ points.

Among other important gains were 3 points in Ajax Rubber, 6⅛ in Hide and Leather preferred, 2 in American Smelting, 2⅜ in American Sugar, 5 in Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, 6 in Cuban-American Sugar, 4 in International Paper preferred, and 3 in United States Rubber. Among the issues which made new high records were Steel, General Motors, Hide and Leather, International Paper, and Republic Steel. The Marine issues, which have been very active and strong lately, were weak. On the outside market Midvale made a substantial overnight gain and reached 60⅝.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Mahlon B. Wallace has been elected President of the Union Bag and Paper Company by the Executive Board to succeed J. S. Reigel, deceased. Mr. Wallace's election will be confirmed by the Directors on Thursday next. Mr. Wallace is also President of the Escanaba Manufacturing Company of Escanaba, Mich.; the Cupple Cordage Company of Brooklyn, and the State National Bank of St. Louis.

The Yokohama Specie Bank, at a general meeting held in Yokohama Monday, declared a dividend at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum and added 400,000 yen to the surplus, making a total of 20,800,000 yen in reserve and 1,437,000 yen carried forward to the next half year.

The Federal Light & Traction Company, through the Columbia Trust Company, is asking for tenders until Oct. 10 of sufficient of its thirty-year first lien bonds to exhaust $28,767, now available for the sinking fund.

The St. Louis & Southwestern has applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to issue $420,000 bonds, the proceeds to be expended on the purchase of twenty new locomotives.

The American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company Directors yesterday elected George M. Judd Secretary in place of Henry C. Knox, resigned. Mr. Knox will remain Treasurer.

The Shattuck-Arizona Copper Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents and an extra dividend of 75 cents, payable Oct. 20, to stockholders of record Sept. 30.

The New York Stock Exchange Listing Committee has received applications to list the following securities: Manhattan Railway Company, $1,000,000 additional consolidated mortgage 4 per cent. bonds, due 1990; Stutz Motor Car Company of America, Inc., 75,000 shares capital stock without nominal or par value.

COAST LINES IN PROTEST.

Oppose Change in Rates on New England Shipments.

Examiner William A. Disque of the Interstate Commerce Commission continued yesterday the taking of testimony in the Custom House of representatives of railroads and coastwise steamship companies interested in the proposed withdrawal of the proportional and transshipment rates by the Boston & Albany and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads. Shippers and coastwise companies are opposing the change on the ground that the new schedule of charges would be higher.

The testimony of R. Van Ummerson, General Freight Agent of the Boston & Albany, supported that of L. H. Kentfield, General Freight Agent of the New Haven, given on Monday, to the effect that changed conditions required an advance on New England shipments routed by the way of New York for transportation by steamer to Southern ports. Among those appearing in behalf of the coastwise lines were R. Walton Moore, Fred H. Wood, and Edward H. Hart, representing the Savannah and Old Dominion lines; W. P. Levis, General Freight Agent of the Clyde and Mallory lines, and E. R. Richardson, General Freight Agent of the Ocean Steamship Company.

"We have never considered that the conditions the trunk lines imposed upon us were equitable as to rates, and they were arranged in spite of our protests," said Mr. Levis. "The revenue from the rates will be so thin if the proposed rates are granted that we will either have to withdraw from the competition or appeal to the commission for relief."

The hearing will be continued at 10 o'clock today.

To Help Investors.

The Open Security Market of THE ANNALIST brings together buyers and sellers of unlisted bonds and stocks. Ten cents, every Monday; $4 a year. Times Square, New York.—Advt.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was broadly active, with prices reaching new high records for a great number of stocks. This further advance, however, brought about profit taking on a large scale, and as a result quotations at the close were considerably below the best of the day.

Refunding and Improvement 5% Gold Bonds
Dated November 1, 1912 Due November 1, 1962

Callable at 110 and interest on any interest date. Interest payable May 1 and November 1 in New York City. Coupon and registered bonds. Bankers Trust Company, New York, Trustee.

Exempt from New York State, County and Municipal Taxes

For complete information regarding these bonds we refer to a letter of Mr. Edward G. Connette, President of the International Railway Company, copies of which will be furnished on request, and from which it will be noted that:

The International Railway Company owns and operates the extensive street railway system in Buffalo, the second largest city in New York State. It also owns and operates the electric lines connecting Buffalo with Niagara Falls, Lockport, North Tonawanda and Tonawanda, as well as the local systems in these cities and certain other electric railway lines.

A strong sinking fund provides for the retirement of $12,651,500 bonds on or before July 1, 1949, when this issue will be secured by a first mortgage on practically the entire property. The franchise situation is exceptionally strong.

Price 95 and interest; yielding about 5.28%

We recommend these bonds for investment

Revenue Department Explains the Workings of the New Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Internal Revenue Commissioner in his instructions to collectors explaining the General Revenue act informs them that from and after midnight last Friday no stamps have been necessary on deeds, mortgages, express and freight receipts, promissory notes, and all similar documents.

Today the first regulation prepared to meet the requirements of the new law was approved and sent out. It deals with the privilege allowed brewers to transfer by pipe line to bottling houses and tanks all liquors containing not to exceed 1 per cent. of alcohol which are non-taxable under the revenue laws. These liquors are familiarly known as "temperance beer." The regulation provides:

"Until the promulgation of such rules and regulations more in detail, it is prescribed that brewers having an established pipe line for the transfer of fermented liquors may set aside and utilize one or more cisterns for containing the non-taxable liquor for transfer through the pipe line for the sole purpose of bottling, under the same conditions and restrictions as now apply to the transfer of fermented liquor, except that the Deputy Collector in attendance shall first satisfy himself that the liquid to be transferred is of the non-taxable kind, in which case it will not be necessary for him to note the quantity or to require payment of tax.

"He will, however, be required to see that the inlets and outlets of the various cisterns are so controlled by seal locks that there shall be no opportunity to utilize the pipe line for the transfer of fermented liquids except such as have been duly covered by the cancellation and delivery to him of the appropriate stamps."

GAIN IN RAILWAY REVENUES.

Increase for July Over Last Year Totaled $40,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Net revenues from railway operations of $93,415,264 for July, as against $75,525,939 for July, 1915, for 150 railroads, were announced today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The gross revenue for the roads reporting was $265,517,824, or more than $40,000,000 over a year ago. The gross expenses were $172,102,560, or about $21,000,000 more than a year ago.

Estate Management

is a very real business—not a family obligation. That is the outstanding reason why the Brooklyn Trust Company, with over fifty years' experience, should be selected.

Its service may be secured in two ways:

By private agreement whereby the owner, during life, is relieved of constant care and responsibility; or

By will whereby the Company succeeds to the magagement upon the owner's death.

How Summer Suits Are Divided.

The Summer suit branch of the clothing industry has reached a stage of development where there is a sharp division between the low grade and the high grade product. According to a prominent manufacturer of such merchandise, the prices have become more or less fixed at $6 to $10 retail for the cheaper variety and from $15 upward for the better grades. In the lower priced range, mohair and cotton mixtures and crashes are used, and in the higher priced line, mohairs, tropical worsteds and silks. This development, he said, has enabled the representative manufacturer to put in a line of Summer clothing without having to fear hurt to his prestige.

Rubber Prices Hold Pretty Well.

In spite of the prolonged quiet, so far as the big buyers are concerned, prices continue to hold up pretty well in the local crude rubber market. Just why this is the case is more or less of a puzzle. This market has received no great support from London of late; there has been little real buying here for some time, and there is apparently no dearth of supplies of most of the leading grades. However, the quotations tell the story. Yesterday there were [illegible] on the leading grades of Brazilians and plantations: Up-river fine, [illegible] cents a pound; up-river coarse, [illegible] cents; upper Caucho ball, 41 cents; first latex, [illegible] cents, and smoked sheets, 58 cents.

May Pay Premiums for Hard Coal.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that, with the retail demand for anthracite becoming very active week by week, dealers are experiencing greater difficulty in keeping their stocks of domestic sizes replenished. The point is rapidly being reached where premiums for prompt delivery will be the rule and not the exception. Independent operators and middlemen are already getting from 5 to 25 cents above the circular on some of their line business. The situation at the local ports is that stove and egg are scarce, but dealers are not yet so urgently in need of tonnage that they will pay premiums as a general thing. Prices in the bituminous market are a little off from the high figures realized when the demand was stimulated by the threat of a transportation tieup, but the situation is by no means a weak one.

Big Season for Separate Skirts.

The separate skirt trade is having one of the most prosperous Fall seasons in years. So attractive are the offerings, and so full of value when compared with some of the offerings in the suit line this season, that women are filling out their wardrobes with them to a greater extent than for some time. A profusion of chic tailored models is contained in the most active lines, and it is on these that the bulk of the buying by the retailers is reported. Among the notable features are the multi-gored skirts. The wide use of pleats, especially box pleats, is another feature, and a third one is the various treatments of the hip-yoke idea. Many circular skirts are shown, and in most all of the active sellers there is a fullness that, through clever treatment, appears less actual than it really is. The popular fabrics include broadcloth, serge, (both men's and women's wear,) plain and fancy velours, and a variety of worstead mixtures.

Gray Goods Trading Light.

Buying of gray goods, more especially printcloths, seems now to be suffering from a reaction from the exciting days of the last couple of weeks or so. Little printcloth business is being done, either by first or second hands, though it is understood that some attractive offers are being made by the latter. With these offers neglected, as they appear to be, it looks as if real buying power is missing for the time being. Yesterday there were rumors that 38½-inch 64-60s had been sold from second hands in a fair way at 6⅝ cents for delivery during the remainder of this year, but to offset this there were definite reports of sales of the same goods from first hands, for October-November delivery, at 6½ cents. There was little feature to the sheeting business done, but October-December deliveries of 37-inch 3.95-yard drills were sold at 7⅝ cents. Printcloth quotations were:

39-inch, 68-72s	7⅞c	38½-inch, 60-52s	5¾c
39-inch, 56-44s	5⅞c	38½-inch, 60-48s	5⅜c
33½-inch, 64-64s	*6⅜c	27-inch, 64-60s	4⅜c

Prices Firm for Good Wool.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—There was a brisk demand for the 9,080 bales offered at the wool auction sales today. Prices were firm for good varieties, and Cape of Good Hope and Natal greasy was in better request. Russia paid 3s 10½d for Victorian merinos. Inferior scoured merinos and medium scoured Cape of Good Hope and Natal declined 7½ to 10 per cent.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Fixing Values on the Basis of American Selling Prices.

Several shipments of mohair dress goods, described as grandrelles, were before Judge Brown of the Board of General Appraisers yesterday as the result of protests by importers against advances in value made by the local customs men. Some of the goods were entered as having a foreign market value of 10¾ pence per yard, while the invoiced value of the balance was 10½ pence a yard. The cloth was manufactured by Heymann & Alexander, Bradford. The testimony showed that the grandrelles were not made for English consumption, but for export only. As no foreign market value could be established, the customs officers took prevailing American selling prices for similar merchandise as the basis of fixing dutiable values. All of the goods were priced at 12 pence a yard, and this value was affirmed by the General Appraiser.

Board 2, passing upon reappraisements by a single General Appraiser, made a decision in part favorable to the claims of New York handlers of bamboo chopsticks shipped here by Shui Lun & Co., Hongkong. The board held that the sticks entered as having a value of 12 cents, Hongkong, were properly valued, thus reversing appraising officers in taking higher duties and according penalties. The balance of the importation was found to be dutiable on the higher basis returned by the New York authorities.

Board 2 sustained the values put by M. Noguier-Vienne of Lyons on sweetmeats entered at New York, while similar action was taken on importations of nursery stock shipped to this port by A. Ouwerkerk, Boskoop, Holland.

The board refused to reduce reappraised values in the following cases: F. Yamato & K. Iwai of Nagoya, Japan, decorated china; H. S. & C. Ryde, Nottingham, mosquito netting, and Joaquin Barbera, Valencia, peppers.

EXPORTS STILL GROWING.

July's Total Was $445,472,000—Imports Were $182,722,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The regular monthly statement of the foreign trade of the United States, completed today at the Department of Commerce, shows that imports for July were $182,722,000, as compared with $143,244,000 for July, 1915, and exports were $445,472,000, as compared with $268,468,000 in July last year. The bulk of exports continues to be war supplies. The general classification of exports as prepared at the Department of Commerce is as follows:

Crude materials for use in manufacturing, $50,550,414; foodstuffs in crude condition and food animals, $22,084,856; food stuffs partly or wholly manufactured, $40,110,072; manufactures for further use in manufacturing, $78,061,834; manufactures ready for consumption, $232,047,796; horses, $5,602,522; mules, $1,427,682.

The export of cotton last week was 113,023 bales, the largest amount going from Galveston, 41,110 bales, and the next largest, 23,111 bales, from New Orleans. This makes the total since Aug. 1, the beginning of the cotton export year, 541,069 bales. The amount exported in the corresponding week last year was 40,151 bales, and for the interval following Aug. 1, 216,400 bales.

PRICES OF FURS DECLINE.

Pelts Bring Less Than in March at the Auction in Masonic Temple.

With a good attendance and spirited bidding, the second day of the New York fur auction in Masonic Temple, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, was marked yesterday by higher prices than dealers expected. The morning session was devoted to the sale of silver foxes. The better grade pelts brought March prices, but a decline of 15 per cent. took place on the lower quality skins. Muskrat furnished the feature of the first evening session, which was begun at 7:30 o'clock. Prices showed an advance over those obtained in March, and the bidding was probably the most active so far.

The decline in values at the present sale is ascribed to the fact that the cloak manufacturers are not represented. They began operations for the Fall and Winter season later than usual, owing to the strike in the industry, and they are not expected to purchase any of the fur offerings at this sale.

Prices obtained yesterday compared with those of last March were as follows: Silver fox, better grades, no change; silver fox, lower grades, 15 per cent. lower; white fox, 20 per cent. lower; kitt fox, no change; Australian fox, 15 per cent. lower; mink, 10 per cent. lower; Australian opossum, 10 per cent. lower; marten, no change; marten dark, 15 per cent. higher.

COTTON GAIN SLIGHT IN SPOTTED MARKET

PROFESSIONAL SCALPING

After a session marked by puzzling fluctuations, cotton yesterday closed steady at an advance of 1 to 3 points. As the gong struck, a good deal of cotton was offering, but this had been the case on numerous occasions throughout the day. The market was "thin" and spotted. At one time, when prices were down to the level of 15.31 for January, an effort to fill a moderate-sized order sent prices up 8 or 9 points. Selling orders of ordinary proportions also had an undue effect upon prices.

Liverpool was higher than due, and cable advices from the other side stated that there was distinctly less hedging, and that offerings were quickly absorbed. Another cable said: "Market effect favorable by natural reaction; fearing an advance in your market, recent sellers bought today. Southern markets show disposition to sell freely."

At one time prices worked up about 15 points over the previous day's closing in response to an estimate on the August consumption by American mills, which placed the amount at more than 540,000 bales. A New Orleans wire also suggested the possibility of damage from frost in the Southwest, although the lowest temperature was 54 degrees.

At the opening there was some buying on account of spinners and there was also less pressure from hedge sales. Later in the day there was a fair amount of selling for the eastern belt shippers and a decline resulted. The intermediate fluctuations were caused more by scalping transactions of professional traders than by the news in circulation.

Scattered rains were reported in Oklahoma, with the heaviest precipitation 1.30 inches. Texas advices report some fear of car shortage, which will interfere with the movement of the crop. Henry N. Pope, head of the Farmers' Union, denies having suggested a minimum price of 12 cents per pound, and is said to be urging farmers to hold for 20 cents. None of these pronunciamentos, however, are taken seriously except by their authors.

The market closed steady.

WHEAT.

There was an active selling movement in the wheat market yesterday, and prices declined sharply, closing with a partial rally, but with net losses of 2⅝@3⅝c. In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at $1.73¼; No. 2 hard, $1.65½; No. 1 northern Duluth, $1.77½; No. 1 northern Manitoba, $1.73½, all free on board New York.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was only moderately active, but there was considerable pressure on the selling side, and in consequence prices were lower. The cash demand continued disappointing, but hog receipts were somewhat smaller, with prices firm. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 10,000; estimated for Wednesday, 24,000. Kansas City received 15,000 and Omaha 6,600.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was firmer early in the day. Subsequently, however, an easier tone developed in sympathy with the late decline in lard, and values lost most of the early gain, closing 5 points net higher to 2 points lower. Total sales for the day were 25,000 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

As a result of further precipitation in Brazil and an absence of outside support, the coffee market was irregular yesterday and finally lower, closing 3 points net lower to 4 points higher. The advances were only in the first two positions. The opening was steady at a partial advance of 2 points, and for a time the market displayed moderate firmness, advancing 3 to 5 points over the previous night. The local market for spot coffee was quieter, with prices unchanged on the basis of 10c for Rio 7s and 11⅞c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The market for sugar futures opened steady, 3@5 points higher, and on outside support values later in the day advanced several points on a fairly active market. The strength on the exchange was due to the firmer and higher spot market. The close showed net gains of 8@11 points, with sales 25,350 tons. Range of prices:

The local market for refined sugar was firm and unchanged at 6.25c for fine granulated. Raw sugar was strong, and two advances in the spot price were recorded. Early in the day there were sales of about 60,000 bags Cubas, from store and prompt shipment to a local refiner, at 4¼c, cost and freight, equal to 5.27c for centrifugals. A local refiner at the close of the market bought 10,000 bags from store at 4⅜c, advancing the price of Cuban centrifugals to 5.39c. Quotations follow: Centrifugals, 5.39c; molasses, 4.62c, and cost and freight, 4⅜c.

PROPOSALS.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS,
Albany, August 31st, 1916.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at his office in the Capitol at Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, October 3d, 1916, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for improving the New York State canals, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903 and of the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and Chapter 570 of the Laws of 1915, as follows:

Erie Canal—Section 1.
For constructing a spillway at Waterford side-cut, adjacent to Barge Canal Lock 2, and installing taintor gate, with operating equipment.

Erie Canal—Section 5.

Erie Canal—Sections 5 and 6.
For constructing lighthouses, range towers, beacons, etc., and for furnishing and installing buoys and lighting equipments for aids to navigation on Oneida and Onondaga Lakes.
Sheets 1 to 18, inclusive.

Erie Canal—Section 4.
For constructing a junction lock at Mohawk.
Sheets 1 to 10, inclusive.
And for the construction of Barge Canal terminals, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 746 of the Laws of 1911 and of the acts amendatory thereof, as follows:

Contract plans, Sheets 1 to 5.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract, and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y.; at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., and at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the City of Albany or New York, issued by a national or State bank (or trust company in the case of terminal contracts) in good credit within the State, and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten percentum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds, coinsurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

W. W. WOTHERSPOON,
Superintendent of Public Works.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Loan of $4,500,000 for Twenty-eight-Story Hotel Commodore on Central Railroad Block—West End Avenue Sale—Bronx and Suburban Buyers—Larchmont Inns Sold.

A building loan of $4,500,000, one of the largest that has been placed in Manhattan in a long time, has been made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to the New York Central Railroad interest for the mammoth twenty-eight-story hotel planned for the block bounded by Lexington Avenue, Forty-second and Forty-third Streets, and the former Depew Place. The block was formerly occupied by the Hospital for Crippled Children, and was purchased a few years ago by the railroad to round out its terminal improvements. The easement under the block has been acquired by the city for the subway connecting link between the present Fourth Avenue line and the new Lexington Avenue route.

The block has frontages of 200.10 by 275 feet. The new hotel will be known as the Commodore, in memory of Commodore Vanderbilt, founder of the New York Central Railway system. It will contain about 2,000 rooms. Warren & Wetmore are the architects, and it is expected that actual construction will begin in a short time, as the subway excavations are nearly finished.

The hotel has been leased from the day of completion by the Bowman Hotel Corporation, headed by John McE. Bowman, proprietor of the Biltmore and the Manhattan, for a period of forty years at a rental said to yield the railroad a return equivalent to 5 per cent. upon an investment of $9,000,000, including the value of the land and the cost of the structure.

The $4,500,000 loan carries interest at 5½ per cent.

West End Avenue Corner Sold.

The Princeton Construction Company, Isaac Polstein, President, has purchased from Valentine Gumprecht the five-story flat on the northwest corner of Ninety-fourth Street and West End Avenue. The structure occupies a plot 42.2 by 100. George Ranger negotiated the sale.

Deal on East 125th Street.

Wertheim & Clear sold for Eleanor M. Stewart, as executrix of the estate of Daniel S. Doran, the three-story and basement frame dwelling 249 East 125th Street, on a lot 25 by 99.11. This property adjoins Public School 39 on the east, and has not changed hands since 1852. The purchaser contemplates improving the site with a business building.

Tenement Sales.

Isadore Melnich has purchased from Maurice Lee for investment 276 East Houston Street a five-story tenement on a lot 20 by 106.

Julius Martinson has purchased from Jennie Neuman 1,523 and 1,525 Charlotte Street, two five-story new law flats, each on plot 40 by 100, near Boston Road.

Upper Fifth Avenue Lease.

An important lease in the upper Fifth Avenue section has been made by Stadler & Stadler, tailors, now at 435 Fifth Avenue, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth Streets, who have leased for their new quarters the second floor in the new building at 784 and 785 Fifth Avenue, on the site of the former Park & Tilford building, between Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth Streets. Possession will be taken by Dec. 1. The lease is for a term of years at an aggregate rental of about $80,000. The lease was made by Charles F. Mayer for the agents of the building, Horace S. Ely & Co.

Bronx Sales.

Brady & Reale sold for cash for Elizabeth Willetts the four-story apartment house on plot 37.6 by 80 at 2,327 Crotona Avenue. This house immediately adjoins the property 2,323 Crotona Avenue sold by the same brokers last week.

Anthony F. Burger, has sold for Fredrick Brown the three-story two-family brick house at 1,045 Clay Avenue to William Sherwood, for occupancy.

Brooklyn.

E. T. Newman, broker, sold the three-story American basement dwelling, 581 Third Street, near Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, for Sheldon B. Stearns, to a client for occupancy.

Joseph Metzer has sold for J. Rabinowitz to an investor the three-and-a-half-story brick front house 191 Keep Street, on a lot 19.2 by 100.

Buy Long Island City Factory Site.

William D. Bloodgood & Co., Inc., sold the northeast corner of Hamilton Street and Harris Avenue, Long Island City, for Mrs. Eliza Mahoney, to the Cambridge Soap and Chemical Company, now located in Greenpoint, who will shortly start the erection of a four-story factory building on this site.

Long Island.

The Rickert-Finlay Realty Company has sold to L. P. Stryker of the firm of Whiteside & Stryker, attorneys, a plot of ground having a frontage of 100 feet on North Drive, Kensington, Great Neck, L. I., upon which the owner will immediately erect a home for year-round occupancy.

The Great Neck Marine and Field Club has purchased the land used by the club's golf links and tennis courts. It is a tract of thirty-four acres, having a frontage on the Old House Landing Road and the Fulling Mill Road, overlooking Little Neck Bay. The property was sold by the Citizens' Water Supply Company of Newtown, which took back a mortgage of $85,000.

G. S. Kestler has sold to J. Krotta a plot, 100 by 158, on the south side of Madison Street, east of the Fresh Pond Road, in the Ridgewood section.

New Jersey.

S. S. Walstrum-Gordon & Forman have sold the residence of Frank A. Clark, on North Pleasant Avenue, to William A. Schilling of Manhattan.

Two Larchmont Inns Sold.

Two well-known roadhouse properties on the old Boston Post Road, formerly owned by the defunct New York Real Estate Security Company, have been sold. They were the Red Lion Inn and the Peach Tree Inn, both near Larchmont. The former was purchased by David Lippman, a Manhattan operator, from J. N. Rosenberg, trustee in bankruptcy of the former owning company. With the old inn is a property of about twenty-eight acres, having a frontage of 1,400 feet on the Boston Post Road.

The Peach Tree Inn, which is just north of the Red Lion, was purchased by the Republican Club of Larchmont and Mamaroneck from the Halcyon Realty Company, composed of bondholders of the New York Real Estate Security Company. It has a frontage of 325 feet on the post road.

Westchester County.

Griffen, Prince & Ripley, Inc., sold to John G. Rochester seven parcels of land on Osceola Avenue, Ardsley Park, belonging to the estate of Amzi L. Barber. The property is bounded on three sides by the Ardsley golf course and opposite the country estate of Charles A. Cass. Mr. Rochester plans to build on the property for his own occupancy.

Buys Greens Farms Estate.

John Crawford has sold for Benjamin W. Foster an estate of eight acres on Turkey Hill, Greens Farms, Conn. The buyer is a New York manufacturer, who will build a residence on the property.

Leases.

Porter & Co. have leased for the Woman's Hospital, Francis L. Hine, Treasurer, to Mary Hastings the three-story dwelling at 255 West 127th Street.

The Charles F. Noyes Company, in connection with Heil & Stern, has rented the fourteenth floor of the Madison Square Building, 15-19 East Twenty-sixth Street, for the Jacob Ruppert Realty Corporation to the Arlington Skirt Manufacturing Company for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $75,000.

Realty Notes.

Arthur C. Sheridan, who has been associated for eight years with Herbert A. Sherman, has opened a real estate office at 100 Broadway and an uptown office at 331 Madison Avenue, at Forty-third Street.

The old Garrick Theatre on Thirty-fifth Street, just east of Sixth Avenue, has been transferred by Edward Margolies to the Garrick Building Company subject to mortgages of $202,000.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

BANKRUPTCY SALE
AS A WHOLE OR IN LOTS.
NATIONAL PIANO COMPANY.

Pursuant to the terms of an order of the United States District Court entered August 22nd, 1916, the Trustee in Bankruptcy of the National Piano Company will offer for sale at public auction at 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, September 20th, 1916, on the premises occupied by the Company in the factory building at No. 621 Albany Street, Boston, Massachusetts, all the fixtures, machinery, pianos, piano players, finished and in process of manufacture, actions, movements, wire, parts, varnishes, etc., and in general all parts or materials on hand used in the manufacture of pianos or piano players,—and the patents, trade names, and good will of said business.

INVENTORY.—A physical inventory of the property offered for sale, taken as of September 1, 1916, will be available for inspection by bona-fide prospective buyers on and after Sept. 6th, 1916.

INSPECTION.—The factory will be open for inspection by prospective bidders on and after Sept. 6th, 1916.

METHOD OF SALE.—The property will be offered for sale in the following ways:

First: Bids will be received on the property as a whole, and as a going concern, including all of the assets in the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy, with the exception of the cash and receivables, the highest bid received to be publicly announced by the auctioneer. Each bidder will be required to qualify before bidding by depositing with the auctioneer in cash, or by certified check, the sum of $1,000.

Second: Bids will then immediately be received for the property divided into lots suitable for the trade. A statement showing how the lots are made up will be ready for prospective bidders at the factory on and after September 6th, 1916. Bids will be received on each lot separately. The highest bid received for each lot, and also of the total of bids for all the lots offered by the second method of sale, will be announced by the auctioneer.

The highest bidder for each lot, under this method, will be required to qualify by depositing with the auctioneer 10 per cent. of his bid in cash or by certified check.

The highest bid or bids received for the entire property, by either method, will be promptly reported to the Referee in Bankruptcy for confirmation of the sale.

The purchaser will be required to make payment for the property in cash; the property to be delivered to the purchaser or purchasers immediately after confirmation of sale.

All bids received are subject to confirmation by the court. Further information will be furnished on application to me, or to my attorneys, Swift, Friedman & Atherton, 30 State Street, Boston.

CHARLES H. KEITH,

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of RICHARD A. CLOKE, INC., Bankrupt.

Pursuant to an order of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, the undersigned, Receiver in Bankruptcy, offers for sale the property, assets, and effects of said bankrupt, consisting of woolens, findings, office fixtures, furniture, carpets, etc., used in the merchant tailoring business at 56 Liberty Street by the above bankrupt. The above-described property may be inspected on the premises from the 15th day of September to the 18th day of September, 1916, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 4 P. M. Bids for the afore-described property may be submitted to the receiver at the office of the bankrupt, No. 56 Liberty Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the 18th day of September, 1916, at 12 o'clock, at which time and place bids will be opened by him and creditors may attend and express themselves in regard thereto. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check or cash for at least ten per cent. (10%) of the amount of the bid. The receiver reserves the right to reject any and all bids, in which event the said property will be sold at public auction by Charles Shongood on the premises on the 19th day of September, 1916, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon.

Dated New York, September 13th, 1916.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of CROWN RED & WHITE TRADING STAMP CO., INC., Bankrupt.—No. 23,497.

Notice is hereby given that the personal property belonging to the estate of the above-named bankrupt in premises No. 1,243 3rd Ave., and 128 East 3rd Street will be sold at Public Auction under the direction of Clifford G. Ludvigh, Trustee, by Charles Shongood, United States Auctioneer, on the 13th day of September, 1916, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon on premises at No. 1,243 3rd Ave., and upon termination of said sale the sale of property at No. 128 East 3rd Street will commence.

Stock, Furniture, Crockery, Glassware, Household Articles, Safe, Store Fixtures, etc.

Said property will be open for inspection at the above premises on September 11th and 12th, 1916, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 3 P. M.

SEAMAN MILLER,
Referee in Bankruptcy.
J. H. REITER, Attorney for Trustee, 277 Broadway, New York City.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of THE COMFORT CLOTHING CO., Bankrupt.—Chas. Shongood, U. S. Auctioneer for the Southern District of New York in bankruptcy, sells this day, Wednesday, September 13, 1916, by order of the court, at 2 P. M., at 23 East 4th Street, Borough of Manhattan, assets of the above bankrupt, consisting of manufactured men's clothing and overcoats, suitable for Fall and Winter wear; cutting tables, desk, safe, &c.

MARTIN CHARLES ANSORGE, Receiver.
H. & J. J. LESSER, Attorneys for Receiver, 320 Broadway, New York.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.

Notice is hereby given that on August 31, 1916, WILLIAM A. JAMISON et al. filed their petition praying limitation of liability as owners of Steamlighter "Santos" for any loss, damage or injury arising on or about July 22nd, 1916, from a collision. That petitioner has stipulated to pay into this court the value of said Steamlighter and pending freight as appraised, viz: $16,028.70, with lawful interest according to law. That all persons claiming damages by reason of said collision are required by the monition issued to me by said court to prove their claims before Alex. Gilchrist, Jr., Commissioner, at his office, Room 349, P. O. Building, Manhattan, New York City, on or before December 11th, 1916, at 10:30 A. M., and that persons not so proving claims will be then defaulted.

THOMAS D. McCARTHY, U. S. Marshal.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The disturbance reported off the Bahamas Monday afternoon has moved northwest, and Tuesday night its centre was off the eastern coast of Florida. It has been attended by strong shifting winds and rain on the South Atlantic Coast. Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from the Virginia Capes to Jupiter Inlet, Fla. Rain has also fallen over the Mississippi Valley, the Plains States, the West Gulf States, and the upper lake region.

The weather is cooler over the Mississippi Valley and the West Gulf States and considerably warmer over the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions. Moderate temperatures prevail generally east of the Mississippi Valley.

In New England and Eastern New York the weather will be fair Wednesday and become overcast Thursday. In the Middle Atlantic States overcast weather on Wednesday will probably be followed by showers on Thursday. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf States there will be showers Wednesday and Thursday. In the region of the great lakes, the Lower Ohio Valley, and Tennessee local showers Wednesday will be followed by clearing and cooler weather Wednesday night and Thursday.

No important temperature changes are indicated for the East or South during the next forty-eight hours.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate variable, mostly southwest and west, and fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh east, overcast; South Atlantic Coast, strong shifting.

FORECAST TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Fair and somewhat warmer Wednesday; Thursday overcast.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday; Thursday unsettled; probably showers.

3 A. M.	71	60	3 P. M.	73	70

EDUCATION NOTES.

The Board of Examiners will receive until Oct. 31 applications from men for license as Assistant Principal in a truant or parental school. The salary is $1,500 a year, with lodgings and maintenance.

A free course in proofreading, copy editing, and theoretical typography will open at the Stuyvesant Evening Trade School, Fifteenth Street, near First Avenue, on Sept. 18. Candidates may apply for admission any evening this week. The hours of instruction will be from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M. Men and women in the printing, publishing, and allied trades and professions are invited to avail themselves of this opportunity. The class will be conducted by Arnold Levitas.

The Board of Superintendents has renominated Mrs. Ruth G. McGray to succeed herself as District Superintendent. Mrs. McGray failed of re-election at a recent meeting of the Board of Education.

The tentative budget estimate for 1917 will be presented to the Board of Education today.

There are about 1,250 teachers in Districts 30 and 20, which are in charge of District Supt. John T. Nicholson. The institute meetings are held in P. S. 150, Christopher Avenue and Sackman Street, Brooklyn. School Districts 2 and 3, Cecil A. Kidd, District Superintendent, hold their institute at the Seward Park Junior High School, Hester and Essex Streets. The 650 teachers in Districts 20 and 21, Cornelius D. Franklin, District Superintendent, meet at P. S. 90, 147th Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. The 1,400 teachers in Districts 37 and 38, in charge of District Supt. Campbell, have been divided into three groups. One group meets at P. S. 170, Bay Ridge; another at P. S. 103, Gravesend, and the third at P. S. 179, Flatbush.

The commission announces for Oct. 4 at the New York Custom House an examination for oil gauger, for men only, to fill three vacancies in the office of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior, for service in Oklahoma, at a salary of $1,200 a year. As an insufficient number of eligibles were secured as a result of the examination for this position held on May 17, qualified persons are urged to enter this examination. The duties will be those ordinarily performed by gaugers in the oil fields, including measuring with rod, oil gauge, water detector, &c., the amount of oil, &c., in the oil tanks under his charge. He must be familiar with the methods of stropping oil tanks and applying formulae for computing their capacity. He must be able to determine the amount of water, sediment, &c., in crude oils, and to compute changes in volume due to variation in temperature. Competitors will be examined in spelling, arithmetic, letter writing, penmanship, copying from plain copy, and experience. At least two years' actual experience in oil and gas operations, including the gauging of wells, is a prerequisite. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their forty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

Total of cases to date				8,589

Thirty-eight new cases of infantile paralysis were reported for the twenty-four hours ended at 10 o'clock yesterday, as against twenty-two reported Monday morning. There were eighteen deaths reported yesterday, as against nine reported Monday.

Health Department officials said, however, they were not dismayed by the increase of cases, inasmuch as the reports were always larger on Tuesday because of physicians being out of the city during part of the time cases are noted for the Monday report. They said a fair comparison would be that of yesterday's figures with those of a week ago, when forty-three new cases were reported, and twenty-one deaths. Commissioner of Health Emerson said yesterday he expected to see a much smaller number of cases reported today than yesterday.

Dr. Charles E. Banks, senior surgeon in charge of the Federal health forces here, was not so optimistic. He said the number of new cases was larger than he had expected, but that he still hoped the embargo on children being taken out of the city would be lifted this week.

Dr. C. H. Lavinder, Dr. Wade H. Frost and A. W. Freeman, Government medical research experts, left New York yesterday to study the spread of infantile paralysis in Hartford, Conn.

Seventy Children Cured.

Twenty-three children were discharged from hospitals yesterday and forty-seven, who had been quarantined in their homes, were declared to have recovered. This made a total of 1,429 cases recovered to date. There are still more than 5,000 children suffering from the disease in hospitals or in their homes.

Three persons gave twenty-five ounces of immune blood and one gave sixteen ounces of normal blood at the Willard Parker Hospital yesterday to be used for paralysis sufferers.

Under the supervision of Dr. C. Ward Crampton, director of physical training in the public schools, a Teachers' Institute will be held in Washington Irving High School today. President Willcox of the Board of Education, Health Commissioner Emerson, Dr. Crampton, and Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, Director of Public Health Education, will explain the symptoms of paralysis to the District Superintendents, Principals, and Vice Principals, and instruct them in what to do if such symptoms appear among the school children after the public schools open on Sept. 25. Dr. Bolduan spoke at a teachers' meeting in Public School 62 yesterday.

Commissioner Emerson said he would send as many representatives of the Health Department as he could to speak at the forty-six schools where teachers' meetings will be held.

At the Department of Health yesterday afternoon statisticians completed a survey of the paralysis cases by age groups. Of the 7,496 cases under consideration, 751, or 10 per cent., were found among children under 1 year of age; 5,662, or 75.5 per cent., among children between 1 and 5 years; 812, or 10.8 per cent., among children from 6 to 10 years; 142, or 1.9 per cent., among children between 11 and 15 years, while 129, or 1.7 per cent., among persons of more than 16 years of age. Children between 2 and 3 were most often the victims. There were 1,714 of these. Of children from 1 to 2 years old, 1,541 were victims, while those from 3 to 4 years numbered 1,278. Children from 4 to 5 years of age numbered only 618.

Sold Fake Paralysis Cure.

James T. Manchester of 363 West Fifteenth Street, found guilty by Magistrate Appleton in Special Sessions yesterday of selling a fake cure for infantile paralysis, was remanded to the Tombs without bail to await sentence on Sept. 19.

Magistrate Appleton said to Manchester: "I can imagine nothing more sordid or degrading than to sell this vile stuff as a cure for infantile paralysis and thus endanger the lives of little children."

Fifty-seven new cases of infantile paralysis were reported in New Jersey yesterday, making a total of 3,171 cases reported in the State. The new cases were located in the following places:

Newark, 9; Trenton, 5; East Orange, 4; Jersey City, 3; Rahway, 3; Camden, Vineland, Belleville, and Elizabeth, 2 each; Union township, Bergen County; Widlingsboro township, Center township, Winslow township, West New York, South Brunswick township, Highland Park, Asbury Park, Long Branch, Ocean township, Monmouth County; Boonton, Chatham, Dover, Prospect Park, Elmer, Bernards township, Seaside Park, Ocean County; Fanwood township, Plainfield, Wenonah, Montclair, Orange, Bayonne, Kearny, Weehawken, 1 each.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 12.—There was a decided drop today in the number of cases of infantile paralysis reported to the State Health Department. For the twenty-four hours ended at 5 o'clock in the afternoon fifty-nine new cases and four deaths were reported, a decrease of twelve cases and an increase of one death in comparison with reports for the preceding forty-eight hours.

Deaths were reported today from Interlaken and Fayette, Seneca County, and Syracuse and Auburn. Cases by counties: From Westchester, 11; Onondaga, Nassau, and Suffolk, 6 each; Orange, 4; Oneida, 3; Ulster, Oswego, St. Lawrence, Seneca, Montgomery, Tompkins, and Jefferson, 2 each, and Columbia, Otsego, Rockland, Madison, Albany, Essex, Chemung, Cayuga, and Sullivan, 1 each.

$2,000 GIFT FOR CRIPPLES.

Mrs. Pembroke Jones Makes Largest Individual Brace Fund Donation.

Commissioner of Health Haven Emerson received yesterday from Mrs. Pembroke Jones in Newport, R. I., her check for $2,000 as a contribution to the fund to buy braces for children crippled by infantile paralysis. Mrs. Jones's gift was the largest individual contribution to the fund. The total received yesterday was $2,944, which included $715.50 turned over by THE NEW YORK TIMES, contributions by the newspaper's readers. The total of the fund is now $34,567.

Included in yesterday's contributions was $89.50 from the Higby Camp at Big Moose, N. Y., raised at an entertainment. It was mainly through the efforts of Brewster Cady of Detroit that the entertainment was arranged. Among those who assisted in the program were Miss Grace Kerns, soloist at St. Bartholomew's Church, New York; Mrs. Funk Harz, soloist at the Memorial Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn; Miss Dora Wynn Hartley of New York, violinist; Joseph McQuillan of Passaic, N. J., pianist; Miss Muriel Ives of New York, elocutionist; Miss Vivian Forbes of Rochester, monologist, and Miss Elinor Funk of Brooklyn, accompanist.

The contributions announced by Dr. Emerson yesterday were: Mrs. Pembroke Jones, $2,000; Mrs. H. I. Finch, $10; Mrs. J. Leonard, $5; Dwight N. and John G. Ellenbogen, $2; C. W. Woodrop, $25; Children of the Lucille Cottage, $3; M. L. R., $25; Helen and Alice Kitchel, $11; Three Little Boys, $30; Rubin Bros. & Weitz, $3; Everett Robinson, $25; NEW YORK TIMES, $715.50.

THE TIMES yesterday received these contributions for the brace fund and for children in hospitals:

Anonymous, $10; Madeline and Leonard Mack Stern, $5; Catherine, Miriam, John and Virginia Schumann, $5; Robert Pelsinger, $1.

THE TIMES also received a check for $28.25 from Mrs. Lillian Baxter, the proceeds of a bridge benefit held at the Wiscasset Bungalow, Mount Pocono, Penn., and a check for $40 from "Elizabeth, Katherine and Naomi," the proceeds of a fair held on Labor Day.

REILLY SELLS CUBAN ROAD.

Hugh J. Reilly, the New York contractor, closed negotiations here yesterday for the sale to Upmann, the Havana banker, of the Cienfuegos-Palmira-Cruces Railroad in Santa Clara County, Cuba. Mr. Reilly refused to say last night what price he had received. He said the railroad was a $20,000,000 project which he started three years ago. Ninety of the 300 miles, he said, had been completed.

The sale of the road marks the culmination of the biggest job Reilly has had since he and his son went to Cuba in 1906, during which time he had figured prominently in the courts in suits involving many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

When he went to Cuba Reilly had a friend who acted as his legal adviser, Senator José Antonio Frias. Frias had great political influence, and soon it became known that Reilly had landed a $3,000,000 contract to build waterworks for the City of Cienfuegos. A contracting firm of which Reilly was the moving spirit was formed to build the waterworks, but enemies of Frias upset the plans and had the contract canceled.

Later a second contract was awarded to Reilly, and this in turn was sublet. Reilly put in a claim for $500,000 against the city, and a claim for $39,000 against the Cuban Government. The American Government forced the payment of the money to Reilly and Frias. Frias and Reilly then broke over a division of the profits.

Case Against Reilly Suspended.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Sept. 12.—The case against Hugh J. Reilly, the New York contractor charged by ex-Senator Frias with collecting with the aid of the American State Department several hundred thousand dollars for the sewering of Cienfuegos when the money was due Frias, was called to trial today. The case, however, was suspended on the plea of sickness by ex-Vice President Zayas, Reilly's attorney.

The prosecuting attorney asked two months' imprisonment and $1,000,000 fine, but it is understood the case will probably be quashed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 12.—Commutations of sentences were granted by Governor Whitman today to Adolf Mandel, the private banker who is serving a sentence of two years and six months for receiving deposits when his bank was insolvent, and to David Kassowitz, who is serving a like sentence for burglary. An application for Mandel's pardon was argued before Governor Whitman last Saturday. The banker was convicted in May, 1915, and in granting the commutation the Governor says that "this man has been substantially punished, having served sixteen months of his minimum term."

At the hearing on Saturday the Governor was told that all of the large depositors in Mandel's bank favored clemency being extended to him, on the ground that since his imprisonment he had aided in straigntening out the affairs of the bank. It was further stated that his wife had released all of her dower interests in his property and turned them over for the benefit of the depositors.

"In view of the unanimity of the depositors in this matter, and being satisfied of Mandel's efforts to make restitution, so far as lies in his power, the Governor has determined that it is a proper case for the exercise of clemency and has commuted his sentence," says the statement. Mandel is to pay a fine of $3,000.

Kassowitz was convicted in April, 1915, and had previously served a term in Sing Sing Prison. Judge Wadhams, before whom the prisoner was convicted, recommended clemency in his behalf, and said that, in view of the services Kassowitz had rendered to the State by testifying in other cases, he believed that clemency should be exercised in his behalf. The District Attorney also recommended favorable action in Kassowitz's case.

AUTO RAMS TROLLEY; FOUR DIE IN CRASH

ONLY TWO WOMEN ESCAPE

Baby and Two Women Mortally Hurt in Brooklyn When Street Car Hits Machine.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—From her home beside the road near Somers Point, about five miles from here, Mrs. Julia Adams saw an automobile approaching rapidly late this afternoon. There were five women and a man in the car, and when it did not slacken speed as it passed her, Mrs. Adams realized that the chauffeur had not seen or heard a trolley car, on its way to Ocean City, approaching the crossing at Ocean Heights Avenue.

She ran into the road, waving her hands and screaming a warning, but those in the car apparently did not notice her. The car sped on, but presently Mrs. Adams saw the driver jerk at his brake. Trolley car and motor were almost together when the driver tried to swing his car around into the roadway beside the trolley.

It was too late. The automobile, partly turned, struck the trolley car a terrific blow in the side and swung about so that it was parallel with the car. Carried forward by its own momentum and the force of the impact, it was crushed between the side of the heavy suburban trolley and a small freight station beside the track. There were screams, the sound of splintering wood and of rending metal, and then the motorman brought his car to a stop several feet from all that was left of the touring car.

Of those who had ridden in it, four were dead. Two women were alive, though senseless in the road where they had been flung. They were put aboard the trolley car and carried here, where they were resuscitated in the City Hospital. From them the doctors learned the identity of the victims.

THE DEAD.

INGERSOLL, MORRELL, Steelmansville, N. J.
VANNETTE, Miss BELLA, 19 East Thirty-seventh Street, Bayonne, N. J.

THE INJURED.

WOLF, Mrs. MARGARET, Collingswood Avenue, West Collingswood, N. J.

At the hospital it was found that Mrs. Davis had fractured ribs and severe scalp wounds. Mrs. Wolf was badly cut about the head. They said they and the other women had been stopping at the Chelsea Farm of Irwin Myers above Ocean Heights. Mr. Ingersoll had had his car only three weeks, but when the women planned to take the trolley to Pleasantville Mr. Ingersoll offered to take them to the Shore Line station. From there they intended to go by train to Collingswood.

The road to Ocean Heights just before reaching the trolley station strikes a down grade. There are woods on each side, and it is impossible to note the approach of a trolley car until within a few feet of the crossing. Ingersoll had taken the grade at good speed, and when he finally saw the trolley it was too late for him to stop, and he sought by turning to avoid the accident. He was instantly killed, his head being crushed.

Samuel A. Hay said last night that his wife and the other women had been visiting friends.

"They had been' planning the trip for two years," he continued, "and at the last moment my wife did not wish to go. She had a premonition that something was going to happen, but the other women said the visit had been put off so long they wanted to go and get it over."

3 DYING AFTER AUTO CRASH.

Brooklyn Trolley Car Hits Machine Stalled on Track.

Three persons were mortally injured and four others seriously hurt when the automobile of Frank Becker of 1,138 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, was demolished by a Coney Island trolley car late yesterday afternoon at the Park Circle, at the corner of Prospect Park and Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn.

The machine, which was driven by Isidor Torroke, a chauffeur, of 1,557 Eastern Parkway, was returning from Coney Island, where the party had spent the day. In it were Miss Ruth Becker, 20 years old, of 1,138 Eastern Parkway, a sister of Mr. Becker; Mrs. Ethel Schuman, 30 years old, of 1,338 Eastern Parkway, another sister, and her four children—Florence, 6½ years old; Sylvia, 5 years; Ada, 3 years, and Dorothy, 1 year old.

At about 6 o'clock the automobile swung down Ocean Parkway and started across the Circle, where the passageway is very narrow owing to repairs and repaving. As the auto started across the trolley tracks, it slowed down and came to a full stop on the rails. The chauffeur made frantic efforts to start it again, and while he was trying to do so a trolley car, in charge of Motorman Thomas Holmes of 273 Prospect Park West, ran into the Circle on its way to Coney Island.

Holmes said later he thought that the automobile would clear the tracks, and when he realized it was stalled, it was too late to stop. A moment later there was a crash. The automobile was pushed along the tracks for about twenty feet and then overturned, burying the women and children beneath it. There were shrieks of horror from those in the car and automobile and the bystanders.

Lieutenant David Smith of the Prospect Park Police Station heard the crash and the cries and rushed to the scene. Policemen O'Rourke and Walsh were sent to the rescue of the injured and were soon joined by two other policemen. By the time the ambulance arrived from the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, in charge of Dr. King, the policemen had succeeded in raising the wreck of the automobile and extricatng the injured personos.

A large crowd soon gathered, and calls were sent in for the reserves from the Prospect Park, Parkville, and Fifth Avenue Police Stations, and for a time these had their hands full holding back the curious crowd.

Dr. King took the two women in the ambulance, while the policemen commandeered two passing automobiles and took the chauffeur and children to the hospital. Mrs. Schuman suffered internal injuries, scalp wounds and an injury to her left leg; Miss Becker is injured about the head and internally and Dorothy, the baby, had her left eye gouged out and suffered internal injuries; all three are not expected to live.

Florence Schuman had her nose broken, in addition to contusions and internal injuries, and all the others suffered bad contusions and lacerations of the body and head. Torroke, the chauffeur, was so badly bruised that he was unable to tell what had happened to the automobile, and is not expected to be able to give an account of the accident until today.

Auto Kills Small Boy.

Eight-year-old David Schwartz, accompanied by his six-year-old sister, Miriam, left their home, 180 Orchard Street, and went to Essex Street, near Rivington Street, yesterday to watch some jitney buses replacing the surface cars, stopped by the strike. A touring car came along as the children were crossing the street, and the little girl broke from her brother's grasp and ran to the sidewalk. David ran after her, but was knocked down by the automobile and killed. Frank Vespe of 224 East Twenty-first Street, driver of the car, was arrested and arraigned before Coroner Hellenstein, who paroled him until today.

STEAMSHIP OFFICER DROWNS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, Sept. 12.—Johann Hermsen, chief engineer of the German steamship Grunewald, which has been here since the beginning of the war, was drowned by the overturning of a launch in the Chagres River below the Gatun Spillway. The body was recovered.

Hermsen had been with the Hamburg Line for twenty-five years.

LEBAUDY EXPECTS MILLIONS

Jacques Lebaudy, "Emperor of Sahara," who has been sought by Banking Supt. Eugene Lamb Richards to take $135,000 that the Banking Department is holding for him, under an order of Supreme Court Justice Shearn in Lebaudy's litigation against the defunct Carnegie Trust Company, explained yesterday through his attorney why he refuses to accept the money.

Lebaudy, who has been in concealment since he was discharged last Fall from the Kings Park State Hospital as sane, appeared by his attorney, Edwin T. Murdoch, in answer to a proceeding brought by Supt. Richards directing Lebaudy to show cause why he shouldn't be compelled to take the money. Lebaudy contends that he is entitled to a few million dollars more than has been awarded to him from the proceeds of the sale of his property in France, and pointed out through his attorney that he is now suing in France to set aside the sale of his property. He contends that acceptance of the money will have an adverse effect on the French litigation.

Danish Government Proposes to Settle Question by a Plebiscite.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 12, (via London.)—Premier Zahle today submitted in the Landsthing a bill having as its object the settling of the question of the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States by a plebiscite, after a Parliamentary Committee has examined into and considered the matter. The first reading of the bill is expected to take place Friday.

The Government expects that if the bill is passed, the committee will have finished its report on Oct. 4 and the plebiscite can be held Oct. 20. If the bill is adopted, the question of the sale of the islands will be a separate question from the general elections, which the members of all the political parties expect will be held later. The attitude of the opposition today with regard to the bill seemed rather favorable, but nothing definite can be said as to their ultimate attitude.
